A City of Gold
Japan Gets a Bargain
Even Bees Will Drink
Giants, Eternally Silent

—By Arthur Brisbane—

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30—Fine weather here, clear sunshine, bracing air.

San Francisco, established on a foundation of solid gold, dating back to the days of '49, and long before, looks upon other Western cities as Bernard Shaw looks on other writers, with some condescension. Other places are interesting, but THIS IS SAN FRANCISCO.

This is the city of finance, a city enormously rich, San Francisco's stock exchange ranks second in the country, ahead of Chicago.

Needless to say, old "father" Wall Street stands first, with his galaxy of multiple billion dollar bonds.

San Francisco hears that another financial colossus is hatching, to eclipse in billions the Chase-National-Equitable Trust amalgamation. Charles E. Mitchell, of the National City, is said to be the obstetrician in this case.

On this calm Sabbath, at breakfast, San Francisco talks about oil, overwhelmingly important here now, as gold was once.

California has been able to establish a conservation policy, to cut down waste. But a gasoline price war worries important men.

Our government, which says American oil companies may not unite, even to meet competition of invading foreign companies, may be interested in Japan, which last week asked bids on oil for her navy. The companies all competed. British Shell won, with a bid of 54 cents a barrel, less than a cent and a half a gallon.

Thus American oil will be supplied to Japan's navy, a British owned corporation getting the profit, while our United States oil supply drops lower.

A smart man is Deterding, born in Holland, managing the aggressive Shell company for British capitalists.

Next week, when Uncle Sam requests oil bids for his navy, it will be interesting to see how much the old native born gentleman has to pay. The cheapest oil he ever bought cost 64 cents, about 20 per cent more than Japan pays Shell.

If the British company should win this bid, supplying Japan and America, and Great Britain, of course, that might persuade United States authorities to take the archaic Sherman law ball and chain off the leg of American industry.

Meanwhile Standard Oil might reorganize as a British company. Then, presumably, our laws would allow "Standard Oil of Great Britain" to compete here on even terms with the British Shell. Much virtue in those words, "Great Britain."

We seem to be turning British, in various ways. The Associated Press today prints a London cable saying, "The idea of a consultative agreement for the benefit of France has been fully approved by President Hoover."

That consultative agreement, unwrapped and put in plain language, means an agreement to send our young men and gold dollars to be killed and spent in Europe, in case France should get into another war. WHICH FRANCE WILL DO in due time.

The "highest authority," on which Associated Press makes this announcement is, WHAT do you suppose?

It is the authority of English newspaper correspondents in Washington.

"A very docile people," was Lord Northcliffe's description of the American people, when Americans were letting themselves and their money be shipped to Europe. Northcliffe was right.

Clarence Darrow of Chicago, back from Europe, finds America a three-ring circus of Puritanism, politics and prosperity, with 120,000,000 performers taking it all very seriously. Europe, he says, is more amused at us than ever.

We can stand that, while our 25,000,000 automobiles continue running.

But Darrow and others are right in their suggestion that prohibition should not monopolize ALL of Government and public attention.

Mr. Sams, apiarist of North Carolina's State College, says corn liquor is killing off honey bees. They find the secret stills, accept no bribe, tell their friends about it. All drink from the mash, many die.

Bees cannot read are not bound to the Constitution, and they have an excuse that men lack.

The apiarist says bees can find whiskey stills with deadly certainty. That might help in prohibition enforcement, gov-

BAUER WINS DIRECTED VERDICT

$50,000 Suit Against Former Mayor of Lynn Dismissed in Court at Salem

Salem, March 31 (AP)—Judge Franklin T. Hammond in Superior Court today ordered a verdict for the defendant in the $50,000 suit brought by Joseph F. Cobb against ex-Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn.

The suit was based on letters written by Bauer, some of which were published, attacking conditions at a dance hall.

Counsel for Cobb announced the case would be taken to the Supreme Judicial Court.

Begin Parley on Egyptian Treaty

London, March 31 (AP)—A conference which well may prove historic—an effort to devise a treaty meeting the demands for Egyptian independence—began today in the Locarno room of the foreign office with the opening of the Anglo-Egyptian conference.

The proposals which represent the extreme limit of British concessions include defense of the Suez Canal, defense of Egypt against foreign interference, protection of foreign residents and the proposed withdrawal of British troops to the Suez Canal zone.

Monte Carlo Voters Back Prince Louis

Monte Carlo, March 31 (AP)—In Sunday's elections the party of Mayor Eugene Marquet won decisively. The vote was 458 for the Marquet list, with the other 671 ballots divided between Bonaventurists and Tureglyans.

Significance of the vote was its support of Prince Louis, who had been reported about to abdicate in disgust at quibbling over disposal of the gambling casino receipts. The Bonaventurists supported his daughter, Princess Charlotte, in opposition to her divorced husband, Prince Pierre.

Special Stamps for Graf Zep Mail

Washington, March 31 (AP)—Postmaster-General Brown announced today that a special series of air mail stamps will be issued for the forthcoming European-Pan-American flight of the Graf Zeppelin. The series will consist of three stamps of the denominations of 65 cents, $1.30 and $2.60.

POPE APPROVES FASCIST WORK

Vatican City, March 31 (AP)—Pope Pius told an audience of churchmen today that he saw no incompatibility in members of "Catholic Action" groups partaking in the work of institutions of the Fascist state.

The tenor of his speech was that people could be good Catholics and good citizens at the same time, and that it displeased and saddened him when any distinction was made.

The Pontiff announced he recently had had Secretary of State Pacelli sign a letter wherein all laity belonging to Catholic organizations were invited to collaborate even more closely with the ecclesiastical hierarchy.

VOTE AGAINST M'DONALD IS 183 TO 179

Second Defeat in the House of Commons Is Incurred on Question of Procedure

London, March 31 (AP)—The MacDonald government was defeated in the House of Commons today, 183 to 179, on a question of procedure.

The defeat was on a motion for suspension of the rule that the House adjourn at 11 p. m. It was not considered vital, or involving political consequences.

Neville Chamberlain, for the opposition, immediately moved adjournment. This motion was defeated, 185 to 175.

When there were indications of defeat on the first vote involving suspension of the rules, there were loud opposition cheers and the waving of order papers in the air accompanied by cries of "Resign!"

When the figures were announced there was a renewed uproar and repeated cries for resignation of the government.

Today's defeat was the second sustained by the Laborite Ministry since its creation on June 7, 1929.

The first was on March 11 when an amendment to the coal mines bill was carried by the opposition, 282 to 274.

The Liberals, who hold the balance of power, have since announced a policy of not forcing a major defeat on the government pending conclusion of the naval conference.

HEARST LETTER STIRS LONDON

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Universal Service Special Cable

London, March 31—Editorializing on the Hearst newspapers' open letter to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, asking him to close the naval conference, the Sunday Express says:

"The bitter attack made on Mr. MacDonald throughout America in the Hearst press is an awkward new element in the protracted naval conference. It is not couched in language often used in this country, but amounts to a demand that the American delegation should be recalled because the United States is not receiving what is expected from the conference

"If this view is popular in the United States, it must be traced to Mr. MacDonald's visit. Mr. MacDonald gave the United States reason to suppose that he was making some form of settlement with them. He knew perfectly well what they desired. They de-

HOOVER TO TELL HUSTON TO GO

Washington, March 31 (INS)—President Hoover was reliably reported today to be considering making a request of Claudius H. Huston, to resign as chairman of the Republican National committee "for the good of the party."

The White House officially maintained silence on the subject, but a confidant of Mr. Hoover's was authority for the statement that the President was contemplating action.

If the President does ask Huston to resign he will be adopting advice of Senate leaders who have counselled such a move since the revelations of Huston's lobbying activities and stock market operations were produced by the Caraway committee. Huston asserted he would retire only at Mr. Hoover's request.

AMERICAN EXPOSES RING OF DIAMOND THIEVES

The strange fellowship of a Boston public official and one of the most notorious diamond "fences" in the East probably will be brought to light during the Garrett investigation.

Recently an insurance company refused to pay a reward to the "fence" on returned gems that had been stolen, solely because he was a professional receiver of stolen diamonds.

Stolen diamonds have either been disposed of through "fences" or have been turned over to insurance companies for rewards.

Diamonds of all shapes and sizes, cut and uncut, whose value ran into millions of dollars, have passed through the hands of the gang, with which the pair were affiliated, it has been learned.

Some of these stones clung to the hands of the men who fingered them, with the result that the women of the gang glittered like chandeliers when they donned all their gifts.

CHINESE PLAN FUND TO AID SIDLINGER IN NEW TRIAL

Two of Probe Witnesses Get Threats; Warner Watching Cotton Club Case

Today's major developments in the attorney-general's investigation of Oliver B. Garrett were:

1—Chinese tong raises funds to finance a new trial for Albert K. Sidlinger, convicted in the Hotel Ritz conspiracy case.

2—Receipt of death threats by two witnesses.

3—Probe of a Garrett-vice squad raid, in which a banker was arrested in 1928.

Oriental loyalty was characterized in the action of the Hip Sings, Chinese tong, who held a meeting yesterday and voted to ask national headquarters of their body for funds with which to promote a new trial for the bondsman. Sidlinger furnished bail money for hundreds of Chinest arrested in raids by Garrett and his squad.

Yee Mon, New England representative of the Hip Sings, called on Sidlinger at the office of Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner and informed him of the action taken.

He said that several hundred dollars had been collected to care for Sidlinger's 4-year-old boy, and but Sidlinger informed him that the child was well cared for and the money will probably go into the fund for the trial.

Mon also declared that a committee of Chinese merchants would call upon Governor Allen as a result of Sidlinger's testimony at the Garrett hearing Friday. Chinatown, which had many dealings with him, is convinced that Sidlinger's claim he was railroaded to prison in a police "frameup" is the truth.

The Chinese have taken an unusual interest in the investigation of Garrett ordered by the Legislature and Sidlinger's story of "the Chinatown racket" of police graft as printed in the Boston American caused considerable of a sensation in the Hudson-Tyler st. district.

Information that two more of his witnesses had been threatened reached the Attorney-General today.

TOLD TO 'KEEP QUIET'

Mrs. Sarah Schertel, who told him and this paper a story of being railroaded to an institution for the insane because of her activities against the vice ring, was threatened in Columbus ave., South End, by a man, who told her:

"Keep your mouth shut or we'll take care of you."

The identity of the other witness, a man, was withheld because he fears being taken for a ride. His story, under investigation, is this:

"On Oct. 20 I was beaten by two waiters in a Friend st. speakeasy and thrown down a flight of stairs. I went to the Hanover st. police station where I was advised to seek a warrant against the two men in Municipal Court.

"A warrant against the two waiters was issued Oct. 25, charging them with assault and battery, but their case was continued when arraigned on Oct. 29 on that complaint.

"Four aditional continuances were granted and on Nov. 27 the complaint was dismissed for lack of prosecution.

"During the period over which the continuances were granted I was twice informed that Iwould be 'taken for a ride' if I appeared in court against the wto men.

On November 12 the proprietor of the Friend st. club called on me almost at midnight at my residence, which was then in Dorchester, advised me to leave the State and offered to pay my traveling expenses.

"After consultation with my wife I decided to go, and the speakeasy proprietor accompanied me to the South station, paid my fare to New York, gave me $15 pocket money and promised to 'take care of me financially' while I was gone.

FEARS FOR LIFE

"I stayed in New York for three weeks without having heard fom B——, and at the suggestion of my wife decided to return home and move to another section of the city.

"On Saturday last I was in a store on Friend st., adjoining the club where I had been beaten, when a man came up to me and said, 'You will be taken care of if you squawl about that beating you got upstairs.'

"I am in constant fear of my life and have left a note with my wife to inform her where to look for information if I leave home some day and do not return."

The man is willing to tell all he knowns to the proper authorities if he is guaranteed protection.

The case of the banker under inquiry is that of Frederick C. Hood, formerly an auditor in a Boston trust company.

Hood was arrested on April 10, 1928, in a Boylston st., Back Bay apartment, in which Garrett and two girls were present. Garrett's raiding squad broke into the apartment and arrested Hood and in Roxbury court he was found guilty of a statutory offense.

The case was planced on file but he severed his connection with the bank in which he had been long employed.

Garrett and other members of his squad, including officers Daley, Sheehan, Fortin and Clarke were at a Back Bay hotel in evening clothes the night of the arrest.

There Garrett is said to have scraped an acquaintance with Hood and the two girls, Jeanette Leslie and May Morelli.

With the acquaintance made Garrett, it is said, arranged with his squad to stage the raid that later ensued.

Hood and one of the girls went to the Boylston st. apartment and Garrett followed with the other girl. The remainder of he raider's squad tagged on behind unnoticed.

After some time in the apartment Garrett went to a window, lit a cigarette and held up a match, the signal for the raiders to enter. They did so and placed Hood under arrest.

SEEKING HOOD

He was advised by a bail commissioner, it is said, to give a wrong name and address and deny that he was married. He refused to do this, however, and went to court the following day.

Investigators for the attorney-general have the liquor and vice squad reports of this raid and the court records of the case and are seeking Hood for questioning in the belief that he can give them certain information not contained in the records. They are particularly interested in the advice given to him to withhold his correct identity.

The search for the missing October, 1927, records of liquor analysis was conducted today in the health department at the State House by Hermann C. Lythgoe, head of the food and drug division, State Detective Joseph Ferrari and two other State oficers

It was unsuccessful and strength was given to the original theory that those records, which show collusion between the police and bootleggers, have been stolen.

Lythgoe, who had previously been quoted as saying he knew nothing of the missing reports, declared today that he had participated in the search for them and added that all the records in his possession, as far as he was aware, had been turned over to Atty.-Gen. Warner.

Four witnesses were interviewed at the attorney-general's office today in preparation for resumption of the public hearings expected tomorrow. One was an elderly woman. Another was a man named Murphy, said to have been a milk driver for the Garrett farm at Hingham.

Grover Moran, former prohibition agent who testified on Friday that John F. Sullivan, Ritz hotel proprietor, told him he had paid $65,000 in police graft, was a visitor at the office.

He talked for a few minutes with State Detective John Stokes, Sidlinger and Nicholas J. Cockinos, the other prisoner brought from Deer Island for the investigation.

The continued presence at the State House of Sidlinger and Cockinos is indication that neither will be taken back to the House of Correction until Warner is finished with them at the hearing.

Search for Jean Parker, alias Josephine Delfino alias Jennie McCabe, indicated by the Federal grand jury in the white slave king, was intensified on orders of Warner today. She is said to hold one key to the police graft situation in its relationship to vice resorts.

It is alleged that she was an independent operator not connected with the organized vice ring and that she was driven out of the South End as a result. Recently she publicly belittled a member of the vice squad.

Late today the cases of five men arrested by prohbiition agents during their raid on the Cotton Club last week were to be heard in federal court, and the attorhey-general's office was greatly interested in the proceedings, particularly with reference to the charges that Boston police at first prevented the federal men from entering the night resort and then beat two of their number.

These charges were expected to be aired in connection with the prosecution and it is known that the breach between police and federal authorities is of importance to the attorney-general in his present inquiry.

In his investigation to date he has encountered at least one other such breach—that growing out of the police raid on the Onlywon pool headquarters while department of justice agents were waiting to make the arrest.

Dan Carroll, Boston fight manager and reported to have a financial interest in the Cotton Club, was back in Boston today but could not be located. At his Dorchester home a colored servant informed a reporter that he was not in the house.

PROBE HI-JACKING

Carroll was understood to have started for California to book matches for Jimmy Maloney when he left Boston last week but it now develops that he was in Baltimore and New York attending fights.

He is said to be prepared to take the stand, if summonsed, and explain why Garrett was examined for insurance in his office, as previously testified. He denied that he left the city to avoid a summons.

By a strange coincidence, the board of appeal on compulsory insurance was to hear today the appeal of Dudley J. Mulrenin from the cancellation of his auto insurance by the New Amsterdam Casualty Co. of Baltimore.

Mulrenin is Garrett's alleged horse-racing friend whose wife was treasurer of the Garrett Pine Grove Dairy Farm incorporation.

Entered as Mulrenin's attorney was William H. Shea, believed to be the same William H. Shea through whom Mrs. Garrett's brother-in-law, Alfred D. Briesenden, twice defied the attorney-general's powers.

Brissenden is due to appear in Supreme Court tomorrow to show cause why a writ compelling him to testify should not be issued.

Warner admits he is probing a report that Garrett hijacked liquor for a bootlegger and that he was in the automobile of Patrolman Jeremiah Sheehan at the time it figured in a triple collision in Copley sq. A trial board found Sheehan guilty of charges but a court found him not guilty or drunken driving and his only punishment was transfer from the liquor squad.

It appears certain that Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson and Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley will take the stand to voice denial of charges that Ritz Hotel graft was paid to persons close to them.

Others who will almost surely be witnesses with resumption of the hearings are Herbert A. Callahan, Garrett's lawyer; Dist. Atty. William J. Foley and his assistant, Frederick T. Doyle, and Sullivan, the Ritz Hotel proprietor.

Much information possessed by witnesses who have already testified has not been brought out publicly—a policy purposely pursued by Warner in his belief that such information should not be read into the public records until he has corroberative evidence that can be introduced with some semblance of continuity.

This means that many witnesses who have already appeared will be recalled.

WINS $100,000 IN WILL SUIT

The will of Mrs. Lora. A. Littlefield of Brookline, in dispute for 10 months, was disallowed today by Judge Joseph R. McCoole in Norfolk Probate Court.

Under terms of the will Maurice J. Mahan of Charlton was left the entire estate of $100,000.

Alfred J. Perkins, postmaster at Atlantic City, a cousin of Mrs. Littlefield, contested the will on the ground that it was a forgery. The estate now reverts to him as next of kin.

Mahan formerly was a farmer, but he gave up his farming to become a chauffeur for Mrs. Littlefield.

During the trial it was testified by experts that the will was drawn on paper not manufactured at the time of her death.

William E. Hingston, handwriting expert, testified that, in his opinion, the signature on the will was made by Mahan himself.

Ryan will join counsel that defended Anderson in an appeal to the full bench of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia for a reprieve or new trial on grounds of insanity.

Evidence will be offered that Anderson was mentally unbalanced for much of his life. Records of court cases, youthful love affairs, unprovoked quarrels and his general waywardness as a child will be produced at the appeal.

Ryan also carries a sworn statement by R. S. Elmer, president of the National Ski Association of America that Anderson lost his amateur status because "his dishonesty in financial matters, thievery and general lawlessness" showed him to be mentally irresponsible.

Alf Halverson of the Nansen Ski Club heads the local committee raising a defense fund. He reported gratifying response from many affiliated ski clubs.

HAWKS GLIDER LINE BREAKS

Tucson, Ariz., March 31 (AP)—Capt. Frank Hawks was forced to return to Tucson Airport today shortly after he took off for El Paso, Tex., in continuation of his transcontinental glider flight. The rope attaching his glider to the tow plane broke.

He arrived over Tucson at 7:25 last night, 10 hours 40 minutes from the time he left San Diego, Cal.

He made two landings—at Yuma, Ariz., to refuel the tow plane and at Phoenix for lunch. The tow plane is piloted by J. D. Jernigan, Jr.

Today's hop called for a refuelling stop at Lordsburg, N. M., en route to El Paso. Other overnight stops will be Tuesday, Sweetwater, Tex.; Wednesday, Tulsa, Okla.; Thursday, East St. Louis, Ill.; Friday, Columbus, O.; Saturday, Buffalo, N. Y.

Hawks expects to arrive over Central Park, New York, Sunday afternoon and to land in Van Cortlandt Park. The tow plane will go on to Roosevelt Field, L. I. The coast-to-coast trip is expected to take 40 flying hours.

DRAG RIVER FOR MISSING GIRL IN MAINE

Search of the Woods Fails to Reveal Any Trace of Pretty Rachel Boles

Calais, Me., March 31—Unsuccessful in their search through the woods, Town Marshal Ernest J[illegible] of St. Stephen, N. B., and his police department began work today of dragging the St. Croix river for the body of Rachel Boles, pretty 21-year-old St. Stephen maid.

The girl vanished Friday night after attending a motion picture show in Calais with a girl friend.

Following the show, Miss Boles and her friend returned to St. Stephen and the friend left her at the foot of Watson Hill, atop which is located the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Harper, where Miss Boles was employed.

According to the girl friend, a car passed her swiftly a short time later on the road to St. Andrew.

Miss Boles did not arrive at the Harper home, but her clothing is still there, undisturbed.

Town Marshal Hill said today that he believed the girl may have eloped, although he could not understand her leaving her possesions behind, including a bank book with a small deposit recorded.

2200 Visit Yard to See "Old Ironsides"

A checkup of visitors to the Boston Navy Yard over the week-end was made by the Marine sentry at the various gates of entrance to the yard, or orders from Rear Admiral Andrews.

It showed there were 800 visitors on Saturday and 1500 visitors yesterday, practically all of whom viewed the old historic frigate Constitution, now berthed at Pier 2A at the yard.

THEFT RING IS REVEALED

To the public official mentioned, the gems were so fascinating that he started a collection of them.

The business of handling stolen diamonds, it was learned, has rivalled the profits of Boston liquor and vice rackets.

In the specific instance brought to the attention of the American and the attorney-general, when the stolen diamonds were turned over to an insurance company it was found that there were four extra stones.

The robbery of these diamonds occurred in a railroad station in another city. There were 1102 pieces in a suitcase, valued at $69,000.

Police and private detectives employed by jewelers searched without avail for the missing stones. Privately it was said that the detectives were persona non grata with the Boston crowd, and for that reason could not get the stolen diamonds.

At length a New York detective agency received a telephone call, in which a man, whose voice was unknown to them and who refused to reveal his identity, asked if they were interested in the missing gems.

The officials of the agency replied that they were, and were then given the name of a person with whom they were advised to get in touch.

In the course of time officials from a jewelers' association and the insurance company which had "covered" the stones visited Boston, stopping at a local hotel.

They telephoned the man named and a meeting was arranged in his office.

He explained that through another person he had learned the whereabouts of the stolen diamonds, and if a reward were offered was confident they could be obtained.

He was careful to point out he knew nothing regarding the theft of the stones, but that his friend, through public spiritedness and honesty, wished to see them returned, for a sufficient remuneration, of course.

The official of the jewelers' association offered the regular reward of $10,000, but this the man indignantly spurned. The stones, he pointed out, were of sufficient value to warrant the payment of a far larger sum.

For some time they haggled over the price, the man named demanding $20,000. But finally a compromise was reached on $18,000. This sum was paid in cash, but not until the agent, to the amazement of the others, had demanded and received $1000 as his fee for conducting the negotiations.

Then the diamonds were delivered to the man from New York and they returned to that city with them.

It was learned later that the stones were stolen by a Boston thief and brought to this city. How much the thief was given for his share was not learned, but it was apparently a small amount, for he was later sent to jail on a minor offence, without having sufficient money to retain counsel. The two members of the gang it was learned are no longer in Boston.

The strangest feature of the whole proceeding is the fact that when the diamonds were counted there were 1106 pieces instead of the 1102, which were stolen.

San Francisco, Oakland and other cities near the Golden Gate have a possession never to be duplicated.

On high hills, to the east and south of the bay, the state has established a park with 9000 acres of magnificent giant redwood trees.

This park, to be perpetually maintained for all the people, is the most magnificent in the world.

Proud man, dressed in a little brief authority, feels small among silent giants.

Even Mussolini, or the original Caesar would have no inclination to say, "how great am I," looking up 360 feet to the top of a tree 5000 years old, still growing, although fire has burned within it, a chamber in which 50 men can stand.

The dark deer, protected, made tame by safety, come from behind a huge tree trunk, to accept your offering. They and the eternally quiet tree giants are in harmony.

Man, with his foolish questions, attaching human names to the giant trees, McKinley, Harding, Fremont, is as much out of place in that forest as he would be in the ocean's depths.

Ours is a marvelous earth dwelling, far too good for those that inhabit it, except the children, spirits of light, and the very old, made humble by life's trials.

You should come to this country.

Better to see a giant tree declaring the glory of God through tens of centuries, than wander off 10,000 miles to see a Taj Mahal, built by sensuality in honor of a dead mistress.

Gloom Hangs Over London; Adams Orders American Admirals Back Home

London, March 31 (AP)—Extreme pessimism over the outcome of the Anglo-French negotiations concerning a security pact was expressed in American conference circles this afternoon. It was generally understood the British and French have virtually reached an impasse.

Secretary of State Stimson visited Foreign Minister Briand of France during the afternoon and expected to see Prime Minister MacDonald this evening. The nature of his discussions with the French foreign minister was not divulged.

French conference circles also were extxremely gloomy late today.

Foreign Minister Briand, however, thus far has declined to put himself on record as being pessimistic.

The difficulty was said to revolve about interpretation of Article 16 of the covenant of the League of Nations which the French want defined to give them concrete guarantees of security in the event they are attacked.

The British and French thus far have been unable to get a definition of the term "aggressor" upon which interpretation of Article 16 must depend.

While there was gloom over the Anglo-French negotiations, the American spokesman said there was still hope a solution of the difficulty might be reached through a Franco-Italian non-aggression pact.

Jacques Dumesnil of the French delegation saw Foreign Minister Grandi during the afternoon and while there was no indication of what they discussed, there was speculation as to whether they were talking over a possible non-aggression treaty.

A sharp repercussion was produced in French headquarters by the statement issued by a British official spokesman in which it was declared absolutely impossible for Great Britain to undertake any further military commitments in connection with the proposed French security pact.

Foreign Minister Briand today indicated disapproval of the issuance of this statement on the grounds that it had been agreed no statement of any kind would be made while the Franco-British negotiations were proceeding.

Adams Orders U. S. Admirals Back Home From the Parley

London, March 31 (AP)—Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, and a member of the United States delegation at the London naval conference, today ordered the return of Rear-Admirals W. A. Moffett, H. E. Yarnell and J. E. Pringle to the United States.

Secretary Adams made the decision after several days of consultation with his colleagues, deciding that sufficient technical work had been done to permit the officers, who had been technical advisers to the delegation, to return home. It has not yet been determined if the services of Rear-Admiral A. J. Hepburn can be dispensed with so he can return with the others.

FIND CARRICK'S NECK BROKEN

With his chief injury revealed by X-ray as a broken neck, Samuel P. Carrick, 57, copy reader for the Boston Evening American and an authority on baseball, was dying today at Somerville Hospital.

He was struck by an automobile in Summer st., Somerville, late last night while on his way to report for work on the night desk of this newspaper.

The automobile was operated, according to police, by Leo L. Murray of Remington st., Cambridge, who took the newspaperman to the hospital.

At Somerville Hospital Carrick was under treatment by Dr. Edgar S. Sewal, who said he was suffering from a fractured spine, a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

At noon Dr. Herbert Howard and Dr. Donald Munroe, spine and brain specialists respectively, were called in on the case by Dr. Sewal for consultation.

Carrick makes his home with his sister, Mrs. Mary C. Thurston of 1 Harvard pl., Somerville.

BOOTLEGS PASS BAD MONEY

Springfield, March 31 (AP) An attempt of a bootleg group to unload counterfeit money given to them in payment for liquor, is said on good authority to be the reason for the large amount of spurious money in circulation here and in other places in New England. Nine arrests have been made. Frank E. (Happy) Roberts, arrested here yesterday, is accused of disposing of counterfeit money. Roberts is being held in bonds of $10,000 for a federal hearing.

A secret service authority said today the counterfeits are believed to have been made in New York.

sired to be on equal terms with us on the seas without paying for it. They desired cheap parity.

"Now, if the Americans want to reap where they have sown, and find the crop barren, we cannot be surprised at their chagrin and annoyance. We have combinations against us in Europe which make it impossible to give them the parity they expected, and blame for the state of mind represented by the Hearst newspapers must be attributed to the expectations which Mr. MacDonald's visit aroused."

Interviewed at his country home, "Wellyn," in Hertfordshire, George Bernard Shaw, famous playwright and England's best known Socialist, said:

"The United States came into this conference of its own free will, and by so doing may be said to be meddling in European affairs.

"Even so, the United States had better leave Mr. MacDonald to manage affairs in his own way. He is not going to betray the United States or anybody else.

"All that George Washington stuff about avoiding foreign entanglements is obsolete and outmoded. What America ought to do is to try to get into as many foreign entanglements as she can, so she will know in advance what to expect when circumstances beyond her control pitch her into them anyway."

PEACE OBJECT

The unofficial uproar and the newspaper protests following the publication of the open letter brought a statement from the British official spokesman at St. James palace.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, head of the Italian delegation, said:

"Mr. MacDonald made Great Britain's views clear. The British view is that Great Britain in the future will do its utmost to improve the machinery, which is already existing, for keeping the world at peace, and will always give her help to any scheme for security against war, and, as far as Britain is concerned, will do everything possible without any further military or naval commitments."

Editorially the Sunday Times says:

"The attempts at giving artificial respiration to the naval conference, which are still going on, will not be helped by the remarkable outburst of the Hearst newapapers in America against Premier MacDonald.

"There are already suggestions that President Hoover does not favor the notion of a consultative pact, and this tirade of the Hearst press may be an attempt to scotch any chances of one as far as that lies in Mr. Hearst's power."

LABOR ORGAN

The Daily Herald, the Labor Government's sole organ, under the headline "Hoover, not Hearst," today will say:

"It is the culmination of an attempt to make further progress in naval disarmament impossible.

"The world needs America at her council table as she needs nobody else. We believe America is willing to respond to that need."

The Daily Express says:

"The Hearst Press in America, in an open letter to Mr. MacDonald, accused the prime minister of unscrupulous trickery towards America.

"Oversensitive souls are afraid that the Hearst letter may torpedo the conference finally. That is hardly likely."

INDIAN SLAYER PUT 'WITCHES' IN GRAVE

Defense Loses Motion to Dismiss "Red Lilac" in the Dramatic Buffalo Murder Trial

Buffalo, N. Y., March 31 (INS)—Motion to dismiss the indictment charging first degree murder against Lila Jimerson, Indian, on trial for the hammer slaying of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, was denied today by Judge Thorn.

"I move dismissal of the indictment on the grounds that the State has failed to prove a homicide against this defendant," said John V. Maloney of the girl's counsel as the first defense move today.

"The State has failed to show that this defendant engaged in a conspiracy with Nancy Bowen to kill Mrs. Marchand," he said.

Judge Thorn promptly denied the motion and then the defense brought forward its first witnesses.

Before the defense opened, the State was permitted to reopen its case to put on two witnesses. Stanley Sobocinski, a druggist, of North Collins, N. Y., testified Lila bought an ounce of chloroform from him. He identified her.

"She gave me the name of Miss L. H. Jameson, age 35 years," the druggist testified. "She said she wanted the chloroform to relieve pain being suffered by a horse."

FATHER GOT CHLOROFORM

Chloroform was used in the killing of Mrs. Marchand, who was beaten with a hammer and chloroformed by Nancy Bowen, an old superstitious Indian friend of the defendant, the State contends.

The other state witness, Frank Schultz, a farmer of Perrysbury, N. Y., testified that on March 5, the day before the killing, Anson Jimerson, Lila's father, also a farmer, came to his place and borrowed a bottle of chloroform.

"I said to Anson, 'Do you want it to kill cats or dogs?'" the witness asserted. "He replied, 'Neither, I want it for salve.'"

The first witness for the defence was Percy W. Darby, a handwriting expert. Darby testified that, in his opinion, the letters written to Nancy Bowen from a non-existant "Mrs. Dooley" were not the work of Lila Jimerson.

BURIED "WITCHES."

Anne Snow, 80, Lila's aunt, was recalled and testified regarding the superstitions of old Nancy Bowen.

"Mrs. Bowen used to make dolls and bury them," she said. "She used to say someone was to be bewitched."

The various witchcraft exhibits, including the rag doll and a crude effigy of the "white witch" in Buffalo, were shown to the jury.

Anne Snow also told of Nancy burying vials of magic potions in graves.

"She dug a hole in the graves and buried the witch things."

"She was burying these dolls so as to do something to this white witch?" asked Dist. Atty. Moore.

CURATOR SMITH RETURNS FROM EGYPT

Museum of Fine Arts Worker Brings Back Group of Paintings Made on the Trip

Joseph Lindon Smith, honorary curator of the Egyptian department at the Museum of Fine Arts, who has just returned to this country following his annual trip to Egypt to observe the museum expedition at work, brings with him a group of notable paintings made during his trip.

The museum has a permanent staff at work in the Sudan. It is the duty of the honorary curator to visit this group each year and report upon the progress made. At present they are engaged in making excavations in forts erected at strategic points by the Egyptians during their days of trading in ivory, peacock feathers and slaves with the Sudanese.

Mr. Smith is an artist of note with considerable reputation for his Egyptian paintings. He completed a number of paintings of excavations during his trip and these, along with some unusual Egyptian landscapes, will be on view at the museum later in the spring.

The museum has, since 1905, also maintained a group of workers at the Royal cemetery in the pyramids in use 6000 B. C. This group has not yet finished its work and was also visited by Mr. Smith during his trip.

Mrs. Hoover Goes Horseback Riding

Washington, March 31 (AP)—Lured by the lovely spring weather, Mrs. Herbert Hoover today rode horseback with several companions over the bridle paths of Potomac Park.

Accompanying her were Mrs. Jeane Large, her sister, and Miss Sue Dyer, guests at the White House, and Major Raymond E. McQuillin, one of the White House military aides. Washington's far famed cherry trees, just unfolding from the bud, were resplendant in the morning sunshine.

Find Bodies of Five Miners, 11 Missing

Kettle Island, Ky., March 31 (AP)—The bodies of five of sixteen miners entombed by an explosion in the Pioneer Coal Co. mine Saturday, were found by rescue workers today nearly two miles from the entrance. The finders had to leave the bodies without identifying them because of dense carbon monoxide gas.

John F. Daniel, chief of the State Department of Mines, said it was a practical certainty that the other 11 miners also are dead.

Edge felt that this was carrying commerce a little too far, and announced he would refuse to be put on exhibition at any price.

BLISS OPPOSES HOLYOKE BANK DEPOSITARY

Northampton Mayor Wants Closed Bank's Funds to Stay in County

In an effort to speed the settlement of the affairs of the Hampshire County Trust Co., which has been closed since an alleged shortage of $285,000 was revealed, Mayor Homer E. Bliss, of Northampton, a director of the First National Bank and the Florence Savings Bank, will visit Boston today to confer with the bank commissioner at the State House.

Mayor Bliss is expected to arrive at noon, and he will be accompanied by Representative Edwin L. Olander.

FUNDS IN COUNTY

The purpose of the mayor's visit is to convince the bank commissioner that either the First National Bank or the Northampton National Bank, and not the Hadley Falls Trust Co., should be the depositary of the funds of the closed bank.

Mayor Bliss has pointed out that the Hadley Falls Trust Co. is in Holyoke, in Hampden County, whereas the other two institutions are in Hampshire County, as is Northampton.

Mayor Bliss believes that the settlement of the bank's affairs will be accomplished more satisfactorily if the Hampshire County Trust Co. funds remain in Hampshire County.

MAYOR ASSAILED

Since the alleged defalcation of Harold R. Newcomb, manager of the savings department of the Hampshire County Trust Co., Mayor Bliss has found himself between two fires.

One faction assails the Mayor roundly for allowing $110,000 of the city 's funds to remain in the bank, and declares that he should have withdrawn the entire amount before the trouble started.

HOLY LAND RIOT NO 'REVOLT'

London, March 31 (AP)—The Palestine commission, which investigated the disorders in Palestine last year, made public its report today, concluding that the outbreak was not intended to be, nor was it a revolt, against British authority in Palestine.

The report recommended that a clear statement of policy by the British government was essential to the good government of Palestine. It was recommended that such a statement be made with the least possible delay.

"It is important," the report stated, "that the government should make clear they intend to give full effect to that policy with all the resources at their command."

Among the general conclusions of the commission was the statement that the outbreak in Jerusalem on August 23, 1929, was from the beginning an attack by the Arabs on the Jews for which no excuse, in the form of earlier murders by the Jews, had been established. At the same time the commission said the outbreak was not premeditated.

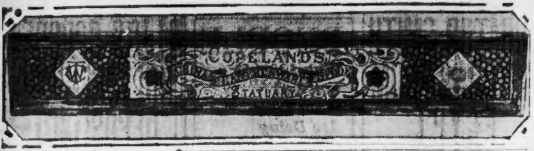
DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 59



The picture printed today shows an old sign which hung many years ago in a Boston store. Its makeup is unusual. The sign is in decorated porcelain, encased in an old wooden frame. The wording is as follows:

"Copeland's China, Earthenware, Spode, Statuary." On the left is a medallion with the monogram of the famous Copeland firm of English potters, and on the right is another medallion with the letter "C." The floral decorations and lettering are hand painted, and burnt under glaze.

The word "Spode" apparently refers to a type of earthernware perfected by Josiah Spode, who was born in 1733 and entered the service of the Copeland factory at Stokes-on-Trent in 1765. Spode is responsible for the invention of greatly improved methods in the art of pottery-making, and his products flourished from 1765 to 1865.

The sign, which is probably over 100 years old, was unearthed in an old downtown business structure which was pulled down a few years ago. It is now in the office of Samuel Williams at 687 Washington st., Boston.

THE NEW HAVEN R.R.

LIGHT where you want it

In too many homes furniture arrangement is decided, not so much by personal desires as by the location of electric outlets.

The davenport goes here, the easy chair there, because there HAPPENS to be an outlet that can be reached by the lamp cords. Perhaps the piano, another easy chair, and the table by the window, of necessity, are left in semi-darkness—or reached by extension cords, run festoonlike over doors and mouldings.

A few new electric outlets in your home will cost relatively little, and will add much to the convenience of your electrical system. They MODERNIZE your wiring, and enable you to rearrange your furniture and decorate with lamps, in complete accord with MODERN ideas.

- Consult your local electrician for advice on the placing of additional electric outlets, and for an estimate of the cost.

Curiosity to know where lies the easiest road to beauty—and so it was curiosity that led me to find one of the most delightful places in town for luncheon — tea — or dinner—

At Nan's Kitchen

I've just come from the most delightful luncheon — I'm going back for dinner—and if you ever miss me again, Anne—just look for me in Nan's Kitchen —for I've never tasted such heavenly food! One taste of their Maryland Fried Chicken will convince you that every Mammy song written is true. One whiff of their waffles—and you'll understand why Nan's patrons have been clamoring for waffles and—walking a mile for them—for the last eleven years. Many brides-to-be announce their engagements there, for charming private luncheons can be arranged at a very reasonable charge, and many bridge-playing matrons entertain there. Every Wednesday evening Nan entertains with the most amusing—and entirely informal cabaret. Dinners are 85 cents to $1.50. Luncheons are a la carte. Nan's Kitchen, 30 Huntington Ave. Open from 11:30 A. M. to 7:45 P. M.

Out Go Spots and Stains!

Banished are wrinkles! Revived are weary coats and dresses! Rejuvenation! By the Public Service Cleansers at $1! Their new process of cleansing and pressing puts back the life, the lustre, and the swank your togs have lost in the wearing, and whether the garment you wish to have cleaned is knife pleated of cobwebby material, or a suit of four pieces, the charge does not increase—it is always $1. Dyeing is their specialty, and they guarantee satisfaction at their low price of $2.50. They have also opened a new $1 Hosiery Department. And I have never seen such beautiful all-silk chiffon stockings at $1 as they carry. All French heels, and sleek fitting, in gorgeous new spring shades. Beige Clair is lovely. Service weight stockings also at $1 are marvelous. Public Service Cleansers, 59 Temple Place, Rm. 703. Tel. Lib. 4198.

There Is Nothing

like being prepared — whether for spring — or a permanent wave—and if you start in now to have a few hot oil treatments your hair will be in such excellent condition that it simply can't help "taking" a beautiful permanent. Hot oil treatments have such a way of loosening dandruff, and giving the hair a lovely soft sheen that everyone ought to take advantage of the wonderful feature at the Houghton & Dutton Beauty Shoppe Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. A hot oil, a shampoo, and any kind of a wave you wish, all for $1.50—instead of the regular price of $2.50 Inecto Notox hairdye applied by their experts will change your age to youth, and help hold your place in the business world. Hair cuts, plain, 50 cents; windblowns, 75 cents; manicures, 40 cents.

Roguish Eyes

that peep from under the brim of an Easter Bonnet can be kept bright and sparkling if they are protected against the irritating dust and germs that the Spring breezes blow about. And the best protection is a daily wash with Cheney's wonderful Eye Bath. A tiny aluminum eye cup comes with each bottle, which helps to give your eyes a real bath, washing out every bit of dust, and clearing them of inflammation. It is so cooling and soothing that it's just what you need when your eyes are tired after using them all day. It gives a wonderful "wide-awake" feeling — too — and a clear, starry sparkle to your eyes. Cheney's Eye Bath is priced at 50 cents a bottle, and you may buy it at G. S. Cheney Co., 15 Union St. By mail it is 60 cents.

We've Read Books

"What to Do in Embarrassing Moments"—and "What to Do When the Cook Leaves"—but I don't believe we've ever before known "what to do until you get to your favorite beauty shop." And so this week Filene's is having Elsie Pierce, the famous Beautician from New York come to give a series of lectures on the home care of the complexion. I'll give you just a hint of some of the beauty secrets she'll reveal to you, and I'm sure you'll be anxious to attend the lectures to learn the rest. First of all, Elsie Pierce firmly believes that with three fundamental creams you can make your skin beautiful, and keep it in perfect condition. And these creams, are, of course, a good cleanser. Elsie Pierce's is priced $1, and not only removes dirt from the surface, but penetrates into the pores. Then her marvelous Neroli ($1.50) which refines the pores, and is so stimulating and refreshing your skin tingles with exhilaration. Her Preserving Cream, which is to be kneaded in the face and neck molds the contour into firm lines. Elsie Pierce will tell you—not only which creams to use—but how to use them—which is really the most important thing. She'll tell you how to give yourself a "home facial." She'll tell you how to put on your make-up for an unexpected dinner date so that your skin will be perfectly ravishing. She'll tell you how to make your "dream of Beauty come true!" These lectures will be held Monday and Tuesday at 12:30 and 3:30 in Filene's Gift Store. All other days, the lectures will be at 12:30 only—and there is no charge!

Better Than a Spring Tonic

—is a visit to the new apparel salon of the Great Scott Furriers, New England's Largest Fur Establishment, 69 Summer St. Just note how that "tired feeling" vanishes as you view case after case of new Spring dresses—suits, topcoats, and fur scarfs! The Great Scott Furriers' entire second floor is just a-bloom with gaily colored Print, Georgette and Crepe frocks priced but $9.95 and $16.50. Suits in the newest and smartest models are moderately priced from $16.50 up to $49.50, while most intriguing topcoats and "dress" coats, plainly tailored or richly furred, range in prices from $16.50 up to $65. The spring suit is invariably affiliated with the fur scarf, a sort of 1930 Damon and Pythias attachment between these two—one is rarely seen without the other. At the Great Scott Furriers, you will find an unusually extensive line of fur scarfs featuring all the best shades of fox or wolf priced from $15 to $195. In choosing any of this feminine Spring apparel, you may have your choice of any one of the three Scott ways of buying:—pay cash, if you wish, open a charge account—or make small weekly or monthly payments while wearing your spring outfit by joining the famous Scott Unique Fur Club, the only one in New England. All of the Great Scott Furriers' New England stores, 69 Summer St., Boston, 309 Westminster St., Providence, and 51 Pratt St., Hartford, are open every evening until 9 o'clock for your convenience, at the "Sign of the Climbing Leopard."

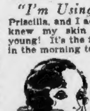
A Dress Without Cost!

Your Easter Shopping can be made quite profitable for you this year, if you'll just keep your eyes peeled for dresses that you can duplicate at the same prices as seen at the New York Dress Mfg. Co.—for if you can find one—they will give you a dress without cost. Their dresses are marvels at $3.75 and $6.75, made to sell for three or four times as much. Even I, a veteran shopper, wonder how they can offer such darling styles at such low prices. The best of prints—all silk ones, top. The gayest of flowered georgettes and chiffons. Even two and three piece wool suits are included in their wonderful values. There are over 1500 frocks in sizes from 14 to 50. The New York Dress Mfg. Co. offers plenty of sales service. 515 Washington St., 2nd floor (near West).

Dainty Women Abhor

any suggestion of masculinity. Why, Kathie even blushed when I suggested that she have the bristly little hairs that grow around her lips removed by the electric needle. These treatments have become such an every-day affair that we include them in our beautifying—just like waves and manicures. And the favorite place to have these annoying superfluous hairs removed seems to be our electric needle specialist, Miss Elizabeth Sparkes. She has the recommendation of physicians, and has given such satisfaction to her patrons that her fame has spread. Such sure, capable hands—and such absorbing attention! Miss Sparkes' prices are quite reasonable, and you may consult her without obligation. She is at 120 Tremont St., Rm. 334. Tel. Han. 7592.

"I'm Using Virozol,



Priscilla, and I adore it! I never knew my skin could feel so young! It's the first thing I use in the morning to wake my skin up and the last thing I use at night to cleanse and soothe it!" And what a cleanser it is! It removes so much dirt and grime that your cleansed tissues really embarrass you. It whitens the skin too, and is wonderful for the neck, which sometimes becomes discolored. Then its wonderful tingling sensation that tells you your circulation is being stirred up to give you a rosy glow! Virozol Swedish Face Bath ($1.25) when used with Virozol Swedish Almond Cream ($1) is a complete beauty treatment. The Virozol preparations, winners of the Paris Grand Prize for Purity and Efficiency, are sold by Chandler & Co.

"I Want a Hat!

a smart—good-looking hat—one that will fit my head!" demanded Mildred, today, Anne—so I took her up to Blanche's—and sat watching while this perfect wizard fitted and flared, tucked and pinned a Baku hood to her head. And when she finished, it was the best looking hat I've seen this season—so entirely different from the average spring bonnet! Mildred was thrilled, and is taking one or two last season's hats to Blanche for remodeling, for really, you can't imagine how completely she disguises a dilapidated hat with her clever touches. She is truly an artist of hats, and her prices for molding new hats range from $6.50 to $24, and for remolding, she charges according to the amount of work required. Blanche Hats, Rm. 907, Dexter Bldg., 453 Washington St.

To Give the Spring

season a start—Lillian Cunningham offers the low price of $10 for all permanent wave appointments made during the month of April. You may choose your own method of the four best known—Frederics, Bonat, Nestle—or the exclusive Eugene, which is the method careful women select, and is usually much higher priced. Lillian Cunningham has had 20 years' experience in hairdressing—and gives perfectly beautiful waves. One of her customers came all the way from New York last week—especially for a permanent! Lillian Cunningham offers unusual entertainment free of charge, while you are having beautifying done, and has Mme. Frances, the famous palmist, there to read your palm. Lillian Cunningham, 561 Boylston St. Tel. Back Bay 9069.

"And Now, My "Anne,

I'm going to tuck away my typewriter, and say "Good night"—but not until I've said that I'll have time for only two more letters to you before Easter—two letters just crammed full of the best buys I can possibly find in smart Spring toggery. So watch for them, my Anne—and until then—

Devotedly yours,

Priscilla

SPRING DIET IS SERVED UP TO CONGRESSMEN

Washington, March 31 (AP)—A daily "dietary platter," an entirely new thing under the old Capitol dome, has leaped into popularity in the House of Representatives dining room.

Many a health-seeking member of Congress orders regularly for lunch this menu of what's good for brain workers in the sluggish days of spring.

Dr. J. W. Calver, the House physician, originated it, and Steward Frank George made room for it on his daily menu card. The chef now prepares 50 dietary platters per day to meet the demand.

"Mould of tomato aspic with vegetables (raw carrots, raw cabbage, chopped small) rye toast, Philadelphia cream cheese, baked apples, choice of drinks."

The drinks dispensed with the platter are weak tea with one lump of sugar and lemon, equal parts of boiling hot milk and coffee, and plain milk or buttermilk.

Cup custards, celery, brocoli, beets, tomatoes, string beans, and especially spinach are prominent on the menus.

Dr. Calver explained that representatives asked him what they ought to eat in the springtime, and he decided to save them the trouble of groping through the entire menu by grouping the items of a balanced and easily digested luncheon. His wife, who is much interested in dietetics, helps him.

"It is proving an interesting experiment in psychology, as well as in health," said Dr. Calver.

SIGNS BILL FOR 230 MILLIONS

Washington, March 31 (AP)—President Hoover today signed the Keyes-Elliott bill authorizing the appropriation of $230,000,000 for public buildings.

Half of the amount is to be alloted to public buildings throughout the country; the other half is for the District of Columbia building program.

The funds now authorized will increase the nation-wide expenditures from $25,000,000 annually to $35,000,000 and the annual District allotment from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

To Quiz Winner of Fatal College Bout

Philadelphia, March 31 (AP)—The coroner's office today awaited reply to a request that William Struble, Pennsylvania State College boxer, come to Philadelphia for questioning in connection with the death of Oliver Horne, University of Pennsylvania boxing captain.

Horne died Saturday of pneumonia, which developed after he had been operated on for removal of a blood clot. Horne and Struble met in a three round bout in the intercollegiate championships here March 22. Horne was knocked down twice and the day after the match was sent to a hospital.

Seek Bootleg Rings in Paralysis Cases

Washington, March 31 (INS)—Vigorous prosecution of the bootleg rings responsible for distribution of the "sheep dip cocktail," which produced several epidemics of paralysis over the country, was promised today by Prohibition Commissioner James M. Dorah.

Special agents have been sent from Washington by Doran to cooperate with regular field forces, in an effort to round up the criminal elements responsible for distribution of the fake Jamaica ginger beverages.

Employment Show Increase in Nation

New York, March 31—Unemployment was at its peak in January and began readjustment in February, according to an analysis of 1000 replies to a questionnaire sent out by the New York Board of Trade.

The questionnaire was sent out to determine the extent of unemployment here and the replies showed conditions on the mend.

Fire Truck Knocked Out by Woman's Car

Worcester, March 31—Search was under way today for an unidentified woman whose car rammed Chemical 1 yesterday and put it out of commission.

The fire truck was turning from West st. into Highland st. when struck by the woman's car, which was on the wrong side of the road.

The Important Reason

FATS and oils are not digested like starches or proteins, they must first be emulsified in the body before they can be utilized as nourishment is pure cod-liver oil scientifically emulsified—prepared for easy and rapid digestion, just as Nature provides emulsified fat in milk.

This is the important reason why the cod-liver oil you take—should be emulsified—should be Scott's Emulsion.

FLIER ESCAPES ON LAST RUN

Warren, O., March 31 (AP)—The hoodoo of the "last run" nearly got Harry A. Seivers, air mail pilot, but he beat it by a narrow margin, and today was one of the few fliers to have twice qualified for membership in the Caterpillar Club.

Making his last trip on the Cleveland-Pittsburgh route yesterday, he barely escaped with his life when a snow squall forced him to take to his parachute when ice formed on the wings and the ship went out of control at an altitude of 2000 feet.

Seivers tried to jump at once, but the spin prevented him from breaking away until he was only 200 feet from the ground. He hit hard and was knocked unconscious. The plane was wrecked, but the mail was saved and sent on by train. Seivers first qualified for the Caterpillar Club in October, when he "stepped over the side" near Beaver Falls, Pa.

Bride Disturbed by Bootlegs Traps Them

Woodbridge, N. J., March 31 (AP)—Because the rumble of trucks passing in the dead of night disturbed the sleep of a bride, seven men were under arrest today and authorities were in possession of liquor valued at $20,000.

Acting on her tip, Inspector Samuel Polak followed a motorboat until it docked at Keasbey, N. J. There he found 20 men unloading the craft and a motor truck waiting for the cargo. All but seven of the men escaped. The motor boat got away.

Huge Oil Gusher Finally Shut in

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 31 (AP)—The giant No. 1 Mary Sudik oil well in the South Oklahoma City field was under control today after having spouted thousands of barrels of petroleum over the surrounding territory since last Wednesday. The Indian Territory Illuminating Oil Company, owner of the well, announced that the well was choked in last night.

Jap Statesman Near Death

Tokyo, March 31 (AP)—Anxiety was felt today for the condition of Prince Saionji, last survivor among the "elder statesmen" of the Shogun days. He has pneumonia.

Boat Upsets, 10 Drown

Vienna, March 31 (AP)—Advices here from Orchrida, Jugo Slavia, said that a motorboat upset on the lake there yesterday brought death by drowning to 10.

'GAG' ON TARIFF LOOMING IN HOUSE

Washington, March 31 (AP)—A prediction that the Republican leaders in the House would force a "gag rule" when the tariff bill is considered, was made today by Representative Ragon of Arkansas a Democratic member of the ways and means committee

Taking the floor as the Republican leaders sought to clear the way for consideration of the tariff, the Arkansas member declared that the Republican leadership was "so saturated with Grundyism that it has not the proper sympathy with the interests of the agricultural people of the country."

He said that the "Four Horsemen" of the tariff bill would not permit a consideration of the Senate measure in the House, and pleaded for an aggressive minority to set a course on rates and administrative features on which votes may be taken. This, he said, "will inspire the confidence of the sensible and unselfish agriculturalists and industrialists."

He enumerated the "Four Horsemen" as Speaker Longworth, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, Republican floor leader, whom he called first lieutenant; Chairman Snell of the rules committee, whom he termed second lieutenant, and Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee, whom he described as "first sergeant."

Ragon read parts of a letter from the National Grange which said the tariff bill as passed by the Senate fell short "of placing agriculture on a basis of equality with industry, as was promised in the last presidential campaign."

House Leaders Fail to Agree on Tariff

Washington, March 31 (AP)—For the third time House Republican leaders failed today to reach an agreement upon a plan of procedure for consideration of the tariff bill before sending it to the conference with the Senate.

Another meeting of the steering and rules committee group was called for later in the day, when it was predicted an arrangement satisfactory to all groups within Republican ranks would be formulated.

Those Scientific Boys Win Another Big Victory

Berlin, March 31 (AP)—A nicotineless tobacco leaf which produces both salad oil and cigars will be exhibited in the Travelling Fair. Although attempts have been made to extract the nicotine from tobacco, it was believed here that this would be the first exhibit of tobacco grown without nicotine.

The salad oil is said to be of fine flavor and the nicotineless cigars to have a pleasant aroma.

MGR. SPLAINE LECTURES ON ST. FRANCIS

St. Francis of Assisi was the subject of an address by Monsignor Michael J. Splaine, rector of the St. Mary of the Assumption Church, Brookline, during the Catholic Truth hour over Station WNAC.

"The poor little man of Assisi," after 700 years, continues to lift the heart of the world, and to give mankind his rare gift of sympathy so all-embracing that he has been called "everybody's St. Francis," said Monsignor Splaine.

He described the life of the founder of the Franciscan Monks, the Franciscan Sisterhood and the Order of Tertiary.

"This seraphic Saint of God, has been described as the passionate lover of God. This love of God in the heart of Francis impelled him to do his utmost to identify himself with God and to realize in his own person, so far as possible, the image of Jesus Christ.

"His coming marked the close of an age singularly materialistic and the beginning of a new age of religious ferver, a second beginning of Christianity."

DRY? MODIFY? REPEAL?

Boston American Prohibition Forum—$500 in Weekly Prizes

Lynn Man Wins $100 First Prize for His Repeal Letter

"GETS AT HEART OF ISSUE," SAYS JUDGE IN DECISION

To a Lynn man, Michael F. Richardson, 909 Western ave., goes the first $100 prize awarded by the Boston Evening American for the best letters submitted in this newspapers' open forum on the prohibition question.

Richardson has been awarded the first prize on the repeal side of the issue from the thousands of letters submitted. Winners of the first week's three other prizes on the repeal side are also announced today. Second prize of $25 on this side goes to J. Robert Ayres, 180 Hancock st., Everett.

Third prize, $15, goes to a woman, Mary L. McGovern, 16 Chestnut st., Woburn.

Fourth prize, $10, also goes to a woman, Mrs. Margaret A. Sweeney, 2 Walnut st., Roxbury.

WOMEN INTERESTED

Women are taking an intense interest in the forum, as is shown by the great number of letters received from them.

Other prize winners for the first week will be announced day by day during this week. Meantime thousands of new letters are piling in, eligible for the second week's prize distributions. A total of $500 is given away each week, as is shown by the announcement printed each day on this page.

All letters printed are eligible to prizes, but the fact that a letter is printed does not guarantee that it will be awarded a prize.

The voting referendum, by means of the coupon printed each day in the American, is progressing rapidly. The first figures will be announced in the next day or two.

GOES TO THE HEART

"That $100 check from the Boston Evening American for my letter on why I want to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment is the most money I ever made in a single half hour in my life.

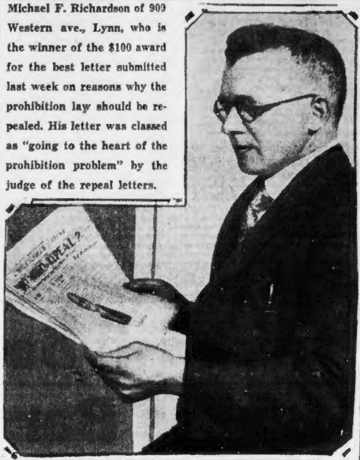
This was the first comment of Richardson when informed that his essay had won one of the first prizes.

Richardson's letter was classed as "going to the heart of the prohibition problem" by the judge, who is Julian Codman, counsel of the Constitutional Liberty League.

The letter was written one night while Mrs. Richardson was sick with the grip. She did not know of her husband's literary effort until the announcement was made to Richardson that he was the first week's winner of the first prize on the repeal side of the question.

Richardson is an accountant in business for himself at 262 Washington st., Boston. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Elks.

Speaks Out His Mind



Michael F. Richardson of 909 Western ave., Lynn, who is the winner of the $100 award for the best letter submitted last week on reasons why the prohibition lay should be repealed. His letter was classed as "going to the heart of the prohibition problem" by the judge of the repeal letters.

This Letter Wins $100 Prize

By MICHAEL F. RICHARDSON
909 Western ave., Lynn

PROHIBITION is inherently wrong. History proves that. Attempts at moral reform by legislation always failed.

It is not necessary to delve into history—common sense and current experience bear out my assertion. There are laws against crime, but crime goes on. Yet, on the other hand, many people live decent, honest, honorable lives regardless of the existence of laws. They live such lives, because in childhood there was around them an influence of respect for law and authority, and that influence was later supplemented by proper education.

To me the fundamental idea of our government was to give the citizen the fullest liberty consistent with the rights of others. Title was given to pursue life, liberty and happiness according to one's own ideas, provided that in so doing there was no conflict with the rights of others. Therefore, anything that operates to deny a citizen this fundamental privilege is at least un-American, if not criminal.

Our national ills, disrespect for law, unfaithfulness of public servants and conditions bordering on anarchy in some of our large cities, are surely due to prohibition—a national wrong. The remedy is repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

This Letter Wins $25 Prize

By J. ROBERT AYERS
180 Hancock st., Everett

ALTHOUGH I have never taken a drink of intoxicating liquor in my life, I am in favor of absolute repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment for one specific reason: it is unenforceable.

in the first place, it cannot be enforced because it imposes a centralized system over a country whose citizens refuse to adhere to it. History has shown that it is impossible to impose a uniform standard, regardless of local opinion, over a nation having a large area of every known nationality, of different customs, religion and ideals.

The fall of all the great nations of the world has been due to the attempted centralization of power respecting people of that type. The nation must have regard for localized opinion, even though it be in the minority. This was the cause of England losing her American colonies—she tried to enforce her measures without considering the local opinion in America and lost her valuable possessions. A too rigid standard cannot be imposed without causing popular resentment, political demoralization and a disrespect for the law.

In the second place, if a minority of the states, no matter how few, do not want prohibition, the rest cannot make them. That is, the government could never make the Northern States obey the fugitive slave law, nor could they make the Southern States give the Negro his rights.

I AM in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, not because the amendment is an infringement of personal liberty, but because it is the engenderer of rum-running, racketeering and "on the spot" gun-men. The greed for the enormous profits of this illegal liquor trafficking is the cause of the tremendous crime wave that has swept the country. It is the reason for the being of such men as "Scarface" Al Capone, and the underlying cause for such a probe as the Boston Garrett case.

The Eighteenth Amendment has not cured the country of its desire for liquor nor its determination to have it at any cost—as exemplified by the success of hundreds of "speak-easies."

The manufacture and legitimate sale of good liquor in this country would mean employment for hundreds of the millions of unemployed men—that most serious situation of today. The repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would not necessarily mean the return of such scenes as the "face on the barroom floor," for whether it be good or "poison," legitimate or not, a "sot" will always be a "sot."

We are an intelligent nation and need no law thrust upon us that cannot prove its worth.

I FAVOR repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment because prohibition does not prohibit. Prohibition does not make for true temperance. Temperance is a voluntary act of self-control—men cannot be legislated into it. Temperance is an achievement—a desired result—that makes for clean, wholesome living, but the Eighteenth Amendment cannot turn intemperate men and women into temperate. They must first learn that intemperance carries its own punishment with it and that it behooves them to be temperate or take the consequences.

Nevertheless, I favor the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. I would give men and women the chance to "take it" or leave it alone. For like love and laughter and literature, a drink of good liquor helps, at times, to "roll the stone away" from the human heart.

CALLS DRY LAW A FARCE

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

Certainly the opinion of any man with his eyes and ears open, can only be against this farce called prohibition? The Noble Experiment, indeed! It has, indeed, shown that the few morons with a desire for his labor and a "Slave Owner's" rule over the poorer classes, are willing to loose their purse strings, and their "super" opinions for the suppression of the "Demon Rum." The legislating of habit upon a once free people can never be successful—or be enforced as long as human nature remains as we have made it.

WOULD ENFORCE LAW

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I am in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment; the work in the United States has been increased tremendously since the prohibition act.

The poisonous liquor that the people drink today causes insanity and deformities; such cases are frequent. We have now with us the younger element, under the age of 21, purchasing liquor. It is easy to obtain it as their are so-called "kitchen barrooms," where it is manufactured and sold; in fact, it is sold everywhere in the Union.

The problem of intelligent enforcement is of three-fold nature. First, transportation of liquor must be prevented from other countries. If importation is stopped that would relieve us from that much work. Second, the elimination of "moonshine manufacturing" in each and every state in the Union, and third, the curtailing and preventing of the illegal sale and distribution of liquor at the various points and places in the different cities in the Union. Work of this kind would be possible if the federal government would co-operate with the police in every city, town, etc. The federal government would remain the only one to prosecute certain violations of the national prohibition act.

With co-operation there is no doubt but that the prohibition law will be enforced to a degree that it was not in the past, and co-operation with police forces will bring prohibition to success and to where the people want, but the most important thing is we must have also the courts with us in order to succeed. What I mean by that is whenever a policeman has a liquor case in court and the defendant found guilty is to give him the maximum punishment. PETER J. HARITOS.

229 Bennington st., East Boston.

MOTHER IS "DRY"

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

There can be no doubt in the minds of the decent law abiding citizens of the United States that prohibition is best for the country.

I do not believe that so many speakeasies and drinking dives exist, as the ardent wets would have us believe.

Where such speakeasies do exist the majority of men are not so anxious to take a chance drinking the poison liquor served there.

I have often heard some of the older generation speak of women frequently being seen in saloons in large numbers. One rarely sees an intoxicated woman on the streets nowadays. There are no saloons on every corner to tempt a working man to spend his hard earned and eagerly awaited salary.

As the mother of three growing boys, I say let our motto be Prohibition Forever.

MRS. L. D.,

For Repeal

DRY LAW ENRICHES CRIMINALS

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

My strongest argument against prohibition is the fact that with it came the bootlegger, a lawbreaker who supplies our drinking faction (which, by the way, has grown tenfold since prohibition) with bootleg whiskey.

These bootleggers are deriving large sums of money due to the Eighteenth Amendment. When saloons were prevalent this country obtained a goodly sum through saloon license tax. Now that money, and more, too, is finding its way into the bootleggers' pockets; and surely Uncle Sam can do more good with that income than these lawbreakers.

We have found out much to our sorrow that a man who wants drink always seems to be able to find it. And we are also facing the problem of our drinking youth—some mere school boys and girls. These bootleggers show no discretion; they sell their wares to anyone who has the price. One may say that these buyers of bootleg "stuff" know the chance they are taking when they drink it—let them pay the price. But, nevertheless, we cannot get away from the fact that the young generation of today is our "future America."

Then, too, I really believe that if this country had breweries they could put to work a number of these unemployed men of today. I should think that the stories of graft, which are filling our papers today, show that prohibition is just one grand and expensive joke. MISS CECELIA F. SHERR.

P. O. Box 1075, Maynard, Mass.

For Modification

LAW MAKES CRIMINALS

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I am of the opinion it is now time that the Eighteenth Amendment should be modified, or repealed entirely. Prohibition has been on the statute books for years and has proved itself a failure. Which is one reason why it should be changed.

The law "forbids" liquors of all kinds—yet "grocers" are permitted to sell malts of all brands, etc., for use. One makes "home brew" because his or her neighbors has such good luck, thereby becoming in the sense of the Eighteenth Amendment a lawbreaker. Any law which makes criminals is a wrong law.

Modification of the present law would mean fewer high salaried men now employed by the government to help enforce this law. Lessening the flask habit forming in our youths.

Placing the bootlegger on the path of honest work.

Saving the lives of those who foolishly insist upon drinking any poisonous substance they can get.

In the case of sickness, when a person requires a stimulant, he should not be obliged to pay a doctor's fee to obtain a prescription, then pay the druggist his outrageous price. A case like this oftentimes makes a law-abiding citizen patronize the bootlegger. MRS. L. C.

Dover, N. H.

CHARGES LAW TAKES STATE RIGHTS

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

This letter is based on modification of the 18th Amendment. This law is too drastic inasmuch as it takes away States' rights, and the liberty of the people within those States. No sane person wants the return of the old-time saloon that the bone-drys speak of so much. But they do want a place where light wines and beer could be dispensed.

SOLUTION:

Congress to adopt Congresswoman Norton's plan of each State having a referendum on the question.

Each State that votes for light wines and beer to have the right to define the alcoholic contents. Each city and town which, by a vote of its people wish to dispense light wines and beer may do so under the supervision of a State board of control. Hard liquors to be dispensed under government control and only in cities of 15,000 or more population.

No one but a resident of the State to be able to purchase hard liquor and only in a moderate specified amount for home consumption and medicinal purposes.

By doing this we would make it unprofitable for the bootleggers and therefore put him out of business.

PHILIP J. SHEA.
145 North st., Randolph, Mass.

LAW'S MANY EVILS

Editor of Prohibition Opinion:

I favor the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Because it is the most unjust law ever written in our constitution, only to serve the political gang.

This law is the cause of the downfall of many respectable citizens, who have become lawbreakers and criminals.

It is the cause of the ruin of the health of many people, and filling our insane asylums and causing blindness to thousands, and how many of poor innocent children will be born or become blind by the abuse of drinking poisoned booze or home brew.

It has created a very bad precedent, for most homes now manufacture some kind of alcohol, for which our young generation will suffer many years hence, and it has been the ruin of many young girls.

It has caught most of our police departments, all over the country, to protect the higher-ups, and share in the millions of graft, for the protection of bootleggers, and vice rings. Many bankers have joined the corruption by financing the big rum dealers.

The unenlightened woman who still suffers every month, receives little sympathy when she could so easily end those pains with Midol. This merciful medicine is not a narcotic, you know. Nor does it interfere in the slightest with the periodic process peculiar to feminine nature. It does banish the pain—in five to seven minutes. Because it acts directly on organs affected. If taken ahead of time, you may avoid a single uncomfortable moment. Try to realize what a truly wonderful discovery this is; it has made at least one form of suffering quite needless. When every drugstore has these harmless tablets isn't it foolish to be a martyr? Midol costs fifty cents, in metal case.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

Bridal Preparations Interest Many

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE H. WATERMAN OF Hammond st., Chestnut Hill, are announcing the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Louise Waterman, to Anthony Morris Carey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Morris Carey of Baltimore, Md. Miss Waterman made her debut in the season of 1924-25 and is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club. Mr. Carey was graduated in 1922 from Princeton, where he was a member of the Cap and Gown Club. He is a member of the Baltimore Club and the Bachelors' Cotillion of that city.

THE ENGAGEMENT OF MISS NATALIE WALDO to Warren Brown Koehler of Boston is announced by her mother, Mrs. Getchen H. Waldo of Chestnut Hill. Miss Waldo was graduated from the Beaver Country Day School and is now at Vassar College. She is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club. Mr. Koehler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Koehler of Chicago. He attended the Asheville school, also the University of Wisconsin, class of 1926, and the Harvard Law School, class of 1929. He is now with Houghton-Mifflin Co. of Boston. No date has been set for the wedding.

AT THE JUNIOR LEAGUE conference to be held in New York April 29 to May 2, for which the New York Junior League is hostess, many socially prominent New York matrons will entertain the visiting members. Mrs. Vincent Astor will have the Region 1 group at a dinner party which will be attended by Mrs. Lyon Weyburn, regional director, and Mrs. John T. J. Clunie, arts and interests chairman for Region 1. Other prominent hostesses will be Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Harold I. Pratt, Mrs. Charles Sabin and Mrs. Edgar Leonard.

At the Junior League Conference to be held in New York next month, Mrs. Vincent Astor will entertain the members of region one at dinner. Mrs. Lyon Weyburn of Marlborough st., Boston, is director for region one and a director of the national board.

Miss Jean Cotton Will Wed May 10

MISS JEAN COTTON, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederic J. Cotton of Beacon st., who is to wed Romilly F. Humphries, Jr., has announced plans for her wedding, which is to take place on May 10 at San Rocco on the Severn river, in Waterbury, Md., the country estate of Miss Cotton's parents. She will have as her maid-of-honor Miss Roccena Baldwin of St. Louis, Mo., daughter of L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad, and a niece, Miss Sally Whitall of Washington, D. C., is to be flower-girl. Floyd Humphries, brother of the prospective bridegroom, is to be best man. The corps of ushers is yet to be chosen. There will be a reception after the ceremony. Mr. Humphries and his bride will reside in Brooklandville, in the Green Spring Valley of Maryland.

DR. AND MRS. COTTON ANNOUNCED Miss Jean's engagement last November. She attended the Winsor school of Boston and also St. Timothy's in Catonsville, Md. Miss Cotton has given much time to the study of art, especially to mural decoration. She made a social debut in Boston and also in Baltimore, where she was presented at the Bachelors' Cotillon, Mr. Humphries served with the 29th Division in France, in the World War.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM PHILLIPS are due soon to arrive in Boston from a Mediterranean trip of several months, the greater part of which time has been spent in Egypt on the Nile. Following their stay there, they have been in Italy and Belgium with a brief stay in England. They are to live permanently in Boston, spending their summers at Highover, their place at North Beverly.

Junior League Plans for 'Art Exhibition

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE'S REGIONAL arts and interests exhibition will be held at the Museum of Fine Arts on Wednesday and Thursday, April 9 and 10. Mrs. John T. J. Clunie is in charge of this unusual exhibition, which will gather together the specialists from every league in New England. There will also be a consignment of articles from Montreal. Mrs. Carleton Richman is acting as Mrs. Clunie's assistant. Junior League girls will be in attendance. Water-colors, oils, pen and ink drawings, pastels and crayons, jewelry, weaving, bookbinding, embroidery and hand-painted furniture will be among the articles shown. Philanthropic activities will be explained in the Welfare class which will include pictures of convalescent homes and nurseries, as well as examples of braille and occupational therapy. Marionettes, stage sets and costume design comprise the division of theatrical arts. Garden Club members are particularly enthusiastic about the class in plants and planting.

Three More Girls Join Engaged Group

RECENT ENGAGEMENTS from out of town are numerous. From Worcester comes the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woolsey Ewell of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Millicent, to James Paget Whittall. Miss Ewell attended Miss Hall's school in Pittsfield and the Wheeler school in Providence. She made her social debut in 1929 and is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Whittall is a graduate of St. Mark's and of Harvard, class of 1925. Miss Katherine E. Farrar's engagement to Hibbard Richter is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Farrar of Brookline. Mr. Richter is a graduate of Dartmouth and Harvard Law school. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Masters of Dorchester, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Catherine, to Walter Nicholas Bangham of Wilmington, Ohio. Miss Masters is a graduate of Pine Manor and the Pierce school of Boston. Mr. Bangham is a graduate of Ohio University and received his master's degree in science from Harvard last June. He is now doing research work in Sumatra for the Goodyear Co.

BERMUDA STILL PROVES an alluring travel point for many Bostonians: Roger S. Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hinds, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Dickson, 3d, were among the passengers sailing on the Bermuda on Saturday. Miss Eleonora Sears has returned from a short visit in New York to her home in Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Frederic H. Curtiss and Mrs. Samuel R. Dabney are at the Madison, New York. Mrs. Henry Lee is passing a few days at the Weylin, and Mrs. Samuel Eliot is registered at the St. Regis.

ACTIVE WEEK AHEAD FOR CLUBS

By NANCY BREWSTER

Of diversified interest are the outstanding club events for women of Greater Boston this week.

Jewish women of the city devoted to Palestinian rehabilitation and the rebuilding of the national homeland, meet today at the Hotel Statler to report on their quota to Zionist funds. It is the third of the donor luncheons. Women who attend will announce contributions of $100 each, for Hadassah medical work.

Preliminaries for Better Homes Week will be consummated at a luncheon-meeting tomorrow at the Copley-Plaza. Mrs. James J. Storrow, chairman of the Massachusetts Committee, Better Homes in America, has called together sectional chairmen who will present two-minute reports of their plans.

On Thursday club institutes will again be in session at the Hotel Vendome, the discussion centering about club programs. To this topic Mrs. Hugh Butler of Needham, will talk on club programs in the American Women's Club in London; Mrs. R. A. Berry of Framingham, "An Intelligence Test"; Mrs. John H. Murney, Danvers, "A New England Day"; Mrs. Charles W. Bailey, Quincy, "Our Twenty-Fifth Anniversary"; Mrs. Verne Q. Powell, Arlington, "Musical Programs"; Mrs. Stanley R. Stembridge, Reading, "Presidents' Day"; Mrs. Paul A. Esten of Stoughton, Mrs. Sara F. Hall, Everett; Mrs. Albert Connor, Franklin; Mrs. George W. Hendrick, Nashua, N. H.; Miss Annie G. Hinckley, Barnstable; Mrs. Frank W. Field, Newburyport; Mrs. Robert Walker, West Concord, and Mrs. Clyde Swan, Barre, who will talk on profitable programs.

Young women who comprise the junior membership of the State federation will meet in conference next Saturday under the leadership of their State chairman, Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, Jr., at the Dorchester Women's clubhouse, Center st., Dorchester, to underwrite future activities on even more important and expansive basis.

Junior clubwomen will contribute the entire program, bringing from their respective locales interesting stories of accomplishment.

CITY FEDERATION

As the time for the annual State meeting approaches, individual clubs are naming days for their own annuals.

The Boston City Federation, of which Mrs. Carl L. Watson is the president, will hold its meeting at the Hotel Statler, April 11, at 10:30 followed by a luncheon to which dignitaries of the city and state and State Federation of Women's Clubs have been invited.

It is to be an open meeting to which delegates, associated members and friends are welcome.

Governor and Mrs. Allen will grace the luncheon, as will Mayor James M. Curley, Charles F. D. Beldon, director of the Public Library; Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University; Louis E. MacBrayne, general manager of the Massachusetts Safety Council; Herbert C. Parsons, commissioner of prohibition; ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald; Mrs. Azel A. Packard, Mrs. Albert Bradley Carter and past presidents of the City Federation.

Mrs. William T. H. Salter is chairman of the affair and reservations may be made through her.

Boys and Girls Dress Alike, but Appear Very Different

LITTLE brothers and sisters can be as alike as two peas, yet sister retain her feminine charm and brother flaunt his aggressive masculinity despite their companionate costumes sponsored by the mode this season.

The outfits pictured are very smart and simple. Sister's abbreviated skirt is of French flannel, in a lovely tone of pink, with two inverted pleats at each side front; her short sleeved sweater-blouse of white pebble-weave jersey—thin fine wool with a silk fleck woven through the material, is fastened to the close round neckline at side front with three small ornamental buttons, their iridescence repeating the pink of the skirt.

LITTLE brother's sweater blouse is an exact duplicate; and his very short "shorts" are of pink flannel, like sister's skirt, only they do boast two buttons on the lower edge of each trouser leg, which may be a slight advantage.

These costumes are shown in other color combinations as well, and their light wool gives just the touch of warmth necessary for early spring days, and many cool summer days too—nothing could be smarter or more serviceable.

THIS excitement about frills and furbelows has left no department of fashion untouched and now babies are becoming more babylike in their frilled styles. Fine detail and exquisite daintiness replace the severe simplicity that last season's babies found so smart. White, of course, is the first selection of the fashion-wise baby but peach is coming in for no small amount of interest both as a trimming and as a costume color. Touches of hand embroidery are endorsed for babywear.

If you've done any babywear shopping of late you've noticed two new colors stepping up with pink and blue—a soft pale green and a sunny yellow.

Almost every item of infant's wear may be bought in these two new baby colors. Together they are lovely, and the green is especially flattering to blonde-haired babies and the yellow to black-haired!

Speaker of House in Tercentenary Talk

Leverett Saltonstall, speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, will discuss the importance of small towns in our scheme of government in a radio address on "Watertown" tomorrow night at 10:30 o'clock from station WBZ.

The address is in connection with the Massachusetts tercentenary program in charge of the radio committee, headed by Dean Gleason L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School.

CHOPIN-LISZT PROGRAM AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

It seemed like the "good old days before the war," hearing Sergei Rachmaninoff play the piano in a program of Chopin and Liszt. Pesky modernists have done their best to belittle romantic composers. How unsuccessful they have been was indicated by the stormy applause of the audience at Symphony Hall.

This audience, by the way, did not fill the auditorium for this second of the Russian's concerts here this season. You may draw any moral you wish. We have given up the task, for no sooner have we uttered a conviction as to the desires of concert audiences than a subsequent concert offers contradictory evidence.

Mr. Rachmaninoff scaled no great heights yesterday, for he seemed not in the mood. On the other hand, he sunk to no great depths. And he never does the latter, be it said to the credit of a great artist. We have heard eminent virtuosi, capable of superb performance, at times abuse the piano as if they had a personal grudge against the audience.

Rachmaninoff, like every human being, has his ups and downs. But he has always seemed to us to give his best of the moment. And at his worst, he plays the piano beautifully, indeed. Like a great artist, he respects his art and his audience too much to let personal feeling intervene. If he can't at the time give you an inspired performance, he will at least render a composition with that consummate musicianship by which he towers above mere piano players.

In the Chopin Fantaisie Impromptu and, especially, the B minor Scherzo, Rachmaninoff's speed was demoniac. This was unfortunate, since, despite his brilliant technique and musical outlining, you had to know the pieces as well as he to be able to make sense out of this torrential cascade of tones.

ARABIC TAKES TOURISTS

Walter H. Kilham, chairman of the committee on industrial and civic art of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and his daughter, Aline, were passengers on the Arabic, which left Commonwealth pier for Galway and Cherbourg.

They will tour England and Scotland before Miss Kilham goes to Paris for art studies.

Others who boarded the Arabic were Miss Letitia Law and Miss Dorothy Simpson of Methuen, Mrs. I. Aubrey-Jones and her son, Anthony; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henderson, Miss Emily O'Connell, Robert Kay and Mrs. Evan Goodrich of Boston.

Madame Sarah Fischer, French opera singer, and her husband, Herbert Carrick of Paris, embarked on the Cleveland of the Hamburg-American line which left the pier a few minutes later.

They had been visiting Mrs. Carrick's parents in Worcester. Miss Evelyn Benedict of Mt. Vernon st., left to study art in France and Germany.

PILGRIM SHIP FETE GIFT

The First Parish Church, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, commemorated the departure of the first Dorchester settlers from Plymouth, England, 300 years ago, in a tercentenary service.

A bronze replica of the ship, Mary and John, on which the first Dorchester Pilgrims sailed, was presented to the church by Mrs. Mary Fifield King of 77 Morton rd., Milton. Theodore L. Southack, chairman of the board of trustees, received the gift on behalf of the church.

The morning exercises began with devotional exercises by the Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Christopher R. Eliot, D. D. Brief addresses were made by the Rev. Roscoe Nelson, minister of the First Church of Windsor, Conn., and the Rev. Lyman V. Rudledge, minister of the First Church of Dedham.

Roxbury Woman Wins Prize for Chicken Salad Mold

PATIENCE and perseverance, the copy book used to tell us, bring their own reward, and this certainly seems to be true in the case of Mrs. E. M. Drake, of 40 Vine st., Roxbury, who has patiently sent in scores of excellent recipes ever since the first day our recipe contest opened.

Among the hundreds of her recipes we have selected today for our weekly winner a Molded Chicken Salad which is especially appropriate for spring luncheons. This salad can either be molded in the little individual ring molds or one large ring mold or individual molds such as are used for gelatine desserts.

Arranged on a bed of shredded lettuce and served with the salad dressing suggested, this certainly makes a most attractive, as well as delicious salad.

MOLDED CHICKEN SALAD

2 tbsps. Plymouth Rock Gelatine.
2 cups chicken stock.
2½ cups cold cooked diced chicken.
½ cup Hood's cream, whipped.
¾ cup diced celery.
¼ cup chopped green peppers.
½ cup Cain's Mayonnaise Dressing.
¼ tsp. Worcester salt.

Soak the gelatine in ½ cup of the cold stock, then dissolve in the rest of the stock which has been heated to the boiling point. Add the salt and cool and when nearly set fold in the diced chicken, celery, green pepper, mayonnaise and whipped cream.

Turn into ring molds, chill and when firm unmold and fill the centers with Cain's mayonnaise dressing to which has been added an equal amount of Hood's cream, whipped.

Something New for Your Next Dessert

IF you have a sweet tooth, why not exercise it on desserts and candies made with molasses? Dietitians, you know, put molasses very near the top of the list of foods that should be eaten every day, so you can feel very virtuous when you eat a spicy square of warm, fragrant gingerbread or ginger upside down cake.

A love for molasses dishes is common to both men and women, and the kiddies love it, too, as a spread on buttered bread, or on their morning "mush." Molasses, you know, is a natural sweet that retains all the iron and lime of the sugar cane, so be sure there's plenty of molasses cookies in the cookie jar to go with the after school glass of milk. Here is a favorite Upside Down Gingerbread.

GINGERBREAD UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

Melt 1½ tbsps. butter in heavy iron skillet. Add ½ c. molasses, heat to boiling point. Remove from fire. Strain juice from can of sliced pineapple (or apricots) and fit slices into bottom of well greased skillet. Fill spaces between slices with broken nut meats and raisins. Let skillet stand in warm place until following batter is prepared: Sift together 1¼ c. flour, ½ tsp. soda, 1 tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. ginger, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ¼ tsp. cloves, ¼ tsp. nutmeg, ½ tsp. salt. Cream 3 tbsp. shortening and ½ c. sugar. Stir in 1 egg, well beaten, and ½ c. molasses. Add dry ingredients, mix thoroughly. Add ½ c. boiling water, heat well, then pour into skillet over slices of fruit. Bake 30-35 minutes in moderate oven (350 deg. F.). Remove from oven and turn out cake on serving plate, fruit side up. Serve warm either plain or with whipped cream.

These Gingerbread Waffles are luscious, too.

GINGERBREAD WAFFLES

First sift well 2 c. flour, 1½ tsps. ginger, ½ tsp. cinnamon, and ½ tsp. salt. Next, heat to boiling point, but do not boil, 1 c. molasses and 1-3 c. butter. Remove from stove and beat in 1½ tsp. soda. Add ½ c. sour milk, 1 beaten egg, then sift dry ingredients. Bake in waffle iron, watching carefully. Serve hot with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored to taste.

FRUITED SPANISH CREAM

Beat two egg yolks slightly, add one-third cup sugar, one cup scalded milk and cook in a double boiler until it coats the spoon, stirring constantly. Soak one tablespoon gelatin in two tablespoons cold water, then dissolve in the hot custard.

Cool the custard, add one cup apple sauce, one-half cup macaroon crumbs, one tablespoon lemon juice and let stand until about to stiffen. Then fold in one-half cup beaten cream and one cup fresh strawberries cut in halves. Chill. Serve in sherbet glasses with a few whole berries for garnish. Serves 8.

LEMON TARTS

Yolks of 2 eggs
1½ tbsps. sugar
1 package lemon pie filling
1 package prepared pie crust
2 cups boiling water

Wet the package of pie crust with 4 tbsps. of cold water. Cut in and roll out and bake in tart shapes. Then put package of lemon filling into double boiler with ½ cup cold water, the yolks of 2 eggs and 1½ tbsps. sugar mixed to the other contents in double boiler and add 2 cups boiling water, cook about 10 minutes. Let it get thoroughly cold and fill shells.

WHOLE WHEAT BISCUITS

2 cups whole wheat flour
¾ cup milk
3 tbsps. shortening
4 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and work in shortening with finger tips or pastry blender. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn on floured board, pat out and roll to ¾ inch in thickness. Handle as little as possible. Cut and place on greased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 18 biscuits.

A BREAKFAST COCKTAIL

An egg yolk combined with orange and lemon juice makes an excellent dietetic combination. The vitamins, mineral content and food value—don't we sound learned?—of the orange and lemon juice supplement the same elements in the egg yolk. For furnishing pep to the brain worker it is an unexcelled starter for the day. Here's how:

1 egg yolk.
Juice of 2 oranges.
Juice of ½ lemon.
1 tsp. of honey or sugar to taste.

Mix thoroughly and chill if desired.

Eat for Health and Pleasure

WHAT is health? It means that your body is performing all its functions in a way that nature intended. Each organ of the body was designed to perform a certain definite work and nature will not stand by any shirking.

She recognizes no eighth-hour law when it comes to the work that must be done by each organ of the human body. All of which means that health is largely a matter of nutrition and this brings us right up to the question of food and its relation to health.

Some food contains only fat making material, others purely muscle makers, and others make only bone and teeth. A perfect food is one that contains all the elements and exactly the right proportion to build a perfect human body and supply all the energy we need to do a day's work. Nature has supplied such a food in the whole wheat grain.

It contains everything that the human body needs to build tissue, muscle, bone and brain. Raw meat, however, is not a suitable food for the human being so scientists have perfected a shredded wheat biscuit which offers whole wheat grain made digestible by the human stomach. These whole wheat bicuits are delicious served as a cereal food, or in a score of delicious ways in combination with fruit, vegetables, etc.

BANANAS COMBINED WITH SHREDDED WHEAT BISCUITS

To prepare this dessert for the average family it requires six shredded wheat biscuits, 4 bananas, 1 pint of milk, 1 quarter cup fine granulated sugar, 1 cup of cream whipped, 2 tbsps. powdered sugar. Peel and slice the bananas with a silver knife, cover with the granulated sugar set in a cool place. Prepare the biscuit by dipping in the milk, drain off all the milk possible, place on serving plates. Split and fill the shredded wheat biscuits with the prepared bananas, putting the top half back.

Put layers of bananas on top of the biscuits, cover with whipped cream sweetened with the powdered sugar, and decorate with little cubes of bought jelly. Sliced bananas may also be served in the biscuit baskets with milk or cream.

Or, if preferred, the sliced bananas can simply be placed on top of the biscuits and served with milk or cream and sugar as before, but this gives more effect of the breakfast dish whereas the whipped cream really brings this healthful delicious combination into the kingdom of desserts.

Proper Refrigeration for Food Success

WITH the spring and summer months not too far off, it's well to remember that cold is just as important in making certain foods appetizing as heat is to others.

Grapefruit, melons and many other fruits and vegetables are actually improved by the cold of an electric refrigerator. This is particularly true of meats, which are not only more healthful but far more appetizing.

Foods from the market, kept in an electric refrigerator, are cooled in dry air, but never frozen. They are crisp and never soggy; they are flavored as when they were fresh.

Your prepared dishes will keep, too, in this modern food guardian. Many things may be done in advance. Salads will blend beautifully and remain crisp, and home beverages may be prepared and served with the tinkle of dainty ice cubes delicately tinted or decorated with a bit of fruit or mint leaf frozen in them.

We've still a few of those wonderful books I told you about, especially prepared for use with electric refrigerators. Bridge party sandwiches, cocktails, jellied soups, salads, sherbets and ice cream, frozen fruits, beverages, rolls, cookies and puff paste. Shall I send you your copy?

SAVORY CODFISH CAKES

1 cup shredded codfish.
3 cups mashed potatoes.
1 tbsp. butter.
1 egg.
1 tsp. scraped onion.
1 tbsp. prepared mustard.

Pour boiling water over shredded codfish and drain in cheesecloth or hair seive. Add to the potato. And butter and beaten egg and mix thoroughly, adding a little milk if the mixture is not moist enough. Add onion and mustard. Shape into flat cakes and brown in a little hot fat in a frying pan or make into balls and fry in deep fat.

VALUE OF MUSTARD

Plain simple foods are good and good for us, but there are many times when plain foods are improved and made more palatable by the addition of spice and flavor. Prepared mustard is perhaps the favorite condiment to most appetites.

The kind we prefer here at the Martha Lee School is a perfect blend of first-grade mustard seed, vinegar and fine spices. It's a delightful condiment and a perfect accompaniment for hot meats, cold cuts, salad, salad dressing, etc.

Orange Juice, Fried Egg

PERHAPS orange juice and fried eggs seem to have little in common, but they certainly share one characteristic and that is that neither of them can advantageously be prepared in advance.

You could possibly fry enough eggs at one time to last through a breakfast which spins over in many families from an hour to an hour and one-half, but because you'd hesitate to offer them such a leathery mass—no, I didn't say mess—you fry them to order.

It's just as important to realize that orange juice loses flavor and healthfulness in standing—just as much as a fried egg. Freshly extracted orange juice has a delicate and delightful flavor and is rich in health-giving vitamins. Let it stand long, however, and a rapid process of fermentation sets in which robs the juice of much of its appetite stimulating and healthful qualities. Half hour old orange juice is stale and tastes flat.

It should always be served freshly extracted, unstrained (except for seeds), unsweetened, and if possible set in a small bowl of cracked ice. The ice itself should not be added to the orange juice.

HONEY KRISP COOKIES

1-3 cup vegetable shortening.
2 eggs.
½ cup sour cream.
1½ cups unbleached flour.
1 tsp. baking powder.
¼ tsp. salt.
½ tsp. soda.
½ cup chopped nut meats.
½ cup pitted dates, chopped fine.
1 cup rice crispies.
½ tsp. nutmeg.
1 tsp. vanilla.

Cream shortening and honey. Add beaten eggs and sour cream. Add sifted dry ingredients for flavoring. Stir in the baked nuts and rice crispies. Drop with a dessertspoon on greased baking sheet and bake 10 to 15 minutes at 350 F.

This recipe we have had in our files for two or three years, but recently have received some 22 of them in our recipe contest, so judge that this cookie is deservedly popular.

Quick Strawberry Shortcake

WITH strawberries improving in quality and flavor every day, the strawberry shortcake season is really formally opened. One of the most delicious quick shortcakes is made with a pair of the round sponge cakes that I've told you about, which can be found at almost any large grocers.

These delicious cakes, which are only 25c a pair, can be quickly filled with whipped cream and sweetened berries—and don't be stingy with the berries. By the way, did you know that if you mash your berries slightly, cover them with sugar and let them stand in a moderately warm place for an hour, you will get an extra generous quantity of the juice that's one of the secrets of successful shortcakes?

Great Year for Young Players

LOOKS like a great year approaching for young ball players. Every club in the South has been playing some kid or another in the lineup. Plenty of veterans have been snoozing on the benches watching the youngsters cavort. A lot of the newcomers are ticketed to start the season. Some of them will be shuffled out, but enough will remain to give both big leagues a new appearance.

Both circuits need the change. There have been too many vets lingering along, for want of more youthful material. But this spring a bunch of good young ball players were dug up by the scouts. This makes good a prediction that Pres. Barnard of the American League made two or three years ago, when the question was being debated.

This theory was that baseball was just getting over the effects of the war, and that the new generation of ball players would appear along about 1930. The batting orders this spring would indicate that he hit the target right in the center.

THE uprising of youth isn't worrying most of the old boys, though. They know that managers want experience, and one and all they feel that they can keep going forever. The toughest part of the game is to watch some veteran, who thinks he's still there, get the air.

New Stars on Boston Teams

OUR Braves and Red Sox will introduce several new heroes to the populace next week. The Tribe will have a new outfielder as regular, Berger, and Bratcher may be in there, if he keeps on slugging. Randy Moore, another stranger, will be parked on third base, though he was brought along as a fly chaser.

Tom Oliver, a boy wonder if reports be true, will be in left for the Red Sox, a spot that has been bad ever since Duffy Lewis retired. And little Joe Cicero, not a newcomer exactly, but a baby ball player, may grab himself a place before the gang gets home.

Both Boston clubs have needed new and young blood, and the pair seem to have a pretty good dash of it to start this campaign. The changes will infuse pep into the seasonal opening, but Boston fans have suffered too much woe from spring optimism ever to become enthusiastic again until miracles prove themselves.

THE N. B. A. is going to investigate Carnera. They haven't announced whether it would be a geographic survey, or what. Anyhow, it will not make the slightest difference.

Old One With New Twist

THIS one drifts up from St. Pete, where the Braves and Yanks trained all spring.

A Yankee rookie—he lasted one day—went up to bat. The pitchers were lobbing them over, taking no chances on sore arms.

"Let's see you hit one into right field," ordered Manager Bob Shawkey. "It will come right over with nothing on it"

The rookie swung from his heels, and managed to smack the ball. It whistled on a line over third base, into left.

"Hey, dumbbell," yelled Shawkey, "what's the idea? I thought I told you to hit to right."

"I thought I did," chirped the kid. "You see I never seen this park before."

BRUIN rooters will be qualified to vote in Montreal if this playoff business keeps up.

Bruins Favorites for Cup Series

DID you know that Boston has a Goldfish club; and the name is on the level—that the boys are talking of a polo game as part of the Eastern Horse Club race meet—that Strangler Lewis draws the crowds and gets the dough, even though he hasn't held the title for more than two years—that Bill Tilden won two tennis titles in France yesterday—that Eddie Mays and Barry Wood play baseball just as they do football; and that means well—that the handball players are having a big blowoff Wednesday evening—that the game is surprisingly popular in these parts just now—that the Bruins are heavy favorites to lick the Canadiens.

Bruins Ready for Stanley Cup Series

In spite of the terrific punishment suffered by the Bruins in the playoff series with Montreal Maroons, all the regulars will be ready to start in the Stanley Cup games, which begin tomorrow night at the Boston Garden.

As a result of their 2-to-0 win over the New York Rangers, the Canadiens will face the Bruins for the cup emblematic of the world's hockey title.

For weeks prior to the close of the regular N. H. L. schedule, there were predictions to the effect that in the event the Bruins and Maroons played for the championship, both clubs would eventually be defeated and the Stanley Cup would become the property of a club which finished second or third in either the Canadian or American divisions.

It was a foregone conclusion that the calibre of hockey during a Bruin-Maroon series would be rough and that regardless of which club came through in the championship playoff, it would be so thoroughly weakened as to become an easy victim to the challenger.

The Bruins came through and eliminated the Maroons but it was a costly feat. Capt. Lionel Hitchman, who entered the Maroon series with a fractured jaw, was pummelled unmercifully in every game. And, in the fourth contest, he was ripped for seven stitches by Nelson Stewart, the Maroon centre.

Hitchman will be on the defense during the Stanley Cup series, but between the fractured jaw and the Stewart "croix de guerre," he will be a mere shadow of his former self.

Gainor Took Beating in Series Games

Another player who took a terrible beating during the three games he managed to survive through sheer courage, is Dutch Gainor. The clever winger was battered around, slashed, hooked, held and tripped in both games in Montreal.

He made no complaint other than to admit that his elbow needed treatment. During the first

BOYS' COURT TOURNEY OPENS

The seventh annual amateur basketball tournament of the Boys' Club of Boston will start tonight when 30 teams meet at the Eben D. Jordan Memorial Gymnasium, Charlestown, with 150 teams scheduled for this week's play.

Up to Saturday 243 teams had enrolled with more applications to be received today. Due to the large number of entries this week and part of next will be devoted to first-round trials.

Title Basketball at Medford Tonight

Twenty-two teams have entered the third annual Medford championship basketball tournament to be held beginning tonight at the Medford Armory.

Quarter-final games will take place on Wednesday evening. Thursday night the semi-final games will be played. There will be no games on Friday, and the final games will take place on Saturday night.

Tilden Shares Two Titles at Cannes

Cannes, France, March 31—Big Bill Tilden collected two more titles in the Cannes tournament. With Cecilie Aussem of Germany, Tilden won the mixed doubles championship, defeating Elizabeth Ryan and Tamio Abe, 6—1, 7—5; and with Wilbur Coen, the tall Philadelphian, won the men's doubles, beating Lyttleton Rogers of Ireland and Gallepe of Monaco, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2.

Miss Ryan and Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., won the women's doubles, defeating Senorita Lili De Alvarez of Spain and Mrs. Owen of England, 4—6, 7—5, 6—4.

Malden Soldiers in Bowling Tourney

The military championship of Malden will be at stake tomorrow night when the Malden Post of the American Legion bowls Company L in the final match of the league season. The two teams have been running neck and neck all winter and are now tied for top honors. The Legion has two championships to its credit, while Company L won the title once.

Mack Laughs at 'Lively Ball Theory'

By BILL CONNELL

Jacksonville, Fla., March 31—'Lively ball?' I have to laugh when I hear that. Distribution of power is the reason for differences between the modern game of baseball and the pastime as it was played some years ago," said Connie Mack, in a recent interview.

That interesting topic, the fast ball used in big league baseball today, came up as this writer was chatting with Connie Mack just before the manager of the world champs departed for Philadelphia a couple of days ago.

Bill Connell

"There is some difference between the ball used two decades back and the pill which is standard in all league games now," continued Mack. "But it is not right to explain any unusual thing which comes up by tacking the blame on the modern baseball.

"Teams are stronger all around now than they used to be. Every club on the circuit constantly is striving to bolster up that weak spot and, excepting the few teams which have struck lean times, all the organizations are gaining in power each season.

"So that is the reason why the teams at the bottom of the league are likely to defeat some club which is high in the standing. The clubs down at the foot of the ladder get clicking and their potential strength becomes an actuality.

Team Strength, Not Lively Ball, Responsible

"Then it is that they beat out some nine which ordinarily would trounce the weak team. And those wild splurges of batting, blamed on the lively ball, are due more to the way strength is distributed nowadays than to any remarkable re-

FALL RIVER IS VICTOR, 7-2

New York, March 31—Fall River, eastern soccer champions, defeated the western title holders, Cleveland Hungarians, 7 to 2, at the Polo Grounds in the first of the final series of the national challenge cup competition.

Jimmy McAuley's three brilliant goals before seven minutes had gone took the heart out of the western eleven.

Alex McNabb bagged three after some great combination work with Gonsalves, to make the score at half time, 7 to 0.

The Clevelanders shifted their lineup upon resuming and made a much better showing which the crowd fully appreciated. Wilson cut down the lead after 10 minutes from Caraffi's pass. This greatly encouraged the western champs and a real game developed, but the Fall River fullbacks, Jock McArthur and R. McAuley, rose to great heights as they met the vicious attacks of the Clevelanders with a firm front.

The second game will be played at Cleveland next Sunday.

Good Golf

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

In the correct golf swing you do not, from the takeoff at the top, push yourself forward and drag, or pull, the club from in back of you. Now to look at a good golfer it is true that seemingly that is just what he does. And also, seemingly, he appears to hit with all the might and main he has, but actually he does not at all. Rather, the club will be just slightly ahead of you all the way, and will swing through with constantly increasing pace in a manner that makes it go through first, with your body swinging through in back of it. That is the way it appears to be, and you say that, theoretically, that is what happens. But the fact is everything goes through together, and in rhythmic unison of action, although there is the predominant fact, never to be lost sight of, that the club leads. In the bottom arc of its swing, what happens is that it travels at such increasing velocity that it goes fast enough to catch up with, and pass, your hands, doing this because your wrists "let out," toward the ball. This action as a whole gives you that impression that your body is "behind the club all the way."

Harvard Nine in Final Drill This Week

After a month's training in the Briggs baseball cage, the Harvard baseball squad is ready to move outdoors to the Soldiers Field diamond, where Coach Fred Mitchell will prepare his Crimson ball players for their opening game with B. U. April 5.

The Crimson cohorts are already in good condition, and this week's work on the outdoor diamond will find them in fine shape for the Terriers, Mitchell declared. Fielders have been out for a week handling flies, and a few days of practice for the batteries and infielders is all that is required now.

Mitchell will try to use all his twirlers this week, and will name the moundmen who will make the Southern trip next week.

He will have Charlie Devens, the sophomore twirling ace, working every day from now until the opening encounter. Devens is by far the best twirler in Mitchell's stable this season, and with Sam Batchelder receiving, Harvard is well fixed for a battery to start the Southern invasion.

Two other veteran pitchers are Red MacHale and Lefty Page, who will get plenty of twirling time this week. In addition there is Ed Samborski, who bids fair to become one of Mitch's best relief twirlers. Samborski was ineligible last season, but since becoming eligible has been worked as much as the veterans.

Another Cut in Squad at End of Week

One more paring of the squad will take place at the end of the week, as the players who will go South are named. The cut will take place right after the B. U. game, and those fortunate enough to escape Mitchell's axe will hop aboard the Harvard Special for the annual spring sojourn.

Harvard is well set all around the diamond for players of experience and ability. At first, Mitch will retain Barry Wood and Mark Donaldson, for there isn't enough difference between the two to predict who will get the first string assignment.

Billiard Tourney Opens Today

Today, at the State Theater Club, the New England Three Cushion Championship Tournament will open up, with the first game to be played between Brooks Carpenter of Somerville and Andrew St. Jean of Lowell.

Bob Rose, the New England champion, will play his first game at 8 p. m., when he meets Ervin Tucker of Dedham.

MORELLI OUT FOR B. C. TRACK

Al Morelli, Boston College's strong man from Revere, will report to Coach Jack Ryder's track squad today and start work with the shot-put.

Morelli is a short, chunky lad who carries 205 pounds on a five feet six frame. He played guard on the football eleven and was one of the season's outstanding linemen.

Coach Ryder got Morelli to work out with the iron pellet a season ago. He started about this time, developed rapidly and scored points in some of the dual meets.

With the experience of a year ago to work on, Morelli may develop into a top-notcher field event man. And Ryder can use him for the Eagles are faced with a number of hard spring track and field battles, notably the Boston Intercollegiates at the Stadium and the West Point and Holy Cross dual meets.

Big Ed Walsh Holding His Own

Meriden, Ct., March 31 (INS)—"Big Ed" Walsh today continued to show marked improvement at Meriden Hospital where he is recovering from an operation for appendicitis. The former White Sox pitching star, now a scout for his old team, spent a comfortable night following a restful day, with his temperature returning to normal.

Main bout 10 p. m.

By JACK CONWAY

THE famous Perlick twins of Kalamazoo, Mich., will attempt to blast their way to new ring fame when they appear in feature roles on the Argonne A. A.'s card at Mechanics building tonight.

Herman is billed to collide with Bruce Flowers in the final 10-round number, while Brother Henry is down to tackle Hy Diamond of the West End in the other 10.

Jack Conway

Herman is considered a better fighter than Henry. He has traded blows with Sammy Mandell, Jack Berg, Jake Zeramby, Armand Santiago and other first class performers.

This writer has seen Herman in action. He is an aggressive, two-handed warrior and keeps going forward every second he is in the ring. He is what the matchmakers call a "good club fighter." He prefers punching it out with an opponent.

Flowers is the kind of battler who will meet Herman half way when he opens fire. Bruce has put up some of his best contests in Boston rings. He is a two-fisted scrapper and declares that if Herman elects to punch it out with him that he will score a decisive victory.

I look for the Perlick-Flowers affair to furnish as much action as Al Friedman and Joe Monte did at the Garden last Friday night.

Hy Diamond Gets His Chance to Win Fame

HY DIAMOND, flashy West End featherweight, will receive his chance to get into the big money when he collides with Henry Perlick in the other ten-round event.

Diamond is one of the most promising of the New England boxers. He is a brilliant boxer and a sharp, clean puncher. He has gained experience as he has defeated some sturdy opposition. He now feels he is ready to take on the fast steppers in his boxing division.

Dan Carroll, back from Baltimore where he directed Marty Gallagher in his winning bout with Al

Red Sox Begin Playing Their Way Back to Hub Today

PLAYERS IN FINE SHAPE FOR SEASON

By JOE CASHMAN

SELMA, Ala., March 31—Pensacola, their home for the past five weeks, is now but a memory to the Red Sox.

The regulars engage in the first game of their homeward trip in this town, this afternoon, against the local Southeastern League team, while the second-stringers, who broke camp last Saturday, conclude a three-game series in Mobile at the same time.

Joe Cashman

The boys are mighty glad to be away from Pensacola and, if they had the say, they would never return there to train. The town could have been a lot better, it's true, but it also could have been worse.

The wind was always blowing hard; rain was frequent, and the field was poor. So, naturally, the players didn't like it.

But they did round into wonderful shape there, despite all the handicaps, and since that is what they were there for, they actually have no legitimate reason for knocking the town.

Conditions in Bradenton, training site for the last two years, were far better. Neither rain nor wind ever hit the town and the field was ideal.

Yet the Sox are in far better shape leaving Pensacola than they ever were leaving Bradenton. Last year and the year before, several players started the season with lame arms and legs contracted in Bradenton. Today there is not a sore spot to be found among the entire squad.

Red Sox Successful in Practice Games

And the team had more success in exhibition games at Pensacola than they had at any other training site since Bob Quinn became boss some seven years back.

Practically the same team who lost as many spring games as they won in Bradenton, swept past Pensacola opposition undefeated. They didn't meet any big league outfits, but neither did they try as hard to win as they would have had they been facing stiffer opposition.

From a training standpoint, the Sox couldn't have picked a better spot.

Furthermore, as much as the players dislike the town at this moment, they will probably be glad that they started their season's work there if they run into any snow or real cold weather before reaching home, which is more than likely.

For the temperature during some practice sessions was close to freezing and a few cold blasts on the way North won't bother them a bit. Were they coming up from a real hot climate, the least bit of frigid air might disable them.

Today's game in Selma promises to be nothing more than a good workout for the Sox and tomorrow's game at Montgomery should be the same.

Starting Wednesday, however, the team will have no more breathing spells until the regular season is a few weeks old.

A three-game series with Louisville will be played on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, following which the Fenway athletes will go to Indianapolis for games on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

BETWEEN YOU and ME

By Damon Runyon

MR. BERNARD GIMBEL of the great house of Gimbel Brothers of New York and Philadelphia, who is "Bernie" to his intimates, always occupies a front row seat at Madison Square Garden on fight nights, viewing the proceedings most dispassionately. He is what you might call a calm ring worm.

The folks around may be up on their hind legs and tootin,' but Mr. Gimbel sits there in serene quiet, a soft smile on his handsome face. A pop-eyed fellow citizen, infuriated to his very soul by the decision of the judges and the referee, will rush up to Mr. Gimbel demanding:

Damon Runyon

"Hey, Bernie, what do you think of that? Did you ever see such robbery?"

But Mr. Gimbel only turns a cool, soothing eye, and a gentle smile on the raged brother and says:

"I never criticize 'em."

You see, on one memorable occasion, Mr. Gimbel and Mr. Pete Brady, the banker, were induced to sit in the judges' chairs on opposite sides of the ring, to render decision in the case of the late Tiger Flowers and ould Michael McTigue, and they rendered said decision according to their lights.

THE proletariat disagreed with the decision so violently and at such length as to discourage Mr. Gimbel and Mr. Brady from further service as judges.

They are both probably still dead certain they were right, and in any event it has enabled them to see the judges' side of any decision handed down by them that chances to be displeasing to the mob. It is to be regretted that more of our ring worms haven't had the same experience.

I have made a prodigious study of the genus ringworm in these parts, especially those who squat close to the resin dust of Madison Square Garden, and I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Bernard Gimbel is the least excitable of all our confirmed followers of the Manly Art of Self-Defense. And the most philosophic.

I SAT behind him the other night at the Garden when the Irishman, Jimmy McLarnin, and the shadowy smudge from the West Coast, Young Jack Thompson, were squaring off, and Mr. Gimbel asked:

"What do you think of it?"

"Well," I said, "I suppose it's one of those things. I suppose Young Jack will take a plunge in a few rounds. I can't imagine old Pop Foster putting McLarnin in the same ring with Thompson if he is within 50 per cent of the Thompson I saw on the coast a few years ago."

I did not add that I was craftily playing the law of average in my calculations, the average in the manly art being about one "business" fight to every two or three square struggles.

TUFTS COACH LOOKS OVER HURLERS

Wallace Parkhurst Lucien Adams Chet Story Coach Ken Nash

Coach Ken Nash, who has cut his baseball squad at Tufts to 24, is shown with three of the star hurlers. Tufts is weak in the infield, but Nash hopes his pitching staff will enable the team to win most of its games.

B. U. LACROSSE TEAM TRAINS

Coach Jim Budd's Boston University lacrosse candidates are going through their paces every day in preparation for the opening game of the season with Brown at Providence, April 11.

The Terrier prospects are fairly bright, considering the fact that lacrosse is only in its second year at B. U., and none of the men had any experience in this sport before.

Jack McCarthy, Lou Lobel, Archie Stern, Shorty Barron and Santo Marino are the leading candidates of the team. Lobel, boasting 232 pounds of weight, and Santo Marino, weighing in at 125, are the big and little men of the team, and both will probably be seen in the first string lineup.

Marathon to Start at Usual Point

Chairman Al Hart, Manager Tom Kanaly and George V. Brown of the B. A. A. Marathon committee do not think that it will be necessary to change the original start of the Boston Marathon race in Hopkinton for the coming race April 19.

While at first it was thought that the starting point would have to be changed to a point some three or four miles nearer Framingham owing to some road building being done from Wilson Corner to the Wellesley-Natick State line, these officials stated that they were confident that such State road building would be done in time so that the regular start from a point up near the Lucky Rock Manor in Hopkinton would be the same start again this year.

BOWIE OPENS TOMORROW

Baltimore, March 31—This is an off day in the racing world. It is the only day during the entire calendar year that a race of some kind is not scheduled in some part of the American turf world.

Horsemen, jockeys and patrons are given a day of rest in anticipation of a gala opening of the Eastern season at the Bowie ocurse of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association tomorrow.

The winter season was a very successful one in all sections of the American racing world. Under the able leadership of Joseph E. Widener, one of the most respected officials of the sport, Florida enjoyed its greatest year at MHiami.

Eagles Start Drive for Fordham

A three-week drive, which will end with the opening game with Fordham on Patriot's Day and in which the Boston College athletes will be given much overtime work, started today.

Coach Duffy, at this stage of the training period, finds himself and his Boston College baseball hopes, in a rather precarious position. Seasonal success depends greatly on the moves that Hughie makes in the next few weeks.

His situation calls for a certain amount of master-minding and even if Hughie does come through with this he may eventually find himself in a hole because his confidence in some of his rookies may have been misplaced.

Coach Hugh Duffy's first nine at Boston College, at least for the present, is Harry Downes, first base; Paddy Creedon, second base; Walter Kelley, shortstop, and John McCarthy, third base. The outfield consists of Johnny Temple, Joe P. Shea and Frank Regan. George Colbert is the catcher.

This could be called Duffy's varsity nine and the polishing off of this group could be started if only Hughie was sure that Downes, McCarthy and Kelley really have the stuff to step up to the varsity and to play up to standard during the season. All three are sophomores and all three have shown nothing to raise B. C.'s hopes in the practice work.

169 Entries for American Derby

Chicago, March 31 (INS)—Col. Matt J. Winn, president of the Washington Park Jockey Club, today announced that entries for the American Derby, to be run at Washington Park June 14, have reached the record total of 169.

The American Derby entry surpasses that of the Kentucky Derby by 19 and includes all the Kentucky Derby and Preakness eligibles.

24 REMAIN ON TUFTS SQUAD

THE Tufts baseball squad, which received its final cut last week, will practice daily on the Oval, with two sessions scheduled each day during this week.

Classes have been suspended for the annual spring recess and a squad of 24 men picked to battle for a starting position this week before the opening game with Northeastern a week from Wednesday.

Ken Nash has retained six pitchers, three catchers, nine infielders and six outfielders from which to pick a starting nine. He is well fortified with pitchers, but has only one experienced receiver in Arlanson.

The infield problem which looked to be Nash's greatest worry has solved itself nicely with Nick Fitzgerald or McCarthy at first, Bob Verge at second, Norm Ingalls at short and Flash Ockert at the hot corner. Ingalls is the only infield veteran in the group and Ockert was shifted from left field.

Duke Miller, Ted Kennedy or Ossie Hornig may break into the infield to displace some of the men who are at present on team A.

Bury Captain of Penn Boxers Tomorrow

New York, March 31 (INS)—Oliver Horne, captain of the University of Pennsylvania boxing team, who died Saturday night after he was injured in an intercollegiate championship bout with William Struble of Penn State in Philadelphia, will be buried here tomorrow afternoon from his home.

Physicians said Horne probably died from pneumonia rather than the general hemorrhage for which he was operated on last Monday shortly after he was injured.

By BILL GRIMES

DUE to a fine piece of sportsmanship on the part of Manager Sprague Cleghorn, who waived his right on the selection of the scene of the first game, the opening tilt of the Boston Tigers-Rhode Island Reds series, which will decide the Canadian-American League championship, will be played tonight at the Boston Garden.

Bill Grimes

According to the rules of the league, the club which finishes in first place has the right to insist that the first game be played on its own ice. Because the Stanley Cup series must be played this week at the Garden, coupled with the fact that this is the final week that hockey can be played at the North Station palace, Manager Cleghorn willingly agreed that the first tussle be staged here, instead of in Providence.

Manager Cleghorn concession is a break for the Tigers. It is a great advantage in any hockey championship to open at home.

Regardless of opinions to the contrary, mob psychology sways hockey officials. Also, in the case of the Reds, there is a couple of [illegible] who are noticeably weaker [illegible] home than they are in [illegible] Providence Auditorium. There[illegible] Manager Cleghorn has made a [illegible] in agreeing that [illegible] Fountaine Cup game be [illegible] the Boston Garden.

[illegible] has earned their right to [illegible] the Fountaine Cup, which [illegible] over a year ago from [illegible] by defeating the [illegible] Island Reds in the final, by [illegible] the Philadelphia Arrows [illegible] home and home total [illegible] series last week. [illegible] shut out the Arrows in [illegible] 1 to 0 and then nosed [illegible] 4 to 3 victory at the [illegible] on Saturday night.

[illegible] Face Difficult Task to Beat Reds

[illegible] the Rhode Island Reds, at [illegible] while that team is playing [illegible] the managership of Sprague [illegible], the Tigers are battling [illegible] leading minor league club in professional hockey.

Providence has always been represented by strong clubs, that is, they were strong individually, and it must be admitted that some of the past teams of the Reds have been stronger from an individual viewpoint than the present one.

When Cleghorn took over the reins, the Reds were at the bottom of the standing, having lost five straight games. He organized the team and made it a machine which swept through the Canadian-American League at will.

The Fountaine cup series will bring together the outstanding managers of minor league hockey, Eddie Powers and Sprague Cleghorn.

At little or not cost to the club owners, Eddie Powers has developed clubs annually for Boston and in four starts he has finished three times in the play-offs and won one championship. The first Tiger club missed a play-off berth by one point. Powers is a student of human nature and therefore knows how to get the best out of the talent available. He is a stickler for team play, and his insistence upon combination work, has been the main reason for the Tigers' success.

Manager Cleghorn broke in as a hockey mentor while a member of the Bruins, when he snapped that club out of a prolonged slump and started it on its way to the American division championship. Last year he managed the homeless Newark club and finished fourth in the Can.-Am. League.

Cleghorn Lifted Reds From Lowest Place

Under regular conditions this season, Sprague Cleghorn has made the Providence club the talk of hockey. The Reds captured 47 points in 32 games under Cleghorn.

Although the Tigers have been through two tough games with the Arrows, the players are all in fine condition for the coming series.

The same is true of the Reds, who have been marking time for almost a week, as far as regular games were concerned, but who, nevertheless, have been going through long and hard daily scrimmages. The Reds are a club which needs plenty of work, fading noticeably if allowed to lay off.

Friedman, will be in Diamond's corner tonight.

Carroll stopped off in New York on his way home and has practically closed for a bout between Jim Maloney and Primo Carnera to be staged in New York during the outdoor season for the benefit of the Italian Hospital Fund.

Henry Perlick, who mingles with Diamond, is a club fighter like his brother Herman. He has been tipped that Diamond is a classy boxer, but he feels that his ruggedness will break down the local boy's defense, and that his heavy punching will then gain for him the victory.

Jimmy Rogers Meets Patent Leather Kid

SUPPORTING the double feature will be two six-round bouts as well as four four-rounders. Jimmy Rogers, Cambridge, who has won four straight knockout victories here will face Patent Leather Kid of New Bedford, while Stanley Winneryck takes on Pete Herman of Roxbury. In addition, there will be four four-round bouts.

Pantages Winner at Agua Caliente

Agua Caliente, Mexico, March 31. Alexander Pantages, owned by the Allo Carrodlo Stable, won the $10,000 added Agua Caliente Cup race for three-year-olds and upward, finishing six lengths ahead of the Agua Caliente Stable's Scimitar. A. A. Baroni's Wirt G. Bowman trailed Scimitar by a length and a half. Three other horses ran.

Providence Wins From Nationals

Providence, March 31—Providence drove three goals into Jock Brown's net in the first half and the Gold Bugs defeated the New York Giants, 3 to 1, in an Atlantic Coast League soccer match here.

Stasiak in Feature Mat Bout Tonight

Pittsfield, March 31—Stanley Stasiak, the mighty Lion of Poland, a big favorite in this city, will meet John Maloney, the South Boston giant, in the feature bout of an all-star wrestling show which will be staged at the Winter Garden tonight.

Jack Conway Picks Bruce Flowers and Diamond to Win

JACK CONWAY picked Bruce Flowers to defeat Herman Perlick, and Hy Diamond to win over Henry Perlick at the Argonne A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

"The Perlicks are aggressive, two handed battlers and always please," said Jack. "I am going to string along with Flowers to edge out Herman Perlick for the decision, while I figure Hy Diamond is going to flash a great fight and outscore Henry Perlick."

Conway's record for 1930 follows:

MACK LAUGHS AT 'LIVE' BALL

ahency of the horsehide-covered sphere.

"Some folks try to explain any disaster to their team by the statement that the lively ball is the cause of the trouble, but you can take it from me that the lively ball is not responsible for any changes that have come in the national game, but from the way power is spread around."

Mack's statement regarding the present lively ball should satisfy some of the fans who figure that the lively pill used has changed the game from a pitchers' contest, as it once was, to a battle of batters.

While the ball now accepted in the large leagues is livelier than the old-time ball, it seems reasonable to accept Connie Mack's opinion that the change in modern baseball is due to the "distribution of power," as he termed it, rather than to the ball itself.

And as the fans seem to like the offensive type of baseball played the last few seasons, this placing of power all along the line has been a fortunate occurrences for the game and its gate.

BRUINS READY FOR SERIES

game at the Garden, Buck Boucher got Dutch and got him right.

Gainor was sent to the hospital and, in order that he might carry on with his team mates during the coming Stanley Cup series, he agreed to an immediate operation.

According to no less an authority than Dr. John Cunningham, "Dutch" will be available for the Stanley Cup series.

Marty Barry, who was the outstanding star of the Bruins attack during the Maroon battles, is suffering from a badly bruised shoulder. Like Gainor, Barry was a marked man during Maroon series. He and Gainor are wonderful stick handlers and as it is almost impossible to either poke or sweep check the puck from either of them, they come in for some heavy bodying in order to break up Bruin attack.

The Maroons went after Barry from the start, but despite the beating they gave him, they did not meet with success and he was still stepping through them when the bell rang at the end of the final game.

Bruin Regulars Will Play Despite Injuries

Although Barry has insisted that aside from a slight soreness, in his shoulder he is all right, he is carrying numerous mementos of the recent contests. In spite of the fact that Marty refuses to admit it, he is in bad shape, for his shoulder is so sore, and therefore weak, that it is with great difficulty that he manages to get off his shots.

Harry Oliver was chopped on his right ankle in the second game in the Forum and has been under Win Green's care for more than a week, while Perk Galbraith has been suffering from a crack he received on the back of his hand. Clapper is another member of the first aid squad, having gathered numerous bruises from his feet to his shoulders.

Public Park Golf Tourney for Women

New York, March 31 (AP)—For the first time in history the United States will have a woman's public parks tennis champion in 1930.

The United States Lawn Tennis Association announces that it has been decided to have competition for both men and women at the 1930 public parks tournament to be held at Washington.

LEWIS CLASHES WITH SHERRY THURSDAY

One of the chief sporting attractions of the week will be staged Thursday night in the Arena, when Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former heavyweight champion of the world, matches headlocks with Jack Sherry of Ohio in a two falls out of three finish match.

The "Strangler," still rated as one of the finest wrestlers ever produced in the history of the game, has always been one of the best gate attractions in the game. His colorful personality, his marvelous defensive wizardry and his terrific headlock have kept him to the front against the wild charges of a younger group trying to break through his mastery.

Sherry is another youngster to crash his way to the front this year. Like Sonnenberg, Bibber McCoy, Henri Diglane and Ed. George, he has flashed from nowhere until today he challenges the old guard of Lewis, Stecher and Malcewicz. In his bouts this year, he has been defeated but twice—by Diglane, after two sensational battles.

He has been training at Arthur's Gymnasium, on Bowdoin sq., for the past week, and will continue to train there every day this week.

In the co-feature bout, Bibber McCoy of Cambridge will meet Joe Malcewicz, Utica Panther. The match is attracting at least as much attention as the Lewis Sherry bout, for McCoy has given some blazing performances this year. The Cambridge boy is heading for a return match with Gus Sonnenberg, and is confident that his crashing flying tackles will bring Malcewicz down.

In the preliminaries, the colorful Count Zarynoff will be paired with Stanley Pinto, undefeated Ed George with Steve Passus, and Jack Wagner with Bull Smith.

Argentine Poloists Win

Los Angeles, March 31—The Argentine polo team ended an invasion of the Pacific coast here by winning its 13th straight victory, defeating the Midwick Country Club, 10 to 7.

New Players With Braves This Year

JOHN H. "JOHNNY" NEUN, first baseman, who throws left, bat right or left. He played his first league ball with Martinsburg, in the Blue Ridge League, in 1920. In '21 went to Birmingham and stayed there through '22. Bought by Detroit in '23, was farmed to St. Paul in the American Association the next year. St. Paul, with Neun, won little world's series that year, defeating Baltimore Orioles. He came back to Detroit in '25. Stayed there three years. Ill in '28. He was sold to Toledo in '29. Middle of season of '29 was sold to Baltimore. Drafted by Braves last fall. Lives in Baltimore, where he works in winter as basketball official and newspaper man. He is unmarried.

COAST STAR TO DEFEND TITLE

Clarence Doyle, national amateur heavyweight champion, who won the crown in this city last year will return to the Boston Arena, April 7, 8 and 9, at the 25th renewal of the championships in this city to defend his crown.

Doyle is a member of the Pacific Coast team of champions which left San Francisco last Friday headed for the Hub. According to word received from the coast, Doyle has improved greatly and will be the favorite to annex the crown again this year.

Augie Curtis, flyweight, Joe Bernal, welterweight, and Frank Tucker, light heavyweight, are other members of the coast team, who appeared here last year.

Today in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Tiger Payne to Train Here for Allen

Tiger Payne, sensational New York colored light heavyweight, will arrive in Boston tomorrow to start training for his bout with Harry Allen of Brockton next Friday night at the Boston Arena. Payne is brimful of confidence that he will add the name of the Brockton boy to his lengthy kayo list, but is liable to find himself rudely upset on the canvas.

Payne, one of the busiest heavies in the game, is always in the best of condition but he realizes Allen is a terrific puncher and plans to put in the greater part of the week training.

Allen has been working out for the past week at Joe Beston's gym in Quincy and reports he is in better shape than the night he climbed through the ropes to oppose Joe Monte, his fellow townie. Allen, greatly irritated at the whispers of the fans that he "couldn't take it in the stomach" has shown them in the gym that he can. He lets his three sparring partners take free swings at his midriff and although they are all big fellows, they can not as much as move the clouting Brocktonian.

Payne, right now, is one of the foremost contenders in the country for Tommy Loughran's deserted light heavyweight crown. He numbers among his victims all the leading men in the division, the latest being George Courtney, the Oklahoma cowboy, who [illegible] disaster only little more [illegible] ago in one of the greatest fights New York has witnessed this year.

Fernandez to Battle Singer

New York, March 31—Al Singer, Bronx lightweight, again will take on the slugging Filipino, Ignacio Fernandez, in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Singer met Fernandez at the Garden last year and made the mistake of dropping his guard for an instant in the third round. Fernandez swung his right and Singer went to the canvas where he was counted out.

CHELSEA HIGH ARRIVES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 31—The Chelsea, Mass., high team, lone Bay State entry in this week's national interscholastic basketball tournament at the University of Chicago started preparations today along with Burlington, Vt., high, for defending New England's claim to the choicest of all basketball honors.

Nineteen persons, including Mayor John J. Whalen, 10 players, two coaches, two managers and several rooters, make up the party.

The tournament is due to get under way tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Chelsea faces Lakeland, Fla., high, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, with Burlington starting against Morgan Park, Chicago, at 8 p. m.

Women Golfers in N.-S. Tourney Today

Pinehurst, N. C., March 31—One hundred and ten women golfers started on the 18-hole qualifying round of the women's North and South amateur tournament today. Glenna Collett, national champion, will defend her title.

Speculation favored Glenna to retain her title and gave the leading challenger's place to Maureen Orcutt, brilliant star from Haworth, N. J. Miss Orcutt nosed out Miss Collett last week in the Southern Pines 54-hole medal play tournament.

Others looked upon as qualifiers were Helen Hicks of Hewlett, L. I.; Mrs. John Arends, Chicago, and Martha Parker, New York.

Clan Sutherland, 4-2

Sandy Hadden's Clan McLeod's soccer outfit took the short end of a 4 2 score at Roslindale. The opposing Clan Sutherland team played cleverly and it seems that Wright and Anderson have the makings of another great Sutherland combine.

A COOLER SMOKE IN A DRIER PIPE

Granger Rough Cut

ISN'T this the test of a pipe tobacco?

Simple as A-B-C are the things that tell the story to pipe-smokers:
A—the fragrant first taste
B—the smooth rich after-taste
C—the coolness, first and last
And Granger smokers certainly know those A-B-C's! "Wellman's Method" for rich fragrance, Rough Cut for coolness, a soft package for comfort—it's a combination no pipe-smoker can resist!

Letters From Readers

Hits Empty Lives of Many

Editor Boston American:

You must expect to hear and read strange notices in Boston. My eye caught this recently: "Millions now living will never die." Well, that's good news. But I added, "Millions now living have never lived."

This kind of poster directs attention to the most serious fact of modern civilization that the standard of material living has risen markedly, with leisure and means of enjoying it, now as common as they once were rare.

I am not referring to slum dwellers or the economically poor. I refer to those people who have never felt the pinch of poverty and yet are cursed with empty lives. Let me tell you that bored respectability is a far greater national tragedy than hungry slumdom. I would like to have my poster stuck up in Greater Boston: "Millions now living have never lived."

Cites Some Great Actress Who Were Old

Editor Boston American:

I am a reader of the Boston American and I think that Louella Parsons, Motion Picture Editor, unduly criticizes some of the artists A little while ago she said Lillian Gish was too old for the talkies and it was foolish to go abroad and take pictures. The great actress, Sarah Bernhardt was 70 years old and she always drew large crowds. Lillian Gish isn't half that age and she is very beautiful and is also a great actress and also we are not all so rich that we can afford to travel. It is wonderful to go to the movies and see other countries and how they dress. We can see how, for the Americans are advanced and we appreciate our own country more.

Tells How to Learn What Hell is Like

Editor Boston American:

One of the bulletin boards of a church in Greater Boston bore this message recently.

"What Hell Is Like." Beneath, came this: "Come and Hear Our New Organist Next Sunday."

As this was told me by the editor of a religious weekly in Boston, I thought it was too interesting to be hid under a bushel, so I am sending it to your paper.

Urges Help for Jobless Crisis

Editor Boston American:

The unemployment situation in this country is distressing. Surely there should be some means of taking care of this situation. With the intelligence and resources of this country, a national law could be passed reducing the hours of labor, making them equal in all States and to all manufacturers. No one State or manufacturer can reduce by themselves without suffering a loss by competition. More would be employed. That would make more consumers and help manufacturers and consumers.

The building program after the "red tape" has been gone through will help temporarily to building tradesmen, but there are thousands that it will not help. There should be some means of helping all now and future generations. Machines are displacing more and more men as time goes on. There will be more men displaced by new inventions. Production is running ahead of consumption and will continue to do so unless something is done With plenty thousands in need, optimistic talk and promises will not solve this problem.

Action is what we want and need.

I suppose the political campaign issues will be on our wonderful "prosperity," or will they evade the question and talk about changing the prohibition law a 100 years from now, and get away with it. E. L. PARKER

Capital Played Life Saving Part

Editor Boston American:

I am so pleased to be enlightened by L. C. E. H. By the way, I recall an old saying, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folloy to be wise." Our freedom, he writes in his letter, I must say, a ball and chain is attached to that freedom where you come from We celebrate a real Independence Day here in this glorious country of ours. No English flags flying, signifying that a tentacle is still holding us.

L. C. E. H., your country has such wonderful freedom, such marvelous laws, etc. Tell me. Why do all the Britishers flock to the United States for a living? It is the wisest move England could make to try for a world's peace. As for the United States, we are at peace with the world. We don't have to join in with European powers. You contradict yourself. You say where you came from, they enjoy complete independence and then write about Imperial partnership. I'll admit we made a bull at Washington, when they put that prohibition farce through, but ye Gods! England has the copyright on bulls.

Here is another thing I ll admit about our capital. It will err at times, but what a wonderful, a life saving part our capital played in the World War. If it weren't for our capital the British Empire would be punctured today. J. J. R.

Sermons on Repentance Are Seldom Heard

Editor Boston American:

I hear that Boston preachers have been advised to give up preaching sermons on repentance. Dr. Eliot of Arlington Street Church says you seldom hear sermons of this kind in Boston nowadays. Parsons are preaching the religion of self-respect. I don't know what this means, but I think Boston is congested with a great amount of this sort of thing.

Here is Lent with us. Isn't that what Lent means? Think more of your sins and get rid of them? Is that not what repentance urges?

I can't get on to these new fangled ideas of religion that go stalking around the Hub. Give me the old fashioned Hell with brimstone thrown in. I tell you this makes us think when all this self-respect business gives a drab color to your religion

Curley's Welcome Wins Praise

Editor Boston American:

With many others, I was delighted to read the formal greeting of Mayor Curley to the visitors, published in the newspapers. It was just what we wanted. The mayor brought out in suitable terms just what this Tercentenary stands for and what Bostonians and others will aim to impress upon those who come to this city during the summer

Visitors are coming to what the mayor calls rightly, "The Mother City of Liberty" Any one who is familiar with the early history of Boston will sound this note again and again. There has been hitherto an indifference to this Tercentenary with many of us. Mayor Curley has started new enthusiasm in this historic event. He in his well chosen words brought out what it means to this nation to have such a city as Boston, talking to us, so to speak, of what her past has been and how she has conquered up to the progress of the present.

Girls Living In Age of Thrills

Editor Boston American:

This is the age of thrills. Girls of this generation are heading the line with them. According to many students at Wellesley College, life is no good unless it furnishes some kind of a thrill.

Capt. Donald MacMillan of the polar regions went a week ago to Wellesley College and gave the girls a thrill over life in the frozen seas. After the lecture the girls were thrilled with excitement of what the polar regions offered. If Sir Wilfred Grenfell comes to the college with his batch of exciting experiences, he will find many who will want to go with him this summer.

These same girls flock to the Boston airport to get a thrill flying to New York. The old method of reaching the metropolis has no thrill in it. If a lecture is given in the geology room, they run for the seats and cover many of them for their slow-arriving friends, compelling some professors to stand and view the scrimmage for seats and speculate over where thrills will cease to be.

Sides With Rabbi Wise In His Criticism

Editor Boston American:

I have just read in your paper the complaint of Rabbi Wise that "Christendom in America is boycotting the Jews, and he asks when the churches here will succeed in Christianizing the people in this country! I feel that the rabbi has cause for complaint.

The Hebrews are a conscientious, law-abiding people whose record for morality and industry is good, and who do very little proselyting. They are among the most desirable class of aliens entering the United States, and their race embraces the minority in the number of prisoners within our jails."

Finding Effect Noise Created

Editor Boston American:

After reading in your letter column about the effect of noise upon people, I have just learned from another source of information that the Accoustical Society of America is now giving much attention to the effect of noise upon the general health of people. This organization and another of the United States Bureau of Standards, are measuring the kinds and amounts of noise that pass through the walls and floors of houses, especially apartment houses.

Many of these noises can be stopped and will be by legislation in the near future.

FLIER SPEEDS BYRD FILMS

Managua, Nicaragua, March 31 (AP)—Lee Schoenhair, carrying the pictorial records of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition from Panama to Newark Airport, N. J., took off shortly before 8 a. m. en route for Miami, Fla. Belize, British Honduras, was to be his next stop.

Schoenhair, flying the "Miss Silvertown" owned by the Goodrich Rubber Co., is rushing pictures to the United States, especially for the Associated Press, The New York Times and Paramount News.

The airman arrived here from the Canal Zone, yesterday afternoon with the photographs and motion picture films of the Byrd Expedition which he had received from Willard Vandeveer, official photographer for Paramount News, who arrived at Panama by the steamer Tamaroa from New Zealand Saturday.

Pie-Eating Runner Wants Ice Cream Added to Menu

Chicago, March 31 (AP)—The credit, if any, for inventing the latest type of contest must go to July Borrels, motorcycle policeman. He weighs 206 pounds. He made the statement that he could run five miles and eat three pies all at the same time

He started out with a rush, ate all three pies in the first mile and finished, not exactly with a rush, but still running. He offered to do it over again for three more pies and two quarts of ice cream.

FATAL CRASH OF BOATS PROBED

St. Helens, Ore., March 31 (AP)—Federal steamboat inspectors today began an investigation of the collision of the excursion barge Swan and the coastwise steamer Davenport in the Columbia river, which turned a merrymaking throng of 288 passengers on the pleasure craft into a panic-stricken crowd, and resulted in the death of three women and one man.

Three others, two men and a youth, are missing and 12 are in hospitals suffering various injuries.

BANDIT PERIL GROWS IN CHINA

Shanghai, March 31 (AP)—Foreign dispatches from Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, today said the menace of bandits and Communists was increasing and that a general evacuation of foreigners was anticipated

These advices stated that the bandits who previously [illegible] confined their depredations [illegible]ern Kiangsi were steadily [illegible] northward and that the whole province now is menaced.

Captured by brigands, who Thursday raided Yuanchow, three foreign workers of the British China inland mission today were objects of an intensive search.

The trio includes the Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Porteus of England and Miss N. E. Bemmel, formerly of Girard, Kan.

Daring Story of Eternal Love Triangle

CHAPTER 21

HAZEL eyes glowing with hot tawny light . . . So bright, those eyes of Ardeth, with burning pride, that the others blinked as her gaze swept their faces.

Her voice was husky. Smothered with the tremendous effort to keep it steady.

"All right. If that's the way you feel about me, Aunt Stel, I'll save you the trouble of locking the door. I'll leave here tomorrow. I'll get a place of my own where no one—can insult me—"

She felt hot tears coming and turned swiftly before they should see them.

"Ardeth—!!" She heard Nell speak as she reached her bedroom door, but she went in and closed it behind her.

The dark room swimming before her dazzled eyes after the glare of the other. As she pulled off her clothes with cold hands, her vision gradually cleared. The window grew out of the blackness, a gray rectangle — curtains looped back and blowing in the night wind. The street light seeping in showed a dark bulk in the bed. Bet—breathing in carefully simulated sleep.

But Ardeth knew that Bet had been lying tense, straining to the sound of the angry voices in the other room. They all hated her . they would be glad to have her go . .

She tried to plan as she crept in quietly beside the motionless Bet A hotel room—something inexpensive. She could manage that until such time as she and Ken could be married. The thought of him brough a warm, sweet security to allay her anger She drifted to sleep serene in the memory of him.

The next morning she phoned Jeanette that she would not be down to the shop until afternoon She packed her little round-topped trunk—the same shabby trunk she had brought to Aunt Stel's years ago

A curious hush had fallen on the Harrison household. Paul and Fan ate their breakfast in round-eyed silence and had to be fairly chased out of the house at school time Bet was aloof but her curiosity betrayed her into missing her usual street car to the office

Aunt Stel, standing by the stove, tight-lipped and cold-eyed, shook sticky gobs of mush from the big spoon as though she mentally shook them in her niece's face.

Ardeth locked her trunk and put on her hat and coat. A queer little sinking in her heart when she stood for the last time in the middle of the bedroom she shared with Bet The pink curtains she had made . . . the dresser scarfs . . . that pincushion she had won at a raffle years ago and given to Bet . . Shabby and ugly and ungracious—but it was the only home she could claim . . . These people after all were her own

Had Aunt Stel shown any sign of tenderness then, Ardeth would never have left. She hesitated in the doorway of the kitchen, a slim figure with wistful eyes.

"Good-by, Aunt Stel . . ." she said softly.

HISTORIC SPOTS ARE MAPPED

Maps of historic Boston and New England, rich in detail and art work, are being sent to each of the more than 10,000 local posts of the American Legion throughout the country by the committee in charge of the annual national convention of the American Legion, to be held in Boston in October. Inclosed with the maps are bulletins setting forth the gigantic and varied program which has been planned for the visitors to the convention.

The map and bulletin are for the purpose of booming the convention and especial emphasis is placed on the lure of Boston's historic places of interest. The convention committee has sent out the maps, which designate the sites of the principal places of historic interest in all New England, in the hope that it will give prospective visitors to the convention an opportunity to become somewhat familiarized with historic Boston and New England from a geographic standpoint.

While such an extensive attempt to circularize the country would not ordinarily be warranted, because of expense, the Legion committee has been able to accomplish this through the generosity of the John Hancock Life Insurance Co., which is donating the maps to the Legion. In making its appeal for historic Boston, the accompanying letter mentions some of the more prominent places of historic interest.

Mayor Signs to Widen Charles Street

WILL START WORK BY MAY DAY

$1,000,000 Project Involves Land and Building Takings of $655,809

Steam shovels will be at work on the $1,000,000 Charles st. widening within 30 days, Mayor Curley announced today, after approving land and building damages recommended by the street commissioners amount to $655,809.

The pen with which he signed the papers he sent to Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce and "father" of the improvement Property valued at $60 000 will be taken from Charles st. jail, including the padded-cell building, and to compensate for this the city will permit a new structure on the site of the city stables at Fruit and North Grove sts.

Others changes eventually will be made on North Grove st., where the city has yards, the mortuary and other properties.

The Eye and Ear Infirmary at Charles and Fruit sts. will give up property valued at $54,888. The largest taking is from Henry M. Williams and Elliott Henderson, trustees, $140,000.

Papers ware to be filed at the Registry of Deeds late today, and the public works commissioner will be notified tomorrow to proceed with plans. Charles st., as previously announced, will be widened from Cambridge st., to Leverett st., between the Longfellow and Craigie bridges, with a traffic circle at each bridge, altogether one of the most extensive improvements in years.

SQUARE NAMED FOR WAR HERO

At dedicatory exercises yesterday of Ralph M. Durkee sq., Sherwood rd, and Massachusetts ave., Medford, military organizations from five cities and towns participated.

A parade through the plains district of Medford, starting at Medford sq., preceded the exercises. In the parade were Veterans of Foreign Wars from Watertown, Medford, Somerville, Roxbury and Woburn. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Malden American Legion also marched, as did the members of the Medford Legion Auxiliary.

The Rev. C. K. Atkinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Medford said the prayer at the square The square was formally dedicated by the members of Medford Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Mayor Edward H. Larkin of Medford delivered the main address

Private Durkee enlisted in the service during the World War at the age of 16 years. He died two years ago from an injury received while in France.

REWED OR JAIL IS MANDATE OF JUDGE

Marital Troubles Bring Malden Man Before the Providence Judge Who Married Him

Providence, March 31—Something about Benjamin Nathanson of Malden, Mass., looked familiar today to Judge A. A. Capotosto in Superior court when Nathanson appeared on a bigamy charge.

As the case unfolded, Judge Capotosto learned that he was the officiator at the marriage ceremony for which Nathanson was held.

The latter's marital troubles dated back to last June when he was given a divorce in Middlesex court from Esther Diamond Nathanson, formerly of East Boston. The decree became absolute last January.

In September he applied for a license here and married Sadie Posner of Milton ave., Dorchester, Mass. Through the procuring of the license Nathanson was also charged with giving false information to the city registrar.

Armed with the license, Nathanson sought Judge Capotosto and the justice married him to Miss Posner

Nathanson pleaded nolo to both charges and stated he didn't realize he was breaking the law.

"Well, I got you into this trouble, at least I was a party to it," Judge Capotosto commented.

"I will give you your choice. You may marry your present wife a second time now that the decree is absolute or I must send you to jail. You may have until April 10 to decide.

Nathanson promised to re-wed again immediately but didn't state if he would give Judge Capotosto the job again.

Pending the second marriage, original bonds of $1100 were allowed to stand.

Medford Chapter to Give Minstrel Show

Fifth Theft of Auto Was Once Too Much for This Man

When his automobile was stolen for the fifth time, Charles McMenimen of 152 Line st., Cambridge, decided something had to be done.

He had parked his car in Lechmere sq. and was heading back to it when he saw the machine rolling up the street with a stranger at the wheel. McMenimen went into action.

He hopped aboard a passing automobile and gave chase. The pursuit led along the Northern Artery, where he picked up Patrolman O'Brien of the Somerville police. O'Brien drew his gun and scared the would-be thief into stopping

The culprit turned out to be a juvenile of 14 years, who resolved never to go joy riding again and departed in care of a probation officer.

COMPLAINS OF ACTION TO BACON

Says Committee Should Not Submit Auto Report to Supreme Court

Frank A Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, in a letter to President Gaspar G. Bacon of the Senate, today complained that the advocates of a state fund for compulsory insurance have not been dealt with fairly by the legislative committee on insurance in the presentation of questions relating to the constitutionality of the measure to the Supreme Court

"I have just learned that the resolve asking the Supreme Court for an opinion as to the constitutionality of the so-called state fund for motor vehicle insurance is to be accompanied by the report of the special committee, Senate 280," the Goodwin communication read

CALLS IT OUTRAGE

"In my opinion this is an outrage. Opinions are sought from the Supreme Court and rendered without argument Senate 280 is a volume filled with special pleading in favor of insurance companies and against my bill. It is replete with false statements and misrepresentations

"It was written in large part by Frank W Grinnell, who, while a member of the special commission, got from the attorney-general's office the copy of the insurance companies brief against the attorney-general and then aided the insurance companies' counsel in preparing his brief against the attorney-general

SAYS HE WAS SHUT OUT

"The questions you are now asking of the Supreme court are not objectionable to me, but to submit them accompanied by an argument prepared in large part by an insurance company advocate and no argument in the interest of the car owners of Massachusetts is, as I said, an outrage

"In this connection, I also wish to remind you that the questions you are now submitting were written in large part by this same Frank W. Grinnell and I was refused permission by the Senate chairman of the insurance committee to participate in preparing them or even to see them until after they had been presented to the Senate"

SHAW FUNERAL IN BOSTON

Arrangements for the funeral of Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, millionaire Boston sportsman, are to be announced at his Oak Hill estate in Newton today. He died at the Plaza Hotel, New York, of pneumonia Saturday night after an illness of one day. The funeral and burial will be in Boston

The famous sportsman was in his 59th year, and had been in New York for three days. He is survived by his widow and five sons, Robert Gould, 3d; Gould; Alexander; Louis Agassiz, 2d, and Paul Agassiz; and two sisters, Mrs. Graeme Haughton and Mrs. Eva C. Fennell, both of Boston

His father, Quincy A. Shaw, was the head of the Calumet & Hecla copper interests. Robert G. Shaw, in whose memory a monument fronts the State House in commemoration of his command of colored troops in the Civil War, was a first cousin

On Oct. 27, 1897, he married Miss Nancy Withers Langhorne (the present Lady Astor), in Richmond, Va and six years later she was granted an absolute divorce and given the custody of their child. Two days later he married Mrs. C. H. Converse, of Newton. The first Mrs. Shaw became the bride of Lord Astor in the same year.

U.S. ATTORNEY SCORES POLICE FOR ALLOWING RUM MEN TO ESCAPE

ONLY THREE OUT OF NINE SHOW UP

Six Missing When Smuggling Cases Come Up Before Commissioner

Efforts of government investigators to determine the ownership of the schooner Evelyn E. Ruth, alleged to have landed a $32,000 rum cargo on the Mile road section of Dorchester flats, were temporarily foiled today when six of the crew were reported missing in Federal Court.

Denouncing Dorchester police authorities for having alowed the sextet their freedom on cash bail of $300 each, Asst. U. S. Atty. Hubert C. Thompson declared the government could not "be made a monkey of in that way."

Only three of the nine men arrested by officers of the Fields Corner station at the scene of the liquor landing appeared for arraignment before U. S. Commissioner E. C. Jenney on smuggling conspiracy charges.

Acceptance of their pleas was deferred pending a round-up of their six alleged companions on the unsuccessful rum expedition

MUST GIVE UP

"It is very apparent," Thompson declared in addressing the court, "that six of these men have already aescaped and I shall demand very heavy bail for the three who have appeared here unless the other six give themselves up.

"The idea of permitting these men to get out under cash bail of $300, which they have forfeited as a fine, cannot be tolerated and the Government cannot be made a monkey of in that way."

Thompson then asserted he would ask for default warrants for the sextet, but that move was temporarily halted by Atty. W. H Lewis, counsel for the group, who promised to have a search made for the missing men during the day.

Meanwhile, Coast Guard rum chasers were scouring Massachusetts waters for the "mother" ship from which the Dorchester cargo was landed and the Provincetown rum flotilla was probing two mysterious trips made about dawn by a speedboat into that harbor.

SEARCHED THRICE

The craft was halted and searched twice by C. G. 139, but no contraband was found aboard and officers of the petrol declare the craft was intent in drawing their attention away from liquor landings at another point on the Bay State coast.

The three men who appeared in federal court before Commissioner Jenney are Victor Blockwood of New Bedford, Albert Burrill of Chelsea and Henry Miller of New York.

Those who failed to appear are Frank Tito of the North End, William Sovel, Hotel Statler, William Meloney, Farrington ave., Quincy, Muzio Beneveto, North End, Henry Brando of New York and Joseph Silver of Chelsea

The Evelyne Ruth abandoned at Provincetown after she escaped from the Dorchester rendezvous under cover of darkness, was towed today to the Appraisers' Stores where she will be held pending forfeiture proceedings

Motorcycle Cop Injured by Auto

Motorcycle Officer James A. Fitzpatrick of Somerville was slightly injured today when his motorcycle was in collision with an automobile operated by Richard A. Dooley of Kingston st., West Somerville.

The accident occurred while Dooley was attempting to cross in front of a line of traffic on Washington st. Officer Fitzpatrick was taken to the Somerville Hospital where he was treated for injuries to his leg and a shaking up.

ARREST IN BAD MONEY PLOT

With the arrest of a North End man, alleged ringleader, and the questioning of a Cambridge girl at Providence, Secret Service agents believe they have shut off the source, but revealed the counterfeit scope far more reaching than they expected

Theodore Fucillo of North sq., North End, was arrested by Agent John J. McGrath, charged with passing a counterfeit $10 bill to a Jamaica Plain grocer.

McGrath stated Fucillo has been sought for months as the ringleader of the gang.

The Cambridge girl was taken from a Boston to Providence train after she tendered a counterfeit $10 bill to the conductor for her fare

Her name was withheld by Agent James F Fitzpatrick, who said he was convinced the girl told a true story when she said she received it from a Cambridge factory in a pay envelope

HUB WOMAN, 68, BURNS TO DEATH

Mrs. Mary Smith, 68, of Chapman st., Charlestown, was burned to death today when a lighted candle she was carrying ignited her dress. Her husband, John Smith, 70, was seriously burned on the face and hands when he made a vain attempt to beat out the flames.

When firemen entered the house they stumbled over the form of Mrs. Smith. Smith was in a side room feebly calling for help. He was carried out and rushed to the hospital.

CURLEY BUDGET IS COMPLETED

With the 1930 budget ready for submission to the City Council Mayor Curley today revealed the city departments will require $14.50 per $1000 of valuation for expenses

This figure is $1.50 less than the tax limit of $16 allowed this year by the Legislature.

In making this announcement the mayor once more criticized State control and expressed the hope that Boston will some day be independent of the present supervision.

"First Shot" Fired at Lexington, Says Fitzgerald

Speaking at a public meeting held in Watertown High School yesterday, John F Fitzgerald, chairman of Mayor Curley's tercentenary committee, said that the "shot heard around the world" was fired in Lexington, the first battle was in Concord, and the first men killed were from Acton

Fitzgerald urged the citizens of the town to offer their services on some of the various committees fittingly to observe the historic year.

RABBI PREDICTS MODIFICATION BY 1932

Russia With Dictatorial Power Failed to Enforce It, He Declares

Modification of the Eighteenth Amendment before the completion of President Hoover's first term was prophesied by Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner, prior to his lecture at Ford Hall Forum on "Revolutions and Religions."

"The step seems inevitable, for in Russia, where the nature of the government favored every chance for successful enforcement, the government dispensary, system of licensed stores stands," said the rabbi.

BAN FOR WORKERS

"There is this consolation for the drys, however, that despite the sale of liquor in Russia, there is a vigorous prohibition movement in the factory, mines and mills there."

Rabbi Brickner, asserted that while the churches are justified in concerning themselves with prohibition because it bears on morals and ethics, they, have made so great a point of the matter that they are driving many from their ranks

The present American economic scheme of harnessing science to industry, mass production and consumption Rabbi Brickner believes is the best system for raising standards. The Russian methods of joint ownership or socialism he thinks will not be successful.

CHURCH WAR

Speaking later at the Ford Hall Forum, Rabbi Brickner amplified further his views on religion and Russia

The Bolsheviki are attempting to destroy religion because they associate it with the old Greek church which was tyrannous and meant nothing in the life of the people except persecution and execution."

Automobile Victim Is Still Unidentified

Police have not yet been able to identify a man about 60 years old who was struck and fa[illegible] injured by an automobile at [illegible]mont and Dartmouth sts. A card of the Independent Brotherhood of Steam and Electric Engineers and Assistants, which bore the name Arthur Hallowell, was found in the victim's clothing. He was taken to the City Hospital by Phillippe Trechette of 44 Vernon st., Malden driver of the machine which struck him.

Want a Wife? Advertise

Philip Gagnon, Salem, was lonesome alone in his home with his 2½-year-old. He wanted a wife, but failing to find one, asked the Boston Evening American to help him. Here he is looking over a bunch of 100 of the 663 letters he has received in answer to his plea. He ought to have no difficulty now (Staff photo.)

663 WRITE VET BRIDE OFFERS

An avalanche of "lonely heart letters has descended upon Philip Gagnon, Salem World War veteran who appealed through the columns of the Boston Evening American for a bride for himself and a stepmother for his young son, Armand

A total of 663 offers of marriage has been received by Gagnon, including a batch of 63 delivered today by the postman

The young widower, for he is only 28, admits he faces a problem in choosing a second mate from among his correspondents, who all appear to be sincere in their marriage intentions

He held out no alluring prospects of luxury to attract a future wife, but simply asserted he would give her the best support he could if she proved "lovable" to him and to his motherless boy

As Gagnon busied himself opening the incoming mail, Armand prattles on his knee, all unconscious of the momentous decision the father must soon make to ensure the weal or woe of both

ARLINGTON MAN DIES OF RABIES TREATMENT

Septicemia Follows Injection for H. F. Cousens, Former Lehigh Athlete

A preventive treatment for rabies is given as the cause of the death of Harold F. Cousens, 30, of Arlington. His funeral will be this afternoon in the home of his parents on Draper ave. They, too, were treated against possible rabies, but suffered no serious effects.

Several months ago, when it was believed a family pet dog had been exposed to rabies, Mr. and Mrs. Cousens and their son subjected themselves to the treatments, which were expected to prevent any development of the disease.

Young Cousens was stricken with paralysis and was committed to a hospital. Later he returned to his home and remained under the care of physicians.

Septicemia developed from the rabies preventive and death ensued after three months' illness.

He was born in East Boston and removed to Arlington 23 years ago. He attended Lehigh University, where he starred in athletics and since then has been engaged with a West Virginia contracting concern.

Besides his parents, he leaves a widow and one brother. Lewis Cousens of Salem.

FLIERS HIT HUB AT HIGH SPEED

At a speed of more than two miles a minute, the Curtiss plane King Bird came down from Albany to the Boston airport today on a leg of its nationwide tour of the country.

The two-engined, seven-passenger monoplane made the 150-mile trip in 70 minutes.

She was piloted by Joseph F. Reid and carried Major W B. Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Robertson Aircraft Corp., as a passenger.

The King Bird was the first two-engine commercial plane to land here. She is the last word in luxury, being equipped with reclining-back chairs, dome lights and all the comforts of the modern flier.

After a stay here she took off for New York city.

EMPLOYED BY ELKS, SAY 3 IN RAID HEARING

"Bartender, Waiter and Manager" of Club Testify Before U. S. Commissioner Jenney

Testimony that they were employed by Boston Lodge of Elks when arrested in a raid on the Elks' Club was given by three men today at a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney.

The three, charged with possession of liquor, are Edward C. Beazley of Jamaica Plain, Jacob Gordon of the West End and John A. DeCourcy of Roxbury.

Prohibition Agent Harold Hannebury told of the raid, describing floor 5½, with tables, booths and a bar and said he served the search warrant on Gordon after the latter said he was in charge.

Beazley admitted he was employed as bartender and said his stock sold for $5 and $6 a pint.

The money was turned over to Boston Lodge of Elks, he testified, but gave no names of persons that received it

DeCourcy said he was employed to wait on table and drew his salary from "Mr. Andrews, assistant secretary of the lodge."

Gordon said he was "hired to take charge of the place" and that he was paid by the lodge. He ordered all liquors but the bills were sent to the lodge for payment, he said

A clash occurred when Asst. U. S. Atty. Stone offered books and other records as evidence.

Atty. William H. Lewis for the defendants characterized the seizure of the records as "pure theft" saying the agents acted without authority. He dropped the subject when Stone offered to show him decisions covering such cases.

Ralph A. Johnson, Connecticut dry agent, admitted, under questioning by Atty. Lewis, that he was ordered here for the express purpose of obtaining evidence against the Elk's hotel

There was another clash with Stone when Lewis asked Johnson if he was a member of the Elks, wore the emblem or carried a membership card. The questions were overruled

The defendants were held in $1000 each for the grand jury

CURLEY'S $10,000,000 STREET BILL IS BACKED AT HEARING

ALL DISTRICTS TO SHARE IN PROGRAM

Amount Sought Will Prove to Be Ample, Legislative Committee Is Told

Mayor Curley's bill asking for authority to borrow $10,000,000 outside the debt limit for street improvements was vigorously advocated at a legislative hearing today in the Gardner Auditorium, State House, by Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman and Public Works Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke.

Silverman said that on February 1 the board of street commissioners had on file 502 petitions for permanent paving of the same number of unaccepted streets.

Of these he said 112 were in Dorchester, 186 in West Roxbury, 96 in Brighton, 55 in Hyde Park, 17 in East Boston and 21 in Roxbury.

Asked if the estimates might not later be increased as a result of necessary work other than paving Silverman declared that the estimate of $10,000,000 will be ample.

Commissioner Rourke corroborated Silverman's statement. He said there is an item in the budget of $8,000,000 of which $590,000 will be spent on streets in the city proper, $258,000 in Charlestown, $352,000 in East Boston, $981,000 in South Boston, $750,000 in Roxbury, $1,304,800 in Dorchester, $1,108,000 in Brighton, $1,509,000 in West Roxbury, and $308,000 in Hyde Park.

"Would $100,000,000 clear up the street problem situation in Boston?" asked Senator Frank W. Osborne of Lynn, chairman of the committee.

Commissioner Rourke replied that he thought it would take between $80,000,000 and $100,000,000.

The commissioner said that if the $10,000,000 bill is approved, it will mean doubling his force of city workers.

Silverman was asked if the mayor would ask for another $10,000,000 next year if this were approved. He replied that he could not say what the policy would be, but was of the opinion that the city would not ask for a like amount.

Labor Convention Funds Coming In

The Boston Central Labor Union convention committee's appeal for funds to meet the expenses of the entertainment now being arranged for the delegates and guests to the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor to be held in this city in October is meeting with ready response. The United Building Trades Council has set the sum of $3500 as its portion of the fund, the same to be raised by the levying of an assessment of 17 cents on each member.

Boston Typographical Union No. 13 has voted to place subscription papers in each chapel in order that each member may make a personal donation.

NELSON RITES TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Katherine E. Nelson, wife of Traffic Patrolman Magnus T. Nelson of Station 4, will be held tomorrow morning at St. Leo's Church. Burial will follow in Old Dorchester Cemetery. Mrs. Nelson was well known and very popular in Dorchester, where the family home is at 7 Merlin st., and yesterday the house was filled with friends who came to offer their sympathy and help to the policeman.

Since his wife's death on Thursday following a brief illness, Patrolman Nelson has been mother and father to a family of 11 children, whose ages range from 9 months to 18 years.

Nelson's beat includes a section where many Syrian people make their homes, and in order to understand them better and to work with and for them, he studied the Syrian language until he has become fairly fluent. Mrs. Nelson is also survived by her father, two brothers and two sisters.

GIRL VICTIM OF GAS SAVED

Artificial respiration, performed by the police, and the use of a hospital lungmotor were required today to resuscitate Carrie Richards, 16, of Everett ave., Chelsea, who was discovered unconscious from gas poisoning in the kitchen of her home.

The girl was found by her mother, Mrs. Martha Richads, and an olde sister, when they returned for their noon meal from a nearby factry.

Police declared they discovered a leaking gas pipe on the kitchen stove.

Cutter Dispatched to Disabled Dragger

Coast Guard authorities today dispatched, by wireless, the cutter Kickapoo to the assistance of the dredger Herbert Parker, reported disabled off Georges Banks.

The distress call was relayed here by the steam trawler Kingfisher, which answered the Herbert Parker when the craft signalled its engine had been fouled by a floating net.

No details were known here concerning the ownership of the disabled vessel or the personnel of the crew.

Medical Center Workers to Meet

The newly organized suburban women's committee of the New New England Medical Center will hold its first complete meeting tomorrow noon at a luncheon at the University Club. Mrs. Lorenz F. Muther, former president of the Women's City Club, will be luncheon chairman.

The medical center project reported that the week just ended showed the highest number of contributions received since the drive for funds began. The sum raised thus far out of the total of $1,500,000 sought amounts to nearly $740,000.

Blooms of Flower Show to Bring Joy to Shutins

The choice blooms exhibited at the flower show are today being distributed to hospital patients and students all over the city by workers of the Benevolent Fruit and Flower Mission.

Following an annual custom, members of the organization began early today the task of dismantling the decorations of Horticultural Hall and sorting the flowers, preparatory to distribution.

Sunday, the last day of the show, proved to be the most largely attended. Eighteen thousand people viewed the exhibits from noon until closing time.

BURGLAR GETS $2740 GEMS

A person well acquainted with Mrs. Rose Wiseman's practice of hiding her jewel box beneath a radiator in her home on Seaver st., Dorchester, is being hunted following her report to police that she found her gems, valued at $2740, missing on her return home.

Mrs. Wiseman believes no chance thief would think of looking in such a place.

Included among the missing gems are a pearl bracelet set with diamonds, a platinum ring set with three diamonds and two sapphires, a platinum studded lavalliere inlaid with 35 small diamonds, two platinum diamond rings set with small diamonds and sapphires and a platinum studded wrist watch.

BANDIT ROUTED BY CAB DRIVER

Roxbury police today were searching for a thug who brandished a revolver at Maurio Zarmolo, taxicab driver, but fled when his intended victim brandished a crank handle.

Zarmolo informed the police of Roxbury Crossing station that he picked up this "fare" in front of a downtown theater. The man told him to drive to Parker Hill ave.

When they stopped on that thoroughfare, the passenger alighted and thrust one hand into a pocket as though to draw out money. Instead of money, however, he drew a revolver and ordered "Stick 'em up."

Zarmolo grabbed his crank handle from the car floor and leaped out of the taxi so belligerently that the would-be bandit backed off, then ran down the avenue slope to Huntington ave., with the irate Zarmolo in pursuit.

Committee Formed to Explain Dry Law

A committee of 500 men and women, organized to inform Chelsea voters on all phases of the wet and dry question, particularly on the merits of the present State enforcement law, is planned as a part of the prohibition campaign in Chelsea, according to George A. Paine, speaking as chairman of a union mass meeting in the Central Congregational Church, that city.

N. E. BUSINESS SHOWS STEADY ACTIVITY

Federal Reserve Bank of Boston Reports Increases in Many Industries

Business in New England showed a steady activity during the first two months of 1930, says the monthly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

The report says:

"It has been encouraging that during the first two months of 1930 activity in this district maintained a steady, even, though low, level after the sharp declines in November and December. There is usually a spring expansion, which in certain lines of industry begins in February, while in other industries it takes place later in the year.

BUILDING INCREASES

"New contracts awarded for residential buildings increased in February from the low January level. Commercial and industrial building dropped to a low level in December and increased slightly in January and again in February.

"More than usual seasonal increases took place in daily average cotton consumption and silk machinery activity. The increases were of minor proportions.

STORE SALES GAIN

"Sales of Boston department stores in the aggregate have been maintained at an unexpected volume, increases being reported in January and February over those months a year ago. Trend of total net sales, however, does not necessarily indicate profit margin trends.

"Sales of reporting New England department stores in January showed a larger percentage gain than any other district, while in February only two other districts reported larger increases than occurred in the Boston district. Preliminary reports for March indicate a smaller volume of sales in Boston department stores than in March a year ago."

WIDOW TO LOSE IF SHE REWEDS

The two children of the late George K. Bird of Norwood will benefit financially if their mother, Mrs. Katherine S. Bird remarries, while she will be the loser, under the terms of his will filed today in Dedham court.

The testator provides his widow with the income from his total estate if she remains unmarried, while if she re-weds, she will receive the income from only one-third and the two children, Martha S., and George K. Jr., will share equally the other two-thirds.

Aside from these conditional bequests, the testator left his widow $5000 outright in cash and willed the children $2500 each. The amount of the estate has not been made public.

Boy Bag Snatcher Nabbed After Chase

A mile chase through backyards and over fences ended in the capture of a 13-year-old Dorchester boy and his arrest on charges of hand bag snatching today.

The chase started at Adams and Parkman st., when the boy leaped off a bicycle and snatched the bag of Mrs. Helen Conway of Beaumont st. Mrs. Conway was returning from a shopping tour with Mrs. Margaret Malone, a next-door neighbor. Both women screamed and the boy fled, deserting the bicycle.

Special Officers Martin Monahan and Edward R. Brabazon caught the boy at Dorchester ave. and Center st. Before Judge Joseph R. Churchill in Dorchester court he was held in $200 bonds for a hearing tomorrow in juvenile court.

More Than A Million In Coal

Randall & McAllister Tell Us

"Our telephone service costs us about $8500 a year. It brings in $1,300,000 worth of business.

"We are always in touch with our customers and they like it. They know they get immediate service.

"Except for selling by telephone, we could not handle anything but the retail business in Portland. By telephone our only limit is the territory we want to ship to."

THERE is just one way to sell coal. That is to be "on the spot" when customers want a supply.

To make weekly visits to a large list of customers in Maine, for instance, would require at least a dozen salesmen traveling steadily.

The cost would be at least sixty-thousand dollars a year. And travel as they might, they could not hope to be on the spot for every order.

Randall & McAllister, Portland, have one wholesale salesman who handles the entire state of Maine—and covers the major cities of New Hampshire, "in his spare time."

Of course, he's a good salesman, but not the superman you might suppose. HE DOES MOST OF HIS BUSINESS BY TELEPHONE FROM KEY CITIES.

MORE *customers and more business are on the horizon of every New England business man. Selling by telephone is a proved way of widening that horizon and bringing in the business. QUEST FOR "GOLDEN CALF" BRINGS MIRTH TO B. F. KEITH'S SCREEN

FUNSTERS WIN THEIR LAURELS

The Cast

Philip Homer	Jack Mulhall
Marybelle Cobb	Sue Carol
Knute Olsen	El Brendel
Alice	Marjorie White
Tommie	Richard Keene
Edwards	Paul Page
Master of Ceremonies	Walter Catlett
Comedienne	Ilka Chase

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

WHEN Marjorie White whangs El Brendel over the noodle with a vase and the victim is laid in a bathtub, one finds a high spot of humor comparable with that peak point of 1929, when Winnie Lightner leaped from a banquet table squarely upon the tummy of Albert Cram. It would be unfair to say that Marjorie and El have everything their own way in "The Golden Calf," now at the New B. F. Keith's, but they do lay on a lot of talent for funmaking.

THEY call this a comedy of love, laughter and legs. Of the last two there is an abundance; of love there is much less, which gives one not the slightest ache of regret. For the mirth effervesces in an almost steady stream. At times the audience comes back with such guffaws that succeeding lines are drowned out of hearing. This is not the type of "leg show" known to the stage door "Johnnies," but the lower limbs are here in great number, and all in truth very shapely. The story is frothy enough, befitting the theme, and occasional songs break the snappy dialogue. The central thread deals with the romance of Jack Mulhall, illustrator, and his secretary, Sue Carol. Sue does a good job at make-up, looking prim enough with her spectacles and long skirt et cetera. For some reason or other Jack starts a hunt for the girl with the "golden calf." From the way things turn out, one suspects the studio folk had measured Sue from knee to instep before the filming began.

El Brendel

RESPONDING to a newspaper "ad" comes an army of a big city's prettiest ready to stand the test of the circling tape measure. Jack and El are judge and referee, and they do their task well. For this reason and that, Sue finds herself out of the running until she adopts a ruse, and is in the end accounted the possessor of the world's perfect underpinnings. There is a fairly clever subplot bringing out much dancing and finally revealing Sue in clothing that sets off all her sweet beauty.

MARJORIE WHITE is ready for stardom. She has so much of pep and personality and ability that she puts the so-called screen stars to shame. El Brendel is, as usual, a barrelful of laughs. Richard Keene not only can sing and dance, but has a pleasing appearance which should get him somewhere in Hollywood. Jack Mulhall is excellent without having to do much acting and Miss Carol shines except when she has to add to the talking. Direction of Millard Webb is at par, the action is speedy and the photography mighty good. The picture is one to be prescribed for driving away blues of any variety whatsoever.

Rubinoff Returns to the Metropolitan

The Metropolitan has for a stage show this week Boris Petroff's colorful revue "On Top O' The World," featuring Bert Gordon, comedian, assisted by Vera Kingston, Bernardo DePace, the mandolin wizard, the Emil Entot Girls and the Fred Evans Globe Trotters. This rainbow of color, talent and entertainment is headed by Ray Teal as guest master of ceremonies.

Dave Rubinoff

Dave Rubinoff guest conductor at the Metropolitan Theater on former occasions, is back for a limited engagement. The Metropolitan Grand Orchestra, under his direction, presents a colorful stirring overture entitled "Paramount Hits." Sound news, a special sound film, "Match Play," featuring Walter Hagen, professional golf champion, and additional short features complete the program.

Lovable

VILMA BANKY AND EDWARD ROBINSON

MISS BANKY is the lovable person in "A Lady to Love," opening at Loew's State today. She talks the love language, too.

HUB COUPLE ON ALBEE STAGE

WILLIAM BOYD fans will like their favorite in "Officer O'Brien," for ample opportunity is given the star to disport his looks and talents. The photoplay is a racketeer story involving the police. It teems with melodramatic situations and gives the able Ernest Torrence a chance to prove that he is really a shining light, histrionically, even if he isn't as handsome as Mr. Boyd. But the first laurels fall to Clyde Cook, that sterling comedian of the screen who never fails to get the laughs let the chips fall where they may. Dorothy Sebastian has the feminine lead.

The stage program is another bang-up bill, with three acts in sight, each of which could be the headliner. One of these is that of Jay Dillon and Betty Parker of Cambridge, a couple more home folks who have "made good" as the saying goes. These two young artists have long been favorites of vaudeville and musical comedy and with their little company of five they present this week their idea of "Stage Fashions."

From way up North comes Lieut. Gitz Rice bringing with him half a dozen Northwest Mounties and the charming Gabrielle Tremblay, a Canadienne, in a cycle of new and original songs. Lieut. Rice is not only famous for his Great War songs, but was the first one to present himself for enlistment in Canada at the outbreak of the war. Among some of his best remembered epic songs are "Mile. from Armentieres," "Keep Your Head Down, Fritzie Boy," "Dear Old Pal o' Mine" and "We Stopped Them on the Marne."

The third headline feature act is Nelson Clifford and Marie Marion in a new version of their comedy classic so well known on the variety stage, "Just Dumb." Stan Kavanagh with Hetty Happy manufacturing bigger and better laughs, and the Honey Family who offer an amazing interlude of gymnastics complete the Keith-Albee vaudeville program.

JEAN HERSHOLT CAPTURES CHIEF "MAMBA" HONORS

"MAMBA," first all-technicolor straight drama, may be welcomed first of all as a delightful change, getting away from the song-and-dance and gangster tales and taking the fan far afield into Africa for its stage of love and adventure. This Tiffany production is now the feature offering at the Modern, Beacon and Egyptian.

The Cast

August Bolte	Jean Hersholt
Helen von Linden	Eleanor Boardman
Karl von Reiden	Ralph Forbes
Count von Linden	Josef Swickard
Major Cromwell	Claude Fleming
Cockney Servant	William Stanton
Major von Schultz	William von Brincken
Hassim	Noble Johnson
Hassim's Daughter	Hazel Jones
British Soldier	Arthur Stone
German Soldier	Torben Meyer

JEAN HERSHOLT gives the outstanding characterization and is easily the bright star. He is given excellent support by Eleanor Boardman and Ralph Forbes. Miss Boardman is charming, and though far from home lands, wears stunning gowns most effectively. "Mamba" is a spectacular production, tells a strong story, is nicely directed and beautifully photographed. For the first time is found in a screen drama the strange situation that sprang up between English and German soldiers and civilians who had lived for years as friends and neighbors in the African colonies of those two countries and suddenly found themselves facing each other as enemies by reason of the outbreak of the great war in faraway Europe. Color subjects, of course, have been made before and are, in themselves, no novelty, but the background of "Mamba"—the African jungle, the tropics, the gaudy war regalia of the natives, the flashing uniforms of German and British Colonial troops—offers a kaleidoscope before unequaled.

Ralph Forbes

"Mamba" presents limitless jungles, the veldt and impenetrable forests. We see a native village with its hundreds of blacks, a never-ending menace to the whites, regardless of nationality. We see the savages in their picturesque and often terrifying tribal dances. We see the burning of the native village and, finally, the attack by the horde of black savages on the little settlement, defended by only a handful of men in command of a German officer who has determined to die fighting. Then the shrill note of a bugle signals the arrival of a crushing force of British, who save the day.

The title, "Mamba," is the name of a deadly snake of the country, and is made to symbolize the character of "Bolte," brutish planter, played by Mr. Hersholt.

Miss Boardman is exquisite as the flower of German nobility who marries Bolte because his money will save her impoverished father, but it is not until after she had made the sacrifice that she learns what a beast he is and that he is the most despised man in East Africa. When she meets Karl von Reiden, so gallantly played by Ralph Forbes, a romance starts that leads to many tense dramatic situations.

MUSIC DRAMA AT REPERTORY

EMIL JANNINGS isn't the only great German film actor. "Die Meistersinger," which opened yesterday at the Repertory, gives us a glimpse of two native artists who are extremely good. Rudolf Rittner and Gustav Froehlich, who plays "Hans Sachs" and "Walter von Stolzing," respectively, in this German interpretation of Wagner's music drama, are actors of the first rank. Maria Solveg, formerly with Reinhardt, plays the part of a perplexed heroine with a directness and charm.

The play itself is a thing of glamorous romance. Shadows are more prominent than light and the great dim beauty of the medieval town and time in which the action takes place offers rich material for the artistic cameraman.

Crystal Beads Glitter in Technicolor "Sun"

Crystal beads are coming into their own again in the modes, as the latest embellishment for the evening gown. Especially for blondes, says Catherine Dale Owen, stage and screen beauty, are the shimmering bits of cold fire especially adaptable. In her role opposite Lawrence Tibbett, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-Technicolor operetta, "The Rogue Song," which is on the screen at Loew's Orpheum this week Miss Owen had the fullest opportunity to try out this form of design.

"High Road"

M-G-M has placed "High Road" in production with Ruth Chatterton in the principal role. The film is based on the Frederick Lonsdale play. Sidney Franklin is directing.

Roland Hayes

Roland Hayes, returning from an extensive tour of Middle Western and Pacific Coast cities, will give a third recital in Boston before sailing for Europe. The Negro tenor will appear in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, April 20.

GAY DOLORES ON FENWAY SCREEN

DOLORES COSTELLO has portrayed so many different characters in her career it is no surprise that in the role of Vallery Grove in "Second Choice" now at the Fenway, she so captivatingly characterizes the modern girl, outwardly different but in reality the same as the girls of all ages.

Vallery's scheming mother objects to the poor young man whom she so ardently champions, until he himself jilts her for a girl with money. Mortified, she accepts the attentions of another youth who has himself been thrown over by a fickle sweetheart.

In momentary abandon Owen Mallory proposes marriage and Vallery accepts. The couple are married, each thinking of the one each has lost. Don Warren casts aside the wealthy woman and returns to urge Vallery to leave her husband. The latter comes on the scene at the moment when she is trying to repel the drunken pleadings of the lover. The denouement furnishes a surprise.

Chester Morris and Jack Mulhall are forceful and convincing as the rivals.

DOUBLE BILL AT PARK

Dorothy Revier

THE Park this week has a double feature program. At the top is "Vengeance," with Jack Holt and Dorothy Revier. This is a diverting and absorbing drama of life in an English trading post in West Africa.

The story is well knit together and the dialogue is to the point. Meadham, the man who has for several years been in charge of the trading post, has asked the London police for relief. In answer to this request, Charles Summers is sent out. He arrives with his young wife. He is censured for his poor judgment in bringing her to such a place. An intense antagonism develops between Meadham and Summers because of Summers' poor judgment in handling the natives.

MANTLE NOW THE SON'S

THERE seems to be no end to theatrical traditions among the Copley players. As far back as he can remember, Francis Compton, who rejoined the Copley group this season, has listened to fascinating tales of the old days in the theater when one or another of the Compton ancestors was in the forefront of theatrical history.

Even before the days of gas-lit "sets," when a long row of sputtering candles was strung across the stage for footlights, Henry Compton was being acclaimed by London audiences as the greatest of Shakespearean comedians. In a later day, the Compton Comedy Company was founded and managed by Edward Compton, who gave his son, the present Francis Compton, his first opportunity as a youthful and ambitious actor.

Mr. Compton's mother was a famous Southern beauty and a star in her own name, for, with her sister, Virginia Bateman, daughter of Colonel Bateman of Baltimore, was the idol of her audiences both in America and in England.

VON STROHEIM RETURNS AGAIN AS PRODUCER

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service

ENTER again the golden banking interests into our film life. Eric Von Stroheim has been backed to the tune of enough money to produce pictures independently. The American Finance Company, the promoter of this little deal, must have an unlimited bank account for no one can ever say that Von is cheap when it comes to making pictures.

Louella O. Parsons

He had been offered a contract with Warners and was all but ready to sign when the chance to produce was handed him. Let's hope this time he will conserve some of the cash and make a picture that can be released as it is directed.

His first is an original story, "Mitzi" by John Farrow. Johnny who recently left Paramount, is one of our prolific young writers. His story, written for Von Stroheim, is laid in Vienna with the World War as a background. Sounds Von Stroheim-ish, doesn't it, with the hero an Austrian naval officer and the heroine an entertainer in a cafe.

HEAVY conferences and business tangles aren't keeping Winfield Sheehan from having his weather eye out for prospects for Fox Pictures. In fact, he went on a regular signing spree this past week and put Charles Winninger, husband of Blanche Ring, an excellent comedian, under contract. He also signed Humphrey Bogart, one of Broadway's leading stage men as well as Ted Healy, singer and dancer, Ruth Warren, Dorothy Jacobson, Althea Heinley, the Keating Sisters, John Swor and Robert Burns, "Black and Blue." They will be out here just as soon as they finish their current shows in New York, which makes me believe that our population in Hollywood is going to increase more than ever during the summer. Too bad the census taker can't wait until that time to take the population.

BUCHANAN IN AGAIN

THE matinee idol, Jack Buchanan, an Englishman, who first came to this country with Bee Lillie and Gertrude Lawrence in "Charlot's Revue," has signed with Paramount for the Ernst Lubitsch picture. Buchanan will play the male lead in "Monte Carlo" opposite Jeanette MacDonald. It will be interesting to see if the Englishman makes as good a showing as the Frenchman did in "The Love Parade." Mr. Buchanan will have to work fast to equal Maurice Chevalier, who is at the moment the secret sorrow of many women. Zazu Pitts has also been signed by Paramount for an important role.

IT didn't take John Stahl long to fit himself into the old groove at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It was as if he had never been away. He and Samuel Shipman are now working on "Remote Control," which will be the first Stahl production for M. G. M. Sammy is writing the scenario, assisted by Mr. Stahl, who traveled to New York to see the play, which had a long run there. Another interesting piece of M. G. M. news concerns Katherine Norris, who has sold the screen rights to her latest book, "The Passion Flower," to M. G. M. At least such a report comes from New York.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Barbara Bennett leading one wire-haired terrier into the Brown Derby, and her husband, Morton Downey, playing valet to another cute canine. Hoot Gibson planning a rodeo at the Baker ranch which he just purchased. Vivienne Segal, wearing a black and white beret, sitting in a ringside seat at the Friday night bouts at the Hollywood Stadium. Sally Eilers in white, Lilyan Tashman hiding her face behind a program when the scene became too hectic. Mrs. Albert Kaufman, Barbara Stanwyck and Frank Fay and others among those present. Joe E. Brown and Mervyn Le Roy talking story on "Top Speed" at the Brown Derby. Carey Wilson taking the members of the bachelors table at the embassy out for a fishing expedition. Plenty of fish stories told. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Stage Who's Who

Carola Taylor

WHEN Carola Taylor, now of "The New Moon," at the Shubert, went on the stage four and a half years ago, she gave herself five years in which to attain success. In the mean time she has been preparing herself for another career in case she did not become a full-fledged actress within the time limit. In the fall of 1925, Miss Taylor, fresh from the Erasmus high school in New York, was selected by Ziegfeld for his current Follies. She was a dancer in that show and was later transferred to "Kid Boots" to understudy Mary Eaton. In succession she has appeared in "Queen High," "Good News," "Yes, Yes, Yvette" and "The New Moon," always playing some hit, but never achieving the status of a bona fide principal. In "The New Moon," for instance, she appears as the dancing girl in the tavern scene.

Screen Shorts

Work will be started soon on Billie Dove's next for First National titled "The Devil's Playground." William Beaudine will direct.

D. W. Griffith has signed Helen Ware for a part in "Abraham Lincoln."

Rudolph Friml will write the music for "Bird of Paradise," which Arthur Hammerstein will produce for United Artists.

Katherine Moylan, former Ziegfeld beauty, now under contract to M-G-M, will make her initial appearance before the camera and "mike" as the feminine lead in William Haines' "Easy Going." Fred Niblo is directing.

CLASSY SHOW FOR SCOLLAY

"STREET OF CHANCE," William Powell's first starring picture, and one of the highly dramatic pictures of the year, is now showing at the Scollay Sq. Olympia.

Kay Francis creates her first sympathetic role as the faithful wife of "Natural Davis." Regis Toomey is cast as "Natural's" brother and Jean Arthur plays Toomey's wife.

On the stage the Kelso Bros. Revue, mammoth unit show that has broken all records throughout the country, is making its first Boston appearance. This revue, which is a good antidote for the blues, has 15 scenes and is made up of 30 people. The headliners of the act are Kelso Bros. in "Magic." Bee Starr appears in "In the Air for a Few Minutes." This is not an endurance flight, but just 16 good reasons for "Cuttin' Capers." Gallagher and Cox offer comedy sketch "Stepping Out," which is followed by the Sumatra Maidens, a group of accordion players.

At the Radio Dial

By THE RADIO EDITOR

THREE THOUSAND MILES of railroad travel to sing three numbers is the latest radio gesture. Gertrude Hayes, who bears the Hollywood classification of "whispering" soprano, has come East to whisper into the microphone tonight at 9:30 during the General Motors hour.

THE THREE songs which Miss Hayes will warble are "Little by Little," "Song of the Dawn," and "That Wonderful Something Is Love." The affair takes place in the new auditorium studio of N. B. C. in Times sq., and there will be five or six hundred celebrities of the stage, screen and studio present as audience. WEEI will carry the program locally.

Beatrice Belkin

BEATRICE BELKIN, that high soaring songbird long identified with Roxy's Monday night broadcasts, will bid farewell to her radio audience during tonight's "Gang" program on the Blue Network and WBZ at 8. She leaves next week for Amsterdam to undertake a European concert tour starting in that city and winding up in E[illegible]an.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE audition of Atwater-Kent contestants for annual prizes totalling $25,000, will be heard over WBZ. Aiden Redmond of that station has been appointed manager of the New Hampshire State competition of young singers.

STAND BACK—DON'T CROWD.

BLESSED be the veil of invisibility which preserves the illusions and the solemn sanctity of radio. Tonight's Evening in Paris program on Columbia stations would be no fit sight for nervous reviewers if television were in the fullness of its powers. The actors and singers are going to reproduce in sound the high spots in one of the most popular recent comic operas of the Paris stage. The piece, which has run at the Bouffes Parisiennes, bears the naughty name of "Trois Jeunes Filles Nues," and any doughboy will tell you that that title means, "Three—er—er—well anyway, Three Girls who Haven't any er—er—who er—er—who forgottoputtheirclotheson."

RUDY VALLEE and Graham McNamee are both left-handed. On the other hand, there are plenty of left handed chaps who are neither saxophone players nor radio announcers. Some of them get no further than writing radio columns.

THE SELECTION of "The Prisoner's Song" as part of tonight radio program by a washing machine company was probably inadvertent. It strikes me as having something deep and dark and subtle in it, though.

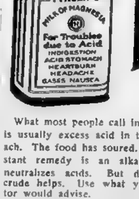
Stop contagious COLD in a day

Don't make others innocent victims of your cold germs! At the same time, think of your own health. No one can tell what a "small" cold will develop into. Take steps to stop any cold immediately. The dependable thing is HILL'S CASCARA-QUININE. These famous tablets break up a cold in one day because they do the four necessary things in one. 1—Stop the cold. 2—Check the fever. 3—Open the bowels. 4—Tone the system. That's the complete action a cold requires. Ask for the RED BOX. ALL Druggists.

HILL'S CASCARA-QUININE



Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Daily Health Hint for Readers

SLIGHTLY large tonsils are not necessarily diseased, and often, contrarywise, a healthy-looking tonsil may be dangerous to health. It is best to consult a specialist in nose and throat diseases. Tonsils are often removed for slight cause and a safeguard to later days.

SELFISHNESS IS THE REAL HOME-BREAKER

Club of Girls Advised by Love Problem Expert

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

A GIRLS' club has written me such a nice, sensible letter asking what, in my opinion, causes the wreck of so many marriages, and the constant increase of divorce in these United States.

Beatrice Fairfax

The club in question is not especially interested in getting married; indeed, as the members all make good salaries and have very good times, they're afraid of giving up a certainty for something that appears to them as uncertain as marriage. The girls, who are all employed in down town offices, get together at dinner, once a week, and discuss everything from lipsticks to the tariff, celibacy versus marriage. The name of the club is The Clearing House.

They write: "You must have had thousands of letters from unhappy husbands and wives, people who are either divorced or on the point of getting a divorce. What, in your judgment, is the greatest source of unhappiness in married life?"

Without any hesitation whatever, I can sum up the question in one word—selfishness. Just plain, everyday, common or garden selfishness causes the wreck of more marriages than infidelity, drinking, failure to provide, or what we call incompatibility of temperament.

Selfishness wears down like an emery-wheel all those things which make comradeship endurable—forbearance, admiration, love.

When selfish people "fall in love" they do not realize it's with themselves they are enamored—the beloved is just one more object that ministers to their own self-love and egoism. The girl wants the man because he spends liberally, gives her a good time, makes her envied by other girls. And the man wants the girl because she is pretty, is a good dresser, he likes to be seen with her—she's his showcase. And so it goes.

The trouble with these people is that they do not realize the extent of their own self-love. They continue absolutely devoted to themselves and blame their unhappiness on their luckless partners. Neither women nor men have a monopoly of selfishness—it's a blight that goes 50-50.

Women know that men hate to be nagged about untidiness, the things they've forgotten to bring home (Attention, suburban wives!), the things they cannot help, perhaps—like not having enough money to hand out, not wanting to go to parties after a hard day's work. Still the nagging wife will talk, sometimes over the evening meal.

And men do not realize how much nerve force, muscle, will power go into keeping a house sweet and clean, cooking meals, tending babies—they do not realize that the tired housewife must have an occasional outing. They do not realize that clothes wear out; that to appear shabbily dressed—when the husband spends for all sorts of self-indulgence—is not only a strain on pride but on affection as well.

A woman wrote me the other day and said she'd been married four years and was still wearing her wedding trousseau made over and over again. Also that she had cut up her winter coat to make coats for the babies—there are two of them. The husband gets a good salary, but his weakness is being popular; he asks the men in his department to lunch with him, sometimes three and four at a time. This gentleman would better consider that popularity begins at home.

This letter is balanced by one from a man saying that his wife feeds him entirely out of cans (he says he feels like a goat, and begins to think he is one) while she tears off to her bridge club to play for prizes which her husband says are "rotten." This lady is overlooking the best of all prizes—a home.

Trying the New Teacher

By Constance Cameron

ASK any teacher who has ever done "supply" work what the reaction of the children is to a new teacher. She will no doubt tell you that they do everything under the sun to "try" her. The general idea seems to be to determine at the start just how far they can go with impunity. And if the teacher wants to save trouble she usually complies with their desire and has it understood, not so much by words as through her attitude and purpose, just what she is going to demand in the way of discipline.

Constance Cameron

To many mothers who are now guiding group play, caring for several neighborhood children one afternoon a week, or otherwise taking charge of a group of youngsters for a period of time, this is a phase of childhood heretofore unconsidered because unmet.

I've seen leaders of groups of children the most successful when they regarded the children as people, not a herd of little animals who did or did not jump at the crack of the whip. One can only get discipline over a group through a sincere consideration of group likes, dislikes, problems or rejoicings. One can only meet a child on his own ground when one is sincere with each child, when he means what he says, and keeps his word.

Any attempt at bluffing a group of children will only end in your defeat.

As an example of children's reaction to fair play, a man told us the other night of an incident when he was a small boy. It was a small town and there was the "old swimmin' hole," into which the boys plunged, omitting the slight ceremony of donning bathing suits. There was a policeman on horseback, whom they all knew. They called him "Slim." He was friendly; he liked small boys, but, the man who told the story marveled, they obeyed him, and he can't quite understand why, even now.

"Slim" had said that the next time he caught them in the pool without suits he'd have to take one of them to the police station. So a howling, dripping lad was hoisted up on to the broad back of the horse, while a parade of dripping, dressing, buttoning lads followed after, pleading and crying. "Slim" stopped and turned to them. "If I let Jimmy go this time will you fellows promise me, word of honor, you won't do that any more?" They promised, very gravely, and Jimmy slid off the horse. "And," continued the man, "we never did break our promise, either."

Of course, they didn't. "Slim" meant business, but "Slim" was just. He met them on grounds of friends, equals, not on the premise that they were small boys, little nuisances to be bullied into good behavior.

Be fair with your group of youngsters. But if you lay down an ultimatum, stick to it.

You Should Stop Arguing

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a girl for a year and a half and we love each other dearly. She gave up a man she's been going with two years to go with me. But we always argue and we could never seem to agree on any subject. A short time ago we ran away and got married in the hope that we would stop arguing and live happily—although we don't live together, as we are secretly married. The arguments still continue and I can't find a solution; we can't part and we wouldn't even if we weren't married.

A. I.

THE "solution" you should both try to find is a little more self control. When the argument begins, just smile and tell your wife she's minus a sparring partner this time. You seem to be the type of couple that can neither live with or without each other. Stop the arguments before they become chronic.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A year ago both A and B were in love with me. I chose A, the handsome one. We have been married six months. Now I feel that I have made a mistake, and B thinks so, too. What shall we do?

PEGGY.

CAN it be, you frivolous child, that you have no mother? Was there no one to suggest deferring your marriage until you discovered which of these boys you really preferred? And having married the handsome one, must I explain to you, my dear Peggy, that you are bound to try to make the marriage a success, which it will not be if you allow B to make love to you. My urgent common-sense advice is that you banish B immediately, try to be a good wife to A, and fill up your time as far as possible with some useful occupation.

She's going to strike, and I'm going to dodge it."

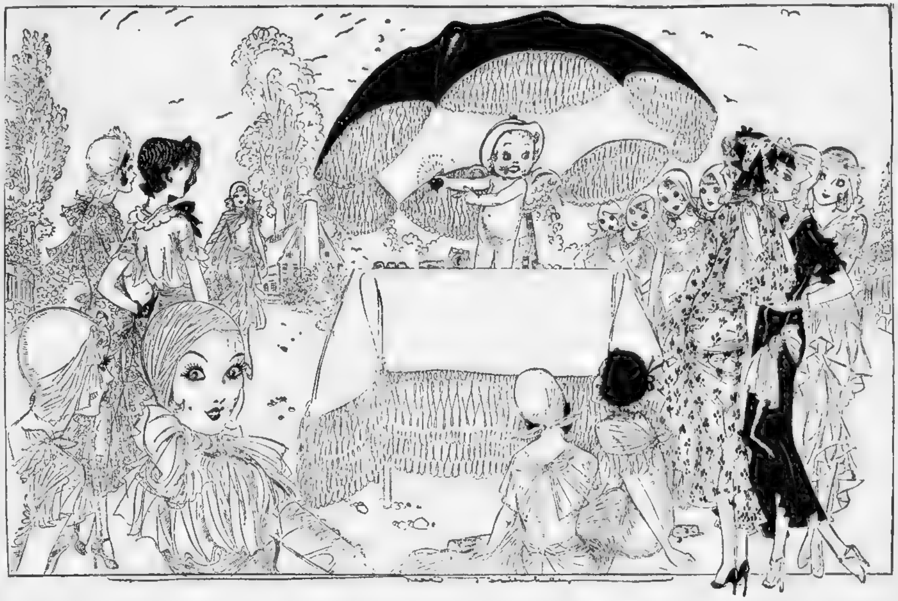
"Nothing Up His Sleeve" -:- -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley



"NOTHING up his sleeve," indeed, for the champion sleight-of-hand artist of all times and places is as naked as a young birch tree in the spring. He has no sleeves, or other impedimenta, no collar, no tie, and his entire skin-space is infant-size, impossible to conceal a water-fall of red roses upon!

Nevertheless he manages. He produces wonders from nowhere. He colors the entire world any tone he pleases, with a flourish of his fat hand. Before the eyes of his admiring villagers he can cause winter to turn to spring; a bed of violets to replace a snow-bank in the time that it takes to look into the eyes of your sugar and say "J'taime!" He can turn a fire-escape under the moon into a rustic landscape for a fleeting moment of magic. He can make a country lane an avenue in the Garden of Paradise, the flowers to sing, the "stones to speak," the clouds to be peopled with the black-eyed houri of fairy-tales.

He can make a tiny man into a BIG one for some doting maid. He can turn mousey hair to gold, and take pounds off the plump damoselle for some honest young man. Sometimes, and isn't it lovely? the maid and the honest young man never see one another again with the eyes of the rest of the world!

And 'round him while he works his wonders in the villages of the world, bright eyes watch and grow brighter. Red lips smile and grow more red. "Isn't he a wonder! How does he do it?"

Nothing up his sleeve indeed. No sleeve. No vest. Candid eyed if ever anyone was. He MUST be the wizard of wizards, the mightiest magician of all magicians.

And yet, there is always someone to drift by, while LOVE is working his most marvelous magic, to drift by and say, aloud, "FAKER!"—NELL BRINKLEY unagitated; the crimped head merely bent lower over the morning paper.

Girl Unafraid, a Serial

For a moment the girl remained motionless in the doorway, deep hazel eyes fastened on Aunt Stel's head, where the brown switch in back did not match the crimped gray in front. Then Ardeth turned and went steadily down the stairs.

The street was bleak in the flat, foggy light of morning. She noticed how the pavements were chalked with hopscotch games—just as she and Bet had chalked them when they played on the street as youngsters. And now she was leaving this home forever. . . .

Passing the sunken cellar steps of the grocery store at the corner, always a favorite refuge in hide-and-go-seek games, she remembered hiding there with Neil one warm evening—the excitement and close contact of their warm bodies as they had crouched in a corner. It was the first time Neil had kissed her.

Now the trade winds had swirled scattered newspapers in there. They rustled bleakly as she passed, and, for no particular reason Ardeth felt a lump come in her throat and very young tears stung her eyes.

She found a room in a European plan hotel. It was hardly larger than a closet, wedged in at the angle of an ell, with its one window overlooking a stretch of gravel roof and chimney tops. Even at that the rent was a trifle more than Ardeth had intended paying. But it was within walking distance of the shop and by economizing and preparing her breakfasts on an electric plate, she could manage.

It contained a narrow couch which could be converted to a bed at night. In the daytime it would take on enough of a living room appearance to permit company.

Her spirits, with the quick rebound of youth, soared again. Pleasant to have a room all to herself and not have to share the bed with Bet. No one scolding—no one spying. Scratched a bit—the golden oak furniture, and the Brussels carpet was a little faded, but it was scrupulously neat and very peaceful up here among the chimney tops.

She paid the first week's rent in advance and sent an expressman for her trunk.

When she went to the shop that afternoon she found Jeanette flurried and slightly cross at having to manage by herself. She gladly turned the care of the outer shop to Ardeth without questioning her, and disappeared into the smokerie.

The smokerie was well patronized today. Ardeth could hear Phyllis Hawkins' baby drawl. The Duvant twins' squeals of delighted horror. She heard the silky tones of Cyril Underhill and Cecile's high tinkling laugh, like thin ice breaking against crystal.

But Cecile could not trouble Ardeth today, hugging the warm thought of Ken's love to her heart.

Each time the shop door opened her heart leaped and her cheeks flushed with expectancy. But it was only Mary Eastwood. Her cool, pleasant voice as she passed through to the smokerie, "Ardeth child, we missed you!"

Only Tom Corbett's stocky figure. His broad, honest grin. He came over to the glass case and talked, pretending to be absorbed by the beads she was restringing. He went away without going into the smokerie, and Ardeth realized with secret surprise and a small feminine glow of satisfaction that Tom's real reason for coming here was to see her.

And when she left the shop that night—the last to go, there was Ken's tall figure waiting up at the corner near the flower stand.

Tingling gladness going through her as she walked toward him. Her heart melting under its weight of love as he captured one wrist, drew it through his own arm. Flashing his proud smile at her.

"Hello—my girl! The day's been a thousand years long. Stay out to dinner?"

Household Hints

In place of tiles, which are, of course, the ideal surround for a stove, try giving the surround a coat of aluminum paint. It is bright and attractive and is easily kept clean with a little whitening

After washing silk stockings give them a final rinsing in clean water to which a little vinegar has been added. This will remove any trace of soap and preserve the silk.

Aluminum saucepans are best cleaned with hot, soapy water. Soda must not be used, as it turns the metal black; but silver sand may be employed to remove discoloration.

After boiling salt beef, leave two or three cooked carrots in the liquor until cold; the carrots will absorb the salt and the liquor can be used for soup.

Turpentine will soften shoe polish that has become hard.

If silver is stored in a box or tin filled with powdered starch, it will be bright when taken out.

Rude of the Hostess

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN,

My daughter, 18 years of age, was invited to a dancing party given by a friend for her daughter at one of the clubs in town. My daughter asked her if it would be possible to send an escort. I also asked the mother who was the hostess, and a friend, if someone would accompany my daughter to this dance. She told me that she would look over the list of guests, and let me know. We heard no more about it and no escort appeared. Consequently my daughter did not go. Is it up to us to apologize? I realise the hostess is not expected to furnish escorts for all the girls invited, but when requested as a favor, we feel hurt. Furthermore, the hostess has two sons—my daughter is an only child.

Roslindale. MRS. A. D.

The hostess should have let you know concerning the sending of an escort. It was rude of her not to answer definitely.

On the other hand, it would have been better for you to have asked your hostess' permission for your daughter to bring her own escort. This is often done, and hostesses more or less expect it. This would have meant no trouble to the hostess—indeed, it would make everything easier for her, whereas she evidently took the point of view that sending an escort for your daughter would mean too much planning for her, what with all the other plans that she must make for her party.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

When a gentleman is dancing with a lady and she is wearing a coat, cape, wrap of any kind, or even a large collar that hangs in the back, is it correct for him to place his hand under or over the coat, cape, wrap or collar?

It is understood, of course, that a lady does not dance with a coat, but sometimes occasions present themselves as such that it cannot be helped; therefore, we should like to know about this exception.

Dorchester. ALMA.

The gentleman places his hand over the lady's coat, cape, or wrap. If, however, the lady is wearing a particularly fragile long lace collar he would, thoughtfully, hold his hand either below the collar, if possible, or, if the collar is too long, under the collar.

John T., Watertown. A guest at an afternoon wedding should wear a cutaway coat.

Marry-Go-Round

THE "SYMPTOM" AGE

A WOMAN has not reached middle-aged until "an appointment with the doctor" is almost as intriguing and exciting as "a date with the Boy Friend" used to be.

To a woman who has reached the "symptom" age there is something positively alluring about the consulting room; and a whole year, without a single operation in it seems awfully dull and flat.

There is something about a surgeon almost beguiling to a woman with the hospital-habit. Given a clean white coat, a pair of powerful white hands, and a tender, interested bedside manner, and the most ordinary man becomes a sort of demi-god, radiating sweetness and hope.

TO the woman who sits opposite him at breakfast he may be just a prosaic, mundane, everyday husband, full of bacon and eggs and human weaknesses.

To the woman who sits opposite him in his consulting room he appears a superhuman Being invested with some miraculous power to SAVE her.

The average woman feels that her surgeon can 'save' her from ANYTHING, even ennui! Lots of women, I am sure, go to the hospital, at least once a year, just in order to have their boredom removed and their lassitude reduced.

Much of a surgeon's strange fascination, of course, is in his uniform. Watch a man doff his tweed coat and don his professional apron with its military collar—and behold, a metamorphosis! From a mere man, he is transformed suddenly into a mysteriously omnipotent being calculated to make any woman forget where the pain is.

Then again, there is a thrill in the thought that he knows every heartbeat, corpuscle and reaction in her system—and is INTERESTED in them. He's go[illegible]!

The one time that a woman can be sure that a man's interest is completely centered in her is when she is 'consulting' him, and he is taking a "history" of her case.

ALMOST any surgeon can make a woman believe that money is no object and that her happiness and well-being are the dearest things to his heart.

After that, she is willing to "give up" anything, from her tonsils to her appendix. As far as SHE is concerned, he could remove her house and lot, and she would never murmur!

There is no thrill to a woman at the 'symptom' age like being a 'serious case.' She would rather be 'in the hands of a surgeon' than in the arms of a lover!

* * *

And of course, it is not until long afterward when the bill comes in that she wakes up to the realization that she is just a number in his card index.

Neuralgia in the Face

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health.

"TIC DOULOUREUX" is a French term meaning 'painful spasm.' It is applied to a form of neuralgia in the face.

Dr. Copeland

It is quite distinct from the ordinary neuralgia. It involves the parts of the head supplied by the "trigeminal" nerve.

This nerve, as its name indicates, divides into three branches. One branch goes to the end of the nose, the eyelids and the forehead. Another goes to the upper lip, the cheek and temple. A third goes to the skin of the lower jaw and the area in front of the ear.

You will see that this nerve, through its branches, suplies the whole face. Not only does it give motive power to the muscles located in this region, but it also supplies the sense of feeling. Wherever these branches extend, there are the locations of the excruciating pains which accompany this ailment.

When the nerve becomes overstimulated, there is a twitching or contraction of the jaw and face. Acute pain is felt in that part supplied by the affected branch of the nerve. The pain usually attacks the eyeball and is felt over the eye.

It is an ailment more commonly met in people over 40 than among the young. Diseases of the teeth and jawbone may be responsible for this trouble. If the antrum, that hollow space in the bone under the cheek, is involved, here is the source of the trouble.

Overwork and loss of sleep, a rundown condition, or exposure to wet and cold may bring on this condition. It may last only a day or two at a time, or it may continue for several weeks. It may not occur often, long intervals of comfort being experienced. The attacks come on suddenly.

The symptoms are very pronounced. There are severe cutting, shooting and dagger-like pains. The first symptom may be located in the side of the nose and the upper lip. The pain extends to the cheek, eye and temple, into the teeth and all over the one side of the head.

Sometimes the muscles of the face twitch and contract. The patient runs down under the terrible pain. He loses sleep and there is always the dread of other attacks.

None of the usual hot applications or other treatments in cases of ordinary neuralgia seem to have any effect on this condition. Drugs should be taken only under a competent physician's orders. There is always the danger of contracting a bad habit if self medication is used.

Various operative measures have been used. The pain is so acute that patients would resort to almost anything to end the suffering. Removal of a section of the nerve has been done. Another treatment is to inject alcohol into the nerve itself. This procedure has given relief at least temporarily, and anything that affords relief from such suffering is worthwhile.

Do You Know That—

Women outlive men owing to several reasons, one of which being that they breathe a much greater number of times to the minute. This burns up the body's waste products.

Our most fatal diseases are diseases of the heart and circulation, respiratory diseases, cancer, nervous disorders and all forms of tuberculosis in that order.

While the total outfit of clothing worn by a modern girl may weigh as little as 1 lb. 6 oz., her father's clothes will turn the scale at anything from 6¼ to 10¼ lbs.

The most difficult fish to keep alive in an aquarium is the common herring. This fish is so delicate that the loss of a few scales in catching it is invariably fatal.

Potatoes in their skins, fruit and vegetables and plenty of water drunk between meals will prevent rickets and many other ailments in children.

Cotton put through a new secret process is stated to form such a good substitute for wood that it can be used for making furniture, being sawn, carved, and polished just like the real thing.

When silk is being washed, a little salt added to the water helps to fix the color and also keeps the material soft.

If you use an oil stove add a teaspoon of vinegar to the oil. This will make it last longer and burn more brightly.

NEW ENGLAND RAIL MERGERS OPPOSED

By FRANK H. MELOON

It can be fairly stated that there is no buying of New England railroad stocks based on the expectation of a merger or mergers ahead. The Interstate Commerce Commission's suggestion for mergers in this section was received very coldly at the outset, and the thermometer has been going down ever since.

A few years ago the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Associated Industries of Massachusetts leaders favored a New England railroad consolidation. The financial picture has changed along with the leadership, and opposition to merger plans is registered by both of these important bodies, as well as by state executives and railroad heads.

Vice-President R. H. Grant of General Motors Corp., says today:

R. H. Grant

"We are entering a new era. We, in common with other stabilized businesses, have reached a point where the profit margins are no longer wide enough to permit of loose management. Aggressive sales enthusiasm must be counterbalanced with sound business planning based on adequate facts. The successful dealer of the future will apply the same intensive effort to his budgetary planning as he does to his sales technique—and the far-sighted manufacturer, in the control of his production schedules and in the development of his dealer policies will take full cognizance of the facts disclosed by the dealers' accounting records.

"It would be unfortunate, indeed, if the demands of this new era were to stifle the intense enthusiasm and aggressiveness which have served our industry so well and it is my prediction that the big rewards will continue to go to the sales type of individual whose aggressive enthusiasm and resourcefulness will be applied with telling effect to the problems of retail management through scientific control on the basis of adequate facts."

Optimism over the European export market as a field for the American manufacturer of time control equipment was expressed by E. E. • • •

"Increasing industrialization of Europe on the American model," Mr. Spencer said, "is creating vast additional markets for American corporations which have developed office appliances and control apparatus so widely employed in large-scale industry in this country. The United States has a long lead in the production of such devices, and its pioneering efforts are being repaid in the great expansion of the export markets for these products in recent years." STEEL'S RISE HALTS TAKING OF PROFITS

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, March 31 (AP)—The stock market, which moved into new high ground for the year last week, turned irregular today under a heavy wave of profit-taking.

A score or more issues dropped 1 to 5 points below Saturday's quotations, with a sprinkling of specialties down 6 to 17, before the decline was checked in the early afternoon by a spirited demand for United States Steel common, which was marked up to another 1930 high.

Earlier in the session 50 or more stocks had attained new peak prices for the year on gains running from fractions to 8 points.

VOLUME IS ENORMOUS

Trading was again in enormous volume, with the ticker running about half an hour behind the market, the hourly average of sales running well over 1,000,000 shares.

The mid-day reaction apparently was based on technical considerations, the recent brisk advance in many issues obviously having weakened their market position and rendered them vulnerable to selling pressure.

When word was passed back from the Stock Exchange to the brokerage houses that prices were lower on the floor than those appearing on the tape, which was far behind, there was a rush on the part of many traders to take profits.

J. I. Case fell 17 points to 253, but quickly rebounded to 265. Worthington Pump broke 12½ and Columbian Carbon, Houston Oil, Western Union and Vanadium fell 4 to 6 points before they met effective buying support.

General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, American Power & Light, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher and Checker Cab were carried down 2 points or more, but most of them recovered at least part of their losses by the end of the third hour.

The day's business news was rather meager in character. Chicago steel mill operations were reported as being maintained around 90 per cent of capacity. The Inspiration and Miami Copper companies reported a substantial increase in earnings last year.

One of the most unfavorable developments of the day was the announcement that Sears Roebuck sales, from Feb 27 to March 26 had dropped more than $3,000,000 below the corresponding period last year, the first decrease since February, 1927.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent with the supply of funds rather limited. Time money, commercial paper and bankers' acceptance rates held firm.

RADIO SETS HIGH

Radio was an active feature in the afternoon trading, crossing 45 to a new high record for the year. Blocks of 5,000 to nearly 15,000 changed hands at frequent intervals. Publication of the annual report showing earnings of about $1.60 a share was in line with Wall Street's expectations, but the sharp reduction in inventories since the first of the year was regarded as the chief bullish factor in the report.

American Telephone, American Can, Sinclair, Paramount, Famous Lasky, Liggett & Myers, Columbia Gas, North American, United Corporation, United Gas Improvement, Southern California Edison, and Adams Express were among the many other issues to reach new high levels.

Buying of the rails slowed up somewhat, although Pennsylvania, Wabash, Chicago Great Western common, New York, Ontario & Western, and Alleghany Corporation all registered new 1930 peaks.

Pneumatic to Rule General Conveyors

General Conveyors, Ltd., has been organized under Dominion of Canada laws, to do business in that territory. This new company, in which American Pneumatic Service Co. holds controlling interest, will handle all of the business formerly carried on by the Canadian branch of the Lamson Co. and also the Canadian business of the Pneumatic Tube Supply Co., assets of which company it now owns. General Conveyors, Ltd., will have branch offices located in the strategic industrial centers from Quebec to Vancouver.

Missouri-Kansas Merger Announced

New York, March 31. The Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. has acquired Cloverport Gas Co. of Cloverport, Kentuckey. Missouri-Kansas was reported last week to have secured a franchise to supply natural Gas to Louisville, Ky.

Branch Stock Office on Liner to Be Opened Today

New York, March 31—M. J. Meehan & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, will reopen their branch office on the S. S. Berengaria today. On April 12, the Meehan firm will re-establish branches on the Leviathan and Bremen.

Trade Recovery Outrun by Wall St.: The Reason

Idle Funds Are Going Into Stocks; Big Bankers Are Conservative

By B. C. FORBES

MARCH is ending with the downward movement in farm products arrested, with average stock quotation at a new peak for the year, with money abundant and cheap, with industry and trade recovering sufficiently to reduce unemployment at least a little.

B. C. Forbes

Frankly, however, the first quarter's progress has been disappointing in practically all important directions except in the stock, bond and money markets.

That the second quarter will make a distinctly better business showing is the popular but not the universal belief.

Why are stocks soaring to new heights? And why are we again witnessing speculation reaching 5,000,000 shares in one day on the New York Stock Exchange?

The real answer is not that a vast number of people have become bullish on the general outlook.

The answer, rather, is that here, there, everywhere funds not needed for immediate business purposes have become available and are being employed in the stock market.

Wealthy corporations and individuals who willingly sent money to be rented out in Wall Street at very high rates are not attracted by the current very low rates. A good part of such money has been invested in bonds, causing quotations to advance impressively. Part of the money has gone into stocks.

Not a few investment trusts have added to their stock holdings this year. Also, foreign buying has exercised considerable influence.

My own investigations reveal that the market's behavior last week is not altogether liked in the highest financial circles. Each day the market closed higher, with an unusual ouburst of enthusiasm toward the close. Both industrial and railway average quotations were lifted to new peaks since the panic. Although railway shares have advanced little more than 10 points from the early January minimum, industrials have shot up more than 20 per cent. And trading volume has greatly swelled, causing the ticker once again to run far behind.

Industry and business have shown no corresponding betterment, of course, and leading bankers argue that, while stocks may be carried temporarily to still higher levels while money is in oversupply, a reaction of some proportions must be expected. Some of them are taking advantage of the sharp rise in various stocks to reduce their holdings on the theory that fresh accumulation will be possible in the not distant future.

Turning to industry, those who control purse-strings are hopeful that somewhat better progress will be made in the second quarter; but they admit privately that no very impressive rebound should be counted upon. The buying power of our far-flung agricultural population has been seriously reduced. Unemployment has cut down the buying power of several millions of families. Other millions of families have became less eager to incur obligations by buying on instalment plans. Overproduction, actual and potential, has tended to bring down the general price level —and, consequently, profits.

Nevertheless, Spring is expected to stimulate at least some quickening of the business pace. Large-scale construction projects are ready to be launched in almost every part of the country by public utility (including natural gas) and other corporations, as well as by federal, State and municipal governments. The motor industry, one of our very largest employers, will expand operations. Although railway traffic and earnings are disappointing, very substantial orders for rails and rolling stock have been placed. The oil industry is at last strengthening its position. Shipping is enjoying an incipient boom.

Wheat, cotton and other principal farm commodities cannot decline indefinitely; it is conceivable that a turn for the better is at hand. Unemployment cannot fail to be reduced. Foreign buyers cannot long continue to withhold normal orders for American products necessary for their existence.

Then, too, the very substantial enhancement in stock prices has done not a little to repair the shattered finances of many. Cheap money encourages borrowing for improvements, extension and new enterprises.

Unless Wall Street invites a fresh setback drastic enough to disturb confidence, there is no reason to doubt moderate progress toward the attaining of a rational measure of prosperity.

CURB MARKET PROFIT-TAKING IS ABSORBED

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, March 31 (AP)—Last week's sharp advances invited heavy profit-taking in today's curb market, but the selling was fairly well absorbed, and the market maintained a firm undertone. Stocks generally opened higher, sagged during the morning, and turned upward again during the early afternoon.

Utilities mostly offered firm resistance to selling pressure, and several worked up into new high ground. Electric Bond and Share sold up to a new high for the movement above 110. Columbia Gas new stock also reached new high ground. The United Gas stocks were still active, but held to a narrow trading area. American Gas and Electric sold up a couple of points.

Indian Territory was a strong feature of the oils, selling up a few points to a new peak price on announcement of the offer of rights to purchase shares of the new Class "A" stock at $17, and in response to the bringing in of a gusher in the Oklahoma City pool. Humble and Gulf were in fair demand. Cities Service, which controls Indian Territory, moved up a fraction to a new high for the year.

Cord Corp., U. S. Gypsum, Copeland Products A, Aviation Corp. of the Americas, and Lehigh Coal and Navigation new stock were among industrials selling up to new top levels for the movement. Gains were largely moderate.

AM. TELEPHONE AT NEW HIGH

American Telephone soared to a new top in active trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. The issue was carried almost 4 points higher to 264½.

Edison skyrocketed 7 points to a new high for the year at 270.

Employers Group advanced a point to a fresh peak, Utilities Equities preferred jumped 2 points to 90, a new high and Eastern Gas & Fuel was at a high for the year at 39, up 2.

American Founders touched a new low at 23. American & Continental Corporation eased a point at 24½. Atchison R. R. dropped 1⅝ at 239¾ and Calumet & Hecla was down 1 at 28⅝. Boston & Maine A stamped and U. S. & International Securities preferred each had point losses.

Cities Service selling at a new high at 42 was up almost a point. Gains of a point or more were shown by the following issues: Anaconda, Engineers, S. D. Warren, United Fruit and Westfield.

There has been much State st. rumor about copper price cutting. It was stated today that Quincy Mining Co. last week sold 500,000 pounds of copper for April delivery at 18 cents.

Underground developments at the mine are reported as very encouraging. On the 90th level, north, No. 6, the face of the drift, which is six feet wide, is so filled with mass copper that it is difficult to find places for holes preparatory to blasting.

Interstate Commerce Commission authorized Pennsylvania R. R. to issue and sell $60,000,000 40-year 4½s per cent gold debenture bonds, to be sold at not less than 92 per cent of par and accrued interest. Proceeds will be used for additions and betterments, reimbursing the treasury for corporate outlays and other corporate purposes.

While the Pennsylvania Railroad's annual report for 1929 discloses an increase of 100,000 shares in holdings of New Haven Railroad stock, or from 73,025 shares held December 31, 1928, to 173,025 shares standing in its name December 31, 1929, reporut of the Pennroad Corp., although showing holdings in New Haven, does not reveal the amount.

The understanding in banking circles was that Pennsylvania or Pennroad acquisitions of New Haven last year were upwards of 200,000 shares, in addition to the 73,025 shares which the Pennsylvania Railroad already held directly. It is possible that all the additional purchases were made by Pennroad, with a subsequent shift of a portion of the block to the railroad, but it seems more likely that joint purchases were made. It is probable that Pennroad itself has more than 100,000 shares of New Haven, and that combined holdings are fully 20 per cent of total share capital.

Net earnings of $645,109.54 were reported by the Hegeman-Harris Company, Inc., for the year 1929, as compared with $587,213.91 for the year 1928. The amounts named included allowances for depreciation and other charges but not for federal income taxese. The Hegeman-Harris Company, Inc., was the builder of the Harvard School of Business Administration; the Fogg Art Museum and many other buildings at Harvard University.

The Hegeman-Harris Company's operations extend to all parts of the country, with offices in Boston, New York and Chicago. Among notable buildings erected by this company are the Tribune Tower, the Chicago Daily News building, the Elks National Memorial in Chicago, and many units for Columbia University, in New York. The company is completing the new $9,000,000.00 Board of Trade building in Chicago and has begun operations recently on the new home of the Union League Club in New York.

BUSINESS HAS GAIN MONTH BY MONTH

Chicago, March 31—Business volume of the Borg-Warner Corporation has steadily increased since January 1, and each month thus far in 1930 has shown an improvement over the preceding period, C. S. Davis, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting. "April, from present indications, will continue to reflect this tendency, and I believe the improvement will be continued throughout the coming quarter," he said.

"Although the total volume of automobile business in the first quarter of 1930 is less than that of the abnormal first three months of last year," Mr. Davis said, "Borg-Warner Corporation is receiving a greater proportion of the total business available, which indicates a strengthening of the corporation's position in the industry. With one exception, Borg-Warner is now manufacturing one or more complete parts units for every automobile produced in quantity in the United States.

"Increasing tendency on the part of automobile manufacturers to turn parts manufacturing over to parts specialists makes the outlook for the year good."

Mr. Davis also said that wider diversification, including the development of its replacement parts business, the enlargement of its agricultural parts and special steel division, and the introduction of the new Norge household refrigerator, is adding to the corporation's stability.

Stockholders elected four new directors, increasing the membership in the Borg-Warner board from fifteen to nineteen. New directors named were H. E. Blood, president of the Norge Corporation; G. A. Shallberg, general counsel; R. W. Dose, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer of Borg-Warner Corporation; and Clyde Bissell of Chicago.

CHAIN STORES EXPANDING

Chicago, March 31—Addition of three new stores to the Hartman Corporation group within the next 30 days will bring the total number to 57 actually in operation, Martin L. Straus, president, announced today.

A new store was opened Saturday at Kenosha, Wis. A store in South Chicago will be opened April 5. At Galesburg, Ill., a new store wil be opened not later than April 12.

Hartman Corporation is the world's largest furniture and furnishings retailing group.

J. E. Stephens has been named manager of the store at 515- 57th st., Kenosha. The South Chicago store, at 8946 Commercial ave., will be under management of Louis Marvec. Decision has not been made on appointment of a manager at Galesburg.

Few realize the rapidity with which the recovery of stock prices from the bottom of the market crash last November has taken on the significance of a bull market. The Fisher index of industrial common stocks stood at 159.2 on March 28 a rise of 29.7 per cent from 122.7, the bottom of the crash November 13, 1929. The preceding low area was 121.1 for October, 1927, whence it rose to 156.4 for September, 1928, a gain of 29.1 per cent for a year of the long bull market. That means that within only four and one-half months from the crash common industrial stocks have risen on the New York Stock Exchange higher than during the whole year, October, 1927-September, 1928. At 159.2 on Friday last, a new high for industrials was reached since the break.

This was during a week when brokers' loans decreased, denoting that stock trading of shares rising from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 daily were in strong hands.

The steels group rose last week to the level of the week ended June 28, 1929, just before the culminating bulge of the long bull market. At that time steels had gained 30 per cent of the points made from May 31, at 170.7, to their high on September 3, at 256.8. Utilities stood last week at the level of July 9, 1929, where they had gained 37 per cent in their spectacular rise between May 27 and September 24, their high for all time. The electrical group rose last week to the level of June 28, chemicals to the level of June 16; radio and amusement stocks rose to the level of October 23.

Utilities, steels and electrical, chemical, motors and accessories stocks closed last week at their high points, respectively, since the panic. They belong to 15 of the 20 groups that rose last week.

RECORD VALUES.

Daily tradings in common industrial shares last week rose by 20 per cent to $198,700,000, the record average this year. Daily tradings in all stocks likewise gained by 19 per cent to a total of $256,400,000, also the high for this year. On March 26 tradings reached the record total of $286,900,000.

Fifteen groups rose, among which were utilities, by $11,600,000; steels, by $8,700,000; coppers, by $7,700,000; chemicals, by $4,900,000, and oils, by $4,200,000. Six groups fell slightly.

Trading in utilities on March 26 reached a high since October 29 at $87,500,000; motors and coppers reached 1930 highs March 21 and 27, respectively.

Paris stock prices sagged last week by 0.1 per cent, following the 2 per cent gain of the preceding week.

The index of 225 industrial common stocks shows what a substantially representative $100 worth of stocks in 1926 would now amount to if held unchanged since that year. This index is weighted by shares outstanding. The index of "50 most active," or market leaders, shows the result of reinvesting the $100 every week in the market favorites of that week. This index is weighted by shares traded, the list changing weekly. The last column of the table gives the average yield per cent on these weeks' 50 leaders at current prices.

NEW HIGH RECORDS

Investment stocks rose last week by 3 per cent, substantial gains being made by U. S. Steel, du Pont, American Car & Foundry, General Electric, American Radiator and Allied Chemical & Dye. The group as a whole corresponded to average prices June 25, 1929, when the bulge of last summer began.

Semi-investment stocks rose last week by 1.2 per cent, to a gain of 24 per cent since the November crash, but 16 per cent below May 31, 1929, the low before the break.

Speculative stocks gained by 1.4 per cent last week, when they had risen 35 per cent over the November 13 bottom; they were still 23 per cent below May 28, 1929, the low point before the crash.

These three groups closed last week at the high since Nov. 13.

Discrimination Marks Post-Panic in Stock Market, Says Irving Fisher

INVESTORS SHOWING GOOD JUDGMENT IN SELECTIONS

By IRVING FISHER
Professor of Economics, Yale University

Irving Fisher

New Haven, Ct., March 30—The charge of lack of intelligent discrimination during the recovery of prices from the stock market crash is heard little if at all. The charge was untrue even before the crash. Leonard P. Ayres and President Simmons of the New York Stock Exchange drew attention to evidences of selectivity during the nine months of 1929 while the stock price averages were reaching their peaks. Mr. Simmons particularly commented on the "marked discrimination shown by investors in selecting certain issues and disregarding others." Even then the public was being guided by the skilled counsel of investment trusts and experienced financial investment services.

CRASH SIFTED STOCKS

No doubt the crash has accentuated this altogether helpful tendency. The market as a whole has made substantial recovery from its low point of November 13, last. But the groups of stocks have moved upward at widely different rates, and some, even, have gone actually below the low points registered last fall. The diverse rates of recovery of the different groups of stocks are shown below. The percentage of recovery in each case is the percentage which the points recovered since the low bear to the difference between the high and the low.

*Loss.

Manifestly the several groups have had widely different influences upon the advance. Those showing greatest recoveries are Radio and Amusement stocks, Chemicals, Tobaccos, Machinery and Railroad Equipment, Electrical Equipment and Utilities. The expectations of great future profits to be obtained from mergers and the upbuilding of power networks in the Utilities group caused its rise in price last summer to culminate later than the culmination in Industrials. The Utilities peak was reached September 24, whereas Industrials began to decline almost three weeks earlier. As the Utilities made a longer and steeper climb upwards before the break, they have likewise shown greater buoyancy during the period of recovery. Naturally, the ratio of Utility prices to earnings is far higher than that of any other group; in fact, it never fell below 20 to 1 even during the crash, while the average ratio for Industrials at the market top was only 13½ to 1.

RATES OF GAIN VARY

Tobaccos and amusements have shown themselves very nearly "depression-proof." Railroad equipment companies have been favored by recent large orders from the railroads; partly, no doubt, in response to the appeal of the administration to speed up production schedules as an offset to the shock on business produced by the market crash. Chemicals, in a new and rapidly expanding industry that promises large profits in future, have come back more quickly than many of the more seasoned groups.

Overproduction is the bane which has prevented rapid recovery of oils, auto accessories, motors and coppers. Stores also, as a group, have been affected by the business recession.

As the varying rate of increase in group stock prices gives evidence of selectivity, so also does that of prices of individual stocks. In my list of 50 market leaders week-to-week, certain stocks recur as consistently the most active. Of these I have chosen at random several for comparing changes in price, with due reference to changes in capital structure. This allowance is made by computing the market value of shares outstanding at the date of the high point of each security in 1929, at its low point, and at a recent date (March 20).

Among the Oils, for instance, Standard of New Jersey has made a recovery of over 50 per cent in the loss from its high of last September; but Skelly has made only 3 per cent recovery, while Richfield Oil has improved by only 15 per cent. Commercial Solvents, with a relatively less satisfactory showing, has recovered 28 per cent of the ground lost last fall, while recoveries of from 40 to 50 per cent are general throughout the group.

MOTORS, STORES, SLUGGISH

Motors, on the other hand, have been generally sluggish. Companies specializing in passenger vehicles have shown less tendency to come back than those specializing in commercial vehicles; in the commercial division one stock has regained one-third of the loss sustained last fall. The group of Stores stocks has been held back by the business depression, one having recovered only 11 per cent, yet individual stores show rebounds of 3 per cent or more.

Again, selectivity is at work in Steels, which show recoveries ranging from 30 to 40 per cent. Copper shares this year sagged lower than the panic low, and on March 20 showed a 1 per cent loss from that figure; yet one copper company has made a recovery of 77 per cent of the loss between its high and low last fall.

Even among the most buoyant groups, namely Tobaccos, Electrical Equipment, Theaters and Utilities, great diversity is manifest. Doubless the rapidly increasing rate of consumption of tobacco in its various forms accounts for the outstanding recovery in tobacco stocks. Yet in this group, also, selectivity is at work, one tobacco company on March 20 showing recovery from the loss last fall by 100 per cent, another by 59 per cent, while a third was 1 per cent below the last year low.

As usual, after a market panic, the bond market has distinctly improved since the November crash. But there has likewise been a notable increase in the number of common shareholders in many companies, while the recently pronounced rise in brokers' loan accounts show the rising confidence of the public in a recovering stock market. But it is a "choosy" public, a public that gains courage from counsel, and that is showing marked discrimination in its choice of shares for trading and investment.

A "creeping bull market" is indicated by the varying degrees of recovery of different groups of stocks from the 1929 low.

Slight Decline in Commodity Prices

The wholesale commodity price index continued downward last week, failing to make good the favorable indications of the preceding week for an early rise.

The index declined 0.3 per cent to a new low of 90.4, following the slight fall of 0.2 per cent the week ending March 21.

The greatest cause for disappointment lay in the fact that, of the commodities showing any change, there were 44 per cent making rises as against 62 per cent registering falls. The week before looked hopeful because there were 56 per cent rises to 44 per cent falls.

The purchasing power of the dollar, reciprocating the continued weakness of commodity prices, accelerated its upward pace somewhat and reached an index of 110.6 last week.

FOODS CAUSE PRICE DROP

The further fall of the all-commodity price index last week was due to chronic weakness in the agricultural division, which fell off by 0.83 per cent to 95.1. This index has declined steadily for the past six weeks and has now reached the low since April, 1927.

The principal cause of this drop was the foods group, most of the items coming under the head of finished goods. The items were bread, butter, flour and lard.

Some cause for cheer was found in the raw materials and semi-finished groups, which showed rises in the non-agricultural division. Cotton, tin and lead were conspicuous risers. Hides and leathers, metals and building materials ceased to decline. The raw materials index was up by 0.68 per cent, while the semi-manufactured index rose 0.33 per cent.

German and French indexes rose by 0.1 per cent last week to continue their slight but definite upward trend. The English index failed to improve over its record low of the week before.

CONVERTIBLES TAKE LEAD

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, March 31 (AP)—The bond market was listless today, showing small fluctuations and small turnovers as money rates held firm over the month-end period.

Some of the easiness that marked the course of prices last week was still apparent, but the proportions of the decline continued negligible.

Convertibles absorbed much of the activity. American Telephone 4½s, after crossing 184 for a post-panic record, reacted a point or two.

International Telephone 4½s stepped into prominence as the shares advanced and moved well above 120 to a new high for the movement. Warner Brothers Pictures and Baltimore & Ohio 4½s equalled their best prices.

Fractional losses in such bonds as Southern Railway general 4s, Western Union 5s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, North American Edison 5s and Canadian Pacific 4s reflected the apathy of the market. There were many firm spots in all groups.

Foreign issues held steady, failing to vary to any important measure from the Saturday close. Changes in United States government were confined to the smaller fractions.

$2,650,000 Chicago Bonds Are Offered

Offering is made today of $2,650,000 Chicago South Park Commission 4 per cent bonds for lake front extension, park improvement and Columbian Fine Art Building improvement. The bonds will mature in $75,000 lots, each June 1, from 1931 to 1948, and in $65,000 lots, each April 1, from 1931 to 1950. The 1931 maturities are priced to yield 4.20 per cent; the 1932 maturities to yield 4.30 per cent and the 1933 to 1950 maturities to yield 4.40 per cent.

McKesson Sales Display Increase

McKesson & Robbins, Incorporated, of Maryland, and subsidiary companies for the year ended December 31, last, reported sales of $140,635,026, an increase of $56,767,791 over the previous year. Net operating profits after all charges and taxes and heavy write-offs of extraordinary expenses, amounted to $4,109,872, against $3,741,281 the previous year.

B. & M. HOLDERS REVEALED

The list of the 20 largest holders of Boston & Maine stocks as of March 14, 1929, the latest available, shows further important acquisitions in comparison with a year earlier by Schirmer, Atherton & Co. of Boston, and Roosevelt & Son of New York. These were the two largest holders of Boston & Maine outside of the Boston Railroad Holding Co. through which the New Haven holds its investment.

Schirmer, Atherton & Co.'s holdings of all classes of Boston & Maine stock as of March 14, 1929, aggregated 152,027 shares against 56,150 on March 16, 1928, an increase of 95,877. The largest increase was in the first preferred lettered stocks, which went up 71,959 shares, but there were substantial gains in all other classes. Roosevelt & Son bought 2061 more shares of common, bringing holdings of that issue March 14, 1929, to 36,919, but it disposed of its block of 1746 shares of prior preferred.

The only change in the New Haven ownership was the acquisition of 43,980 shares of the Boston & Maine 7 per cent prior preferred stock. This brought holdings of the New Haven in all classes to a total of 273,863 shares.

Several of the important brokerage houses showed purchases or sales of some sizeable blocks. James H. Oliphant & Co. of New York were down for 2340 shares of common March 16, 1929 whereas they did not appear among the list of 20 largest holders a year earlier. Similarly, Paine, Webber & Co. were credited with 1939 shares of common and E. F. Hutton & Co. with 2275 shares E. M. Hamlin & Co., Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. and Clark, Childs & Co., as well as the Amster Investment & Trading Corp. disappeared from the list of 20 largest holders in 1929.

A later list would undoubtedly reveal some further significant shifts. For example, the Pennroad Corp. is known to have acquired substantial blocks of Boston & Maine, and its own report shows holdings in Boston & Maine, although of undisclosed amount. The understanding is that some of the substantial holdings which were in the hands of brokers have actually gone into Pennroad ownership.

Youngstown Would Be Separate Unit, Say Schwab and Grace

New York, March 31 (AP)—Bethlehem Steel Corporation plans to operate Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company as a separate company under its present corporate title, with headquarters in Youngstown and with resident executive offices in the event that the proposal to merge it with Bethlehem is approved by Sheet and Tube stockholders, Charles M. Schwab and Eugene G. Grace, chairman and president, respectively, of the Bethlehem company, announced today.

CITE NEED OF MUNICIPAL HANGAR

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The Boston Municipal Airport needs a hangar built and operated by the city, if the present more or less muddled state of the private operator is to be straightened out. This is the opinion of several of the small commercial operators, who make their week's pay through flying an occasional passenger, or taking a student up for instruction.

With the present day crop of large commercial airplane operators, the fate of the little fellow has been more or less in doubt.

Operating in and around Boston are several "little fellows" who eke out their precarious living from flying passengers and giving a limited amount of student instruction. These "little fellows" are gradually going to other locations, or are giving up the ghost.

When the Boston airport was taken over by the city and plots of ground leased to four companies, the fate of the individual operator hung in the balance. Each owner of a plane was obliged to store it in one of the four commercial hangars and the word went around that only certain few were to be allowed to operate commercially.

These chosen few were boys who have been flying for years on the airport, in some cases since the airport was built seven years ago, and they naturally had a following. The matter has not as yet been straightened satisfactorily, and it is the general opinion that a municipal hangar is needed on the airport. Such a hangar could be used to house these independent boys and they could be allowed to operate from that point without stepping on anyone's toes.

With the present layout of hangars, a space would be hard to find, but the need of one is apparent.

"Every municipal airport I've ever heard of has a hangar owned by the city and Boston should not be the only one not to have such an accommodation," said Tom Croce, the veteran commercial flying man on the airport, having flown there since the port opened.

Try to Rescue Crew Clinging to Rigging

Lerwick, Shetland Islands, March 31 (AP)—Coast guardsmen, fishermen and others were trying today to rescue the crew of the Aberdeen steam trawler Ben Doran, which struck the dangerous Skerries Reef in the West Shetland group Saturday.

Seven men were seen once clinging to the ship's rigging. Boats which put out from shore here could not reach the ship in the heavy sea.

Barn Destroyed in Third Mystery Fire

Townsend, March 31 (AP)—Fire of mysterious origin in an adjoining barn destroyed the home of Robert E. Smith today with an estimated loss of $5000. Lack of water handicapped the firemen, but most of the furniture was saved.

The blaze was the third mysterious one here in the past six months.

The Weather

For Boston and vicinity—Fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer Tuesday; moderate west and southwest winds. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 34.

Three Are Held in R. I. Armory Theft

Pawtucket, R. I., March 31 (AP)—With arrest today of John Pickett, 18, a member of the 118th Engineers, Rhode Island National Guard, police claim to have solved the mysterious theft of 14.45-caliber revolvers from the State Armory March 21, and five breaks in Pawtucket, Central Falls and Attleboro, Mass., since that time.

Police say Pickett has confessed to the armory theft. He involved George Meunier, 23, and Thomas Carol, 20, and they were arrested with him.

Fall Proves Fatal to Ex-Follies Girl

New York, March 31—With none of her relatives at her bedside Allyn King, former Follies star, died in Bellevue Hospital from injuries suffered Saturday when she jumped from the window of her bedroom on the fifth floor of an apartment house.

Miss King had suffered a nervous breakdown, relatives said, as a result of continued dieting to keep the slim figure demanded by the stage.

ONE TRADITION OF SEA UPSET BY ANDREWS

Contrary to the tradition that veterans of the sea retired to little cottages by the shore when their days of labor are at end, Rear-Admiral Andrews, popular commandant of the First Naval District, and one of Boston's strongest boosters, will turn to aiding the fire prevention movement when he foresakes his office at the Navy Yard.

In love with Boston, its climate and its people, Admiral Andrews, who reaches the retirement age of 64 today, but who will remain at his post until June, intends to return to the Hub in the fall and establish his home here. Then he will take up his fire prevention work and at the same time start work on a book he is planning to write.

Admiral Andrews has been 48 years in the Navy and his service has taken him through several wars and insurrections. He has met famous men and women in all parts of the world and has been decorated by a half dozen foreign governments.

During the World War he commanded a battleship and also established a naval base at Cardiff, Wales, as well as leading the United States naval forces in the eastern Mediterranean.

He can't explain how he happened to get interested in fire prevention, surely a subject that is ordinarily remote from the mind of a naval officer.

THREE SLAIN IN KENTUCKY FEUD

Brownsville, Ky., March 31 (AP)—A man and his two nephews who used pistols to settle an altercation are dead and the son-in-law of the elder is in jail today as the result of an affray that occurred on a highway near here at Bee Springs.

In a fusillade that followed a dispute said to have started over the son of the elder man, the latter, James Stroud Merideth, 42, fell dead. Merideth's son-in-law, Curley Johnson, 25, then shot and killed the nephews, Isaac Duvall, 32, and Floyd Duvall, 26, Isaac's brother.

Johnson insisted that he fired only when the two Duvalls had fired twice at him.

Our Real Wealth

Skill of Its Workmen One of New England's Major Assets

NO stronger note has been struck regarding New England's resources and products than that given by Dr. Julius Klein of the United States Department of Commerce to a gathering of our business men.

"The general industrial life of this section is whole, sound and secure," says Dr. Klein. "Agriculture now holds a more important place and provides a greater real income to New England than it did fifty years ago—a triumph of selection, increased efficiency, and specialization.

"While New England still possesses substantial wealth in its forests, its stone industries and its fisheries, better than all these are the major assets of New England, the skill and technique of its workmen, its experience in industrial organization and management, and its reserves of capital and equipment."

Dr. Klein finds:

"On foundations such as these we have every reason to expect that New England will go forward to still more admirable achievements."

Dr. Klein's finding on agriculture confirms canvasses of New England made by the Boston Evening American within a few years. Four-fifths of the total population of New England lives in cities. With millions of yawning city mouths to feed, the New England farmer should find great profit in increasing his production from year to year.

We buy most of our butter, poultry, eggs and beef outside of New England. This should be produced at home to the great financial benefit of the New England farmer.

Get Visitors First

Mr. Walsh Says Profit Not the First Purpose of Tercentenary Celebration

ACTING PRESIDENT JOHN JACKSON WALSH, speaking for the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, Inc., handling the inances of our three hundredth Massachusetts Bay Colony Celeration, states the truth when he says that business in Boston nd Massachusetts must co-operate with established agencies an endeavor to attract millions of visitors to our State and New England this year.

Mr. Walsh puts it this way:

"We have the attractions, we must get the spectators."

"Making a profit from our visitors must not be the first thought," Mr. Walsh adds.

And he goes on:

"When the millions of visitors are here to attend the Tercentenary, it will be time enough to think of them as customers and even to pursue them as buyers of Massachusetts goods."

We have many things to show our fellow citizens from all over the United States, but we must get said fellow citizens here first to exhibit what we have.

Help Police Listers

TOMORROW our police force will be abroad in Boston, listing citizens for the annual voting records and for other purposes. Do not confuse them with the census-takers who will not begin their work until a little later.

Householders are urged to help the police by preparing, not later than today, a list of all residents within their homes. Whatever is saved in the work of police listing finds its way back to the pocket of the taxpayer.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 31—Diary of a modern Pepys: Early to the station to meet a tram and a richly eyebrowed lady with a lorgnette asked me to help find a parrot which escaped from its cage and it was found along 42d st., strutting amusingly and followed by a crowd.

Home and came Cornelius Starr, the insurance man, and we talked of far away corners he had visited especially Siam and Borneo. So at my scrivening and finished my stint with scarcely any effort soever which is always stimulating. And chatted awhile afterward with "Duke" Herrick, the park commissioner.

IN the evening to Mulberry st. with my wife and Justine Hall to dine at an Italian cafe and a gentleman at the next table with a lady began to weep, being foxed, and said his wife made a good home and he had no business philandering. So the lady wept, too, and both lurched out still weeping and hicupping.

The celebrated Whyte's restaurant, so long a fixture down town, is bidding for trade in the Furious Forties and in an expansive basement restores a touch of vanquished Shanley's and Churchill's. A barn-like room done in conservative English paneling has a huge dancing floor. Rent is $120,000 a year.

CAPSULE drama: She sat in front of a luxurious hotel in a padded limousine puffing at a cigarette and gazing with half lidded indifference at nothing in particular. The rachitic Madison ave. beggar with his keyrings tapped on the window and held up his wares. She motioned him away with a languid flourish of her cigarette. A taxi swung in and the driver reached out, handed him a paper dollar—and shot away.

* * *

There are two men and one woman in New York with only a single name. The woman is a sculptress who had her name officially changed to Leonore. Perhaps the most publicized is a gentleman who appears in the telephone book merely as Tifft. He is 50 years old and his parents decided to permit him to select his own name. He never found one that appealed to him particularly.

* * *

At the romantic age when I dreamed of becoming a swashbuckling actor with lace cuffs and flashing poignard I hit upon Maclyn McGuire McIntyre as a stage name. I confided my secret to grandma who observed it sounded like something falling down stairs and did I prefer to fill the kitchen stove bin or get a dose of strap oil.

THOSE of us whose boyhood memories are of a waddling, scowling and flat-footed neighborhood cop are a trifle amazed at the modern Chesterfield who patrols in New York. The cop was once the natural enemy of every boy. Today he is young, trim and athletic. On the East Side he is a pal of lads who play in the streets. This morning I saw one in an abandoned lot helping boys choose sides for a game of baseball. That is perhaps not in the police regulations, but should.

An excellent novelist for years made from $15,000 to $20,000 yearly writing interesting but dignified books. For a change of pace he wrote a swiftly moving sex novel under a pseudonym. The royalties together with the movie and second serial rights totaled $102,000. That was four years ago and he has averaged more than that each year since.

AT the talking pictures, it strikes me, the audience does most of the talking. I have left two in a huff recently and may continue the pout until another George Arliss picture comes along.

Ed Wynn is said to have originated the quip in a dozen plays that business is looking up—flat on its back.

"I am," explains a letter from the editor of an English periodical, "hunting for a man who does not write so much to enrich literature as to keep the wolf from the door."

He is getting hot.

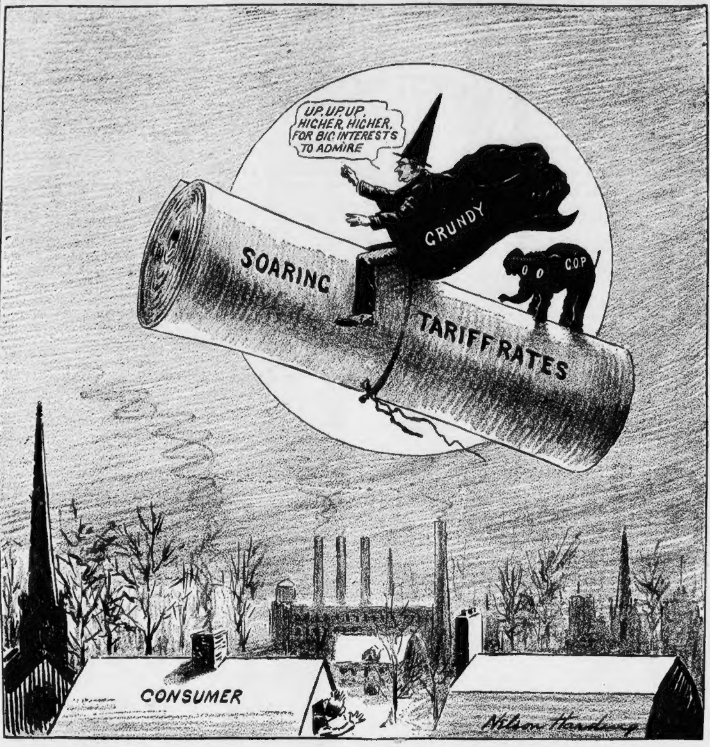
Speaking of Witchcraft

By NELSON HARDING



There's witchery abroad today,
There's magic in the air,
And plain consumers now are warned
That they had best beware.

Black cats and witches ride no more
On broomsticks through the air,
But a bewitched tariff bill
Ride high another pair.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells

IN both these types the lower arm and leg contained two separate bones, and the fore-limb could still be twisted and turned about in a way impossible for the modern horse. Number three, Epihippus, with only two species hitherto described, is from the Upper Eocene (V A3). It is still four-toed, but the fourth toe is smaller, the central toes larger, and two of the three premolar teeth are just like the true grinders. There is no real break between it and Orohippus.

H. G. Wells

That closes our Main Stage I. Mesohippus is the first type of Main Stage II, the horses with three usable toes. Between it and Epihippus there is a slight gap, during which the final stages in the reduction of the fourth front toe to the merest splint must have been run through, and during which there was also a considerable increase in size.

Thousands of specimens of the genus have been found, the earliest from the Lower Oligocene (V B1), but running on through Middle into Upper; these can be separated into no less than 18 species. All three of the actively-grinding premolars are now like the molars, and in the fore-arm and lower leg one of the two bones is enlarged to take nearly all the weight, while the other is on the way to disappearance.

The fifth genus is called Miohippus. It is first found in the Upper Oligocene (V C1), and is scarcely to be separated from Mesohippus, save by its rather larger size (up to that of a sheep) and the better mechanical construction of the skeleton of its wrist and ankle.

It also is abundant and variable, with 17 known species. Parahippus, first found in the next higher rock formation, the Lower Miocene, is a real connecting link between Main Stage II and Main Stage III. The earlier of the 18 species so far discovered are on the whole very like Miohippus, while some of the later forms have the outer two hoofs and digits so much reduced as to be useless.

The teeth, too, are interesting; the cement filling appears for the first time, but only in some of the later species is it anything but a very thin coating.

Parahippus runs on right through the Miocene; but already by the Middle Miocene (V C2) a more progressive type had appeared, which is called Merychippus. This type, abundant and wide-ranging with some 25 species, definitely initiates our Main Stage III, for its side toes never touch the ground. But it makes a greater advance in the depth of the teeth.

In the earliest species of Merychippus the grinders are only as high as wide; in some of the latest, the height is two-and-a-half times the width. The cement is always abundant, though it was not deposited until just before the tooth emerged from its bone socket, instead of some time time before, as in the living horse.

The ulna, the dwindling second bone in the lower forelimb, is a separate splint in colts of Merychippus, but in the adults is fused with the main bone or radius, as it is from birth onward in modern horses; here we get a second glimpse of recapitulation, that widespread phenomenon of which the three-toed embryos of modern horses have already given us an example. Much increase in size also took place within the group before it faded out in the early Pliocene (V D1), the later forms being often as big as small ponies.

Our eighth genus, Pliohippus, grades back insensibly into some of the Merychippus forms, first emerging distinctly toward the very end of the Miocene (V C3) and continuing through the Lower Pliocene (V D1).

As regards feet, Pliohippus bridges the gap between Main Stages III and IV, some of its seventeen species possessing tiny but perfect side toes complete with miniature bus useless hoofs, while in others they were reduced to single splints as in modern horses.

The chief point of progress again concerns the teeth. In earlier genera, the molars led the way; then their more elaborate pattern was gradually adopted by the premolars, too. However, this applied to the permanent premolars; their milk-teeth predecessors in the colt were always of simpler pattern.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HE OWES YOU NOTHING, LADY!

WHY does the average wife believe that her husband owes her a perpetual debt because she married him . . . and feel that everything she does for said husband is a favor which he can never sufficiently repay?

You haven't conferred any more of a favor on the big boy by marrying him, sister, than he has conferred on you. You wanted him as much as he wanted you and worked as hard to get him. Maybe harder!

Elsie Robinson

And he sacrificed as much for the deal as you did. It's a serious thing for a girl to put her life in a man's keeping—but it's just as serious for a man to put his life in a girl's keeping. And girlish dreams are not a particle more precious than boyish illusions. A boy can think as much romantic nonsense in a second as a girl can in a year and it hurts him just as hard to be jarred out of it.

TRADITION to the contrary, it's the groom who is usually all in a twitter, not the bride. She knows what she's all about, but he's betting on a couple of deuces. If anyone should wear the tulle and rosebuds, he should!

"But I sacrificed my freedom for my husband!" you cry.

Well, how about HIS freedom? You gummed up his liberty quite as much as he gummed up yours. And, in addition to giving up liberty, he acquired the upkeep of another healthy human—plus possible additions.

"See how hard I worked for him!"

See how hard he worked for you. And why, at any rate, should you regard your work as such an amazing performance? Wouldn't you have had to work, even if you hadn't married him? And wouldn't you have had to endure the normal amount of snubs, indifference, bad temper and backache incident to any job? Then why consider yourself an uncrowned martyr because you've elected to earn your living keeping house instead of typing letters or selling notions?

* * *

WHY SHOULD A GIRL WHO COULD NEVER QUALIFY FOR MORE THAN A TWENTY DOLLAR JOB WHEN SHE WAS SINGLE EXPECT MILLION DOLLAR SERVICE AFTER SHE'S MARRIED . . . AND BEEF, EVEN WHEN SHE GETS THAT?

"But I gave him the best years of my youth!"

YOU did nothing of the sort, sister. Your youth passed. You didn't give it to him—it just vamoosed. As all youth vamooses. Growing old is nobody's fault. Why put him in the dog house because time passes?

Be reasonable, lady. Your husband doesn't owe you any more than you owe him. You elected to say, "I do," and most of you worked overtime to get the chance to say it. You were wise.

Generally speaking, there's no finer job on earth than that of being a wife or mother. If, in your case, it didn't turn out to be a good job, get out—as you'd get out from any other bad job. But if you do stay in—act regular.

"COME HOME"

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS,

United States Secretary of the Navy and Member of the American Delegation at the London Naval Conference:

WHY should not the American delegation board an American battleship and come home, and stay home to attend to American business here in the United States?

We have had three naval conferences with foreign nations in the past eight years and all of them have been disastrous to our power and prestige and fraught with danger to our peace and safety.

At the Washington naval conference of 1922, we agreed to sink ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS' WORTH OF SHIPS in return for the destruction of BRITISH AND JAPANESE BLUEPRINTS;

At a naval conference at Geneva, home of the League of Nations, in 1927, Great Britain graciously agreed to let us have parity in cruisers IF WE WOULD BUILD THEM OF THE SIZE AND TYPE WHICH WERE GOOD FOR HER AND NOT GOOD FOR US;

In this year of grace 1930 your delegation went to the London naval conference and found that the European powers would unite in an agreement to disarm down to our level only if the United States would consent to a security pact under which THEIR security would be guaranteed at the expense of OUR safety and OUR independence.

So far, the American public has been denied the history of the contest in your delegation that ended in its finally refusing to swallow the bait of "security pact."

We believe, though, that an honorable part in its rejection was played by you, Mr. Secretary.

You are the great-great-grandson of John Adams, Washington's Vice-President and later the second President of this country.

You are, Sir, the great-grandson of John Quincy Adams, Monroe's Secretary of State in the year of the Monroe Doctrine and later sixth President of the United States.

If ever there were two uncompromising enemies of European entanglements, it was those two Americans.

A hundred years ago an attempt entirely similar to today's attempt was made by European powers to embroil us in the "Holy Alliance," the League of Nations of 1815.

THE ATTEMPT WAS THWARTED BY JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Czar Alexander and William Pitt headed this 1815 alliance, formed to retain the tottering Bourbons on the throne of France and protect the loot of the Allies' conquests in the Napoleonic wars.

Exactly like the League of Nations formed in 1920.

Then, as now, America was to be SEDUCED into the alliance.

A secret memorandum of Russia and France to representatives of the Allied powers meeting at Aix-la-Chapelle read:

"IT IS BELIEVED THAT THE PLENIPOTENTIARIES OF THE FIVE POWERS AT WASHINGTON SHOULD TAKE THE STEPS NECESSARY TO PERSUADE PUBLIC OPINION IN THE UNITED STATES, AS WELL AS THE EXECUTIVE.

"VERBAL COMMUNICATION WOULD BE PREFERABLE TO WRITTEN NOTES, IN ORDER TO AVOID GIVING AMMUNITION TO THE OPPONENTS, WHO WOULD SEIZE UPON THE IDEA OF FOREIGN INFLUENCE AS CONTRARY TO AMERICAN INSTITUTIONS.

"THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES COULD BE TOLD THAT THEY THEMSELVES ARE AN EUROPEAN PEOPLE, CHRISTIANS, AND THEREFORE, LIKE EUROPE, INTERESTED IN QUESTIONS OF A GENERAL NATURE."

How modern and like 1930 it sounds.

Then, as now, the foreign nations were aided by soft-hearted, soft-headed pacifists in America.

On April 9, 1816, the Massachusetts Peace Society wrote a fervid letter to the Czar Alexander, "your imperial majesty," declaring its purpose was, "TO DISSEMINATE THE VERY PRINCIPLES AVOWED IN THE WONDERFUL ALLIANCE."

How like the cable of March 3 from America, addressed to your delegation, framed by members of the League of Nations Association, and signed by 1200 American pacifists, begging your delegation to join European powers in a "consultation pact."

Well, a hundred years ago John Quincy Adams BLOCKED THE PLOT OF THE HOLY ALLIANCE.

He instructed Mr. Middleton, American ambassador to Russia, to warn them to let us alone and say:

"TO STAND IN FIRM AND CAUTIOUS INDEPENDENCE OF ALL ENTANGLEMENTS IN THE EUROPEAN SYSTEM HAS BEEN A CARDINAL POINT OF THEIR POLICY FROM 1783 TO THIS DAY."

Yes, and a cardinal point of American policy in 1930. Is it not fitting that an Adams should help tell Europe these plain and pointed American facts?

The nation counts on you to resist the latest move of that long-time advocate of the League of Nations, Secretary Stimson, to involve the United States in the discussions and dissensions and disasters of Europe through a dangerous "consultation pact."

BRING THE DELEGATION HOME! Mr. Adams.

The people of the United States will support you in building a navy worthy of your ancestry and of your country.

COME HOME!
